Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY
JUST the end of a battle, with more to go. That was our feeling about the forthcoming victory in Europe after we heard Major General Julian C. Smith in a straight-from-the-shoulder talk about the bitter Pacific struggle yesterday.

He made it clear that the military leadership of the allies must consider European victory just the end of one phase of global war. Inasmuch as military success requires a striving, determined home front, it follows that we civilians, too, must look upon the situation in the same light.

Channeled Enthusiasm
It is possible that there may not be any one day that marks the clear-cut finish of the European war. American military leadership is looking to an imposed surrender of the Germans brought about by a junction of the allies in the west and the Russians moving in from the east.

Sunshine Friend
ARGENTINA'S tardy declaration of a state of war against the axis gets a reaction in this country that is more cynical than enthusiastic.

U. S. Court Coming
IT is to be hoped that the forthcoming session of the U. S. district court here, called for trial of a number of Marine Barracks land condemnation cases, will be the precedent for other sessions of federal court at Klamath Falls.

News Behind the News
By PAUL MALLON
WASHINGTON, March 28—Yesterday I set down the apparently false accusation made by the government-directed soviet press, first against the Vatican and then Walter Lipp-mann, the American writer, for equally apparent diplomatic purposes.

The Vatican had been labeled "pro-fascist" and Lippmann practically a pro-German, in which I thought was an effort to turn the American public against our own best democratic interests, and in promotion of Russian interests and communism.

Contrary Philosophy
WASHINGTON, Jefferson, and Lincoln founded and evolved a democratic capitalist system, and Marx developed the contrary and opposite philosophy to abolish both capitalism and democracy, and promote the communist and socialist systems of government.

man, the American writer, for equally apparent diplomatic purposes. The Vatican had been labeled "pro-fascist" and Lippmann practically a pro-German, in which I thought was an effort to turn the American public against our own best democratic interests, and in promotion of Russian interests and communism.

The first paragraph was a truthful assertion that the Russians are great fighters who should be greatly respected by all Americans. The second said the Russian government and system was pretty good, too, and, in the third paragraph came the real propaganda pay-dirt—the flat assertions that the ideals of our constitution were the same as the Russian constitution.

The truth, of course, is Karl Marx inspired the soviet constitution, and he is about as far from Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln as it is possible to get.

But the truth shows an even greater disparity. Russia has a constitution which says many things which might sound to someone born yesterday as somewhat like ours. It provides a president and two houses of congress, and free and secret elections, for instance.

But we know Moscow has announced figures claiming there were 8000 church, mosques and synagogues in the country in 1941 as compared with 9000 newspapers in that not especially literate country, and 144,000 portable libraries.

There then is a contrast of the propaganda developing in the new world we are entering: the soviet press directed by the government to attack the pope after he advocated democratic freedom for the individual, the basic Christian concept, and Mr. Lippmann because he did not wish to deliver Germany into a Russian sphere of influence; and our own contrasting tendency, exhibited in the case of this extreme American editorial, to try to glamorize Russia as a democracy bent on perpetuating the Washington-Jefferson-Lincoln ideals.

We will be taken in if we keep on these lines. We will deceive our people and ourselves into embracing first thoughts and then policies which few of our people want, or would take under proper labels.

What should we do about it? Probably a great many things to offset, destroy the effects of, and answer deceptive and untruthful propaganda of all kinds and to develop a constant truth.

Ceilings Apply To State, County

WHEAT
CHICAGO, March 28 (AP)—Short covering and commission house buying boosted grain futures markets as much as a cent today, but after the early flurry of buying the volume dwindled and yesterday's finish. The early rise was based mostly on short covering prompted by house passage of legislation increasing the borrowing power and extending the life of the commodity credit corporation and continuing subsidy payments to flour millers. The late trade was extremely dull. At the finish wheat was up to 1/2¢ higher than yesterday's close. May $1.60 1/2. Corn was up 1/4¢ to 11¢. Soybeans were off 1/4¢ to 11¢. May $6 3/4. Rice was down 1/4¢ to 11¢. May $11.00 1/2.
