recently, and that some got through to meet the advancing allies. Others were reported wandering about Germany. Travelers were beginning to tell of trains being derailed by these foreigners, who robbed the freight cars.

Workers committees against the Nazi regime were reported operating in Essen, Muehlheim, Duesseldorf and Dortmund, and reliable information indicated that the infamous prison camp at Dachau has become a center of resistance.

you one package for two bits per. But you can't depend on it. There are vague stories of fugitive individuals lurking in the shadows who are willing to part with a carton for a price, but they don't seem to deal with strangers.

Cigarettes are just plain scarce. Even the members of congress, who have their own little restaurant in the basement of the Capitol and their own private subway for going back and forth without getting their feet wet seem to be as hard up for cigarettes as anyone else.

STILL, this strange fact is apparent here as elsewhere. Nobody seems to be GOING WITHOUT SMOKES. You see very few rolling their own. Pipes appear to be no more numerous than in other times. The smoke-filled rooms are still filled with smoke, and most of it is still cigarette smoke.

There are mysteries in the modern world, and this is one of them.

HOUSEHOLD help, here in the upper fringes of the deep South, is as scarce and as exotic as everywhere.

This writer had dinner the other night with a friend in Alexandria. He and his wife are doing the housework—have been doing it for quite a while and expect to be doing it for some time to come. Reason: NO help available at ANY price.

In the course of the evening we called another friend on the phone to suggest that he drop over for a little light conversation. He just couldn't make it, he said regretfully, as he was taking care of his granddaughter while his daughter and her back-fro-m-the-war's husband were out to a show.

"I really needed to go back to the office tonight myself," he explained, "but we just can't get any help at all, even baby-sitters. So I'm doing the job."

THIS, please remember, occurred in Alexandria—just over the Potomac in Virginia from Washington. If help is utterly unobtainable in Alexandria, it's little wonder that it's scarce elsewhere.

At High School—Hugh Vindal, overseas Red Cross director, will speak at the high school this evening, answering questions regarding servicemen on leave in the countries. The public is invited to this meeting.

BETTER HALFTONES AIDED BY GRANT

PORTLAND, March 13 (AP)—A $3400 grant from the Journal Publishing company of Portland to help finance research on improving halftone engravings for newspapers was accepted by the state board of higher education at its March meeting today.

The money goes to the University of Oregon physics department where Stanley Minshall, a graduate student, is already obtaining promising results. President Orlando Hollis told the board.

Work on several such cooperative research projects was described by Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter. These included the forest products research foundation at Oregon State college for study of wood utilization.

President A. L. Strand of OSC said plans call for a possible addition to the present forestry building as well as use of part of a proposed industrial building for pilot plant research in this field.

COACH MARBLE COOK RESIGNS POSITION

The Southern Oregon conference in basketball.

Probably the finest game played by the Pelicans during Cook's reign was the grid clash at Medford when the Klamath eleven put up a courageous battle against a much heavier Medford team. The K-men almost succeeded in toppling Medford in basketball in the district tournament at Ashland, but the Tornado turned on the heat to nose out the Klamath cagers by three points in the overtime.
