Almost unopposed infantrymen advanced half of the 14 mile distance to Iloilo, Panay capital and one of the best ports in the central Philippines.

MOVE TO CURB FARM EXPENSE DRAWS VETO

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) An administration move to curb farm program payments next year drew a veto today from the house appropriations committee as it approved an $833,801,932 agriculture department supply bill.

The move to cut the payments, made to farmers for land conservation and utilization practices and as incentives for production, was made to the committee by the budget bureau during hearings on the bill to finance the department for the 12 months beginning July 1.

General farm program payments now are limited by law to $300,000,000. The budget bureau proposed a $200,000,000 limitation for the 1946 crop.

The committee, however, said it doubted the wisdom of limiting the program in advance without a recommendation from the agriculture committee.

The committee boosted by $10,000,000 the budget bureau's recommendation for $290,000,000 for farm benefit payments for the 1945 crop, making the figure $300,000,000. These payments are in addition to approximately $560,000,000 in direct subsidy payments to be made by the war food administration to encourage production of milk and sugar.

The item for farm program payments, which have helped boost United States food production to record highs, was the largest in the measure.

acquainted with the right kind of people.

OUR congressman, naturally, will be primarily interested in getting acquainted with: 1. People well up in the government, preferably cabinet members. 2. Prominent and influential members of congress. 3. Bureau chiefs and key underlings in the bureaus. In these war days, add to the must list Washington generals, admirals and colonels, all of whom can be very useful in constituencies containing military installations.

And don't overlook trusted private secretaries. These girls, who know details better than their bosses, are unbelievably useful at times. They make no decisions, but if so inclined they can brief the situation to the big boss in a way that often smooths the road.

THIS job of getting acquainted isn't as complicated as it sounds, for in Washington everybody is playing the same game. While our congressman is interested in getting acquainted with other people, other people are interested in getting acquainted with him. While he is sizing them up and figuring out how they can be useful to him, they are sizing him up and figuring out how he can be useful to them.

This principle lies at the root of more or less everything in our national capital.

IN Washington, as elsewhere—maybe more than anywhere else—results talk. If our congressman has done no more than mix around and get acquainted, he won't have got very far. If he is to qualify as a result getter, he must in the meantime have put himself in a position to RETURN favors.

Make no mistake as to this point: In Washington, a favor received is a DEBT INCURRED. Careful mental books are kept on this doing-a-favor business. If you do a favor for somebody, you make a mental note that in the future HE is vulnerable. If somebody does you a favor, you know that sooner or later you'll be called on to pay it back.

The whole business is strictly on a reciprocal basis.

IF a congressman is to be a success, he must be able to get things done for his constituents—both as individuals and as political units such as towns and counties and school districts and irrigation districts and so on. The way to get things done in Washington is to know the right people to see and to be in a position to ask for what you want.

It has always been that way to a certain extent, but in these days of a government of men rather than a government of laws it is ten times more so than ever before in our history.

Considering the number of things that people want in this day and age from the federal government, it is really a little surprising that members of congress have any time at all left over for the business of making their country's laws.

FIFTH ARMY FRONT REMAINS SAME

ROME, March 20 (AP)—Patrols raided German lines in strength along the entire fifth army front yesterday while artillery hammered enemy outposts and communications routes, but there were no substantial changes in positions, allied headquarters announced today.

An American patrol drove into Latorre and engaged the Germans there in sharp fighting before retiring. Enemy reconnoitering parties approached the central sector of the allied line below Bologna, but were repulsed after a brief skirmish.

Eighth army infantry engaged the enemy in a see-saw struggle for possession of German positions on both sides of the Senio river southwest of Cotignola. The allied troops assaulted German positions along the Gaiana bank on both sides of the Senio river Sunday afternoon and gained the eastern slope, but were forced to withdraw by a German night attack.
