FBI Agents Capture Badly Wanted Man Near Eugene

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The FBI today announced the arrest of Randal O. Throneberry, described by the bureau early this year as one of the 15 most sought-after criminals in the United States.

Throneberry, arrested here on a local farm where he had worked since early in February, was charged with evasion of the selective service law, but will be taken to Portland and then to Denver where he will face a murder charge along with his brother, who is believed to be held at Denver.

When arrested, Throneberry was working on a large Eugene, Ore., ranch under the name of John Huston Clark. Fellow employees and the ranch owner described him as a quiet, diligent worker, who went to town only rarely for diphtheria shots for his two and five-year-old sons.

Throneberry, arrested in the slaying of Ethelbert Purdy, a shepherd, escaped from a Colorado prison on October 8, 1943, before his trial. He has been fleeing ever since, the FBI said.

His brother, O. B. Throneberry, was sentenced to from 35 years to life imprisonment for the same slaying.

Portland, Ore., March 30 (AP)—The boast of Randal O. Throneberry that "nobody could ever find me in Oregon" led to his capture on a peaceful Oregon farm after a 17-month search.

Today's Roundup by MALCOLM EPLEY. WASHINGTON, March 30—Mr. Roosevelt's request for power to cut the tariff another 50 per cent (making 75 per cent in all from the 1934 rates) fell on hard congressional soil.

News Behind the News by PAUL MALLON. A HOPEFUL piece of domestic news this week was the Washington, D. C. story announcing the preparation of a "peace charter" for labor and management.

Some—not alone the republicans—say it represents practically free trade and nowhere near the actual difference between the cost of production at home and abroad—which is what a good tariff rate should be.

Wallace Theory. NOW the New Deal argument, used by Mr. Roosevelt, is the familiar one heard often from his new Commerce Secretary Wallace, that as we are a creditor country and all the world owes us (indeed, far more than it can ever repay) the tariff theory must be abandoned, at least 75 per cent abandoned.

Bridges Favors Proposed Charter. SAN FRANCISCO, March 30 (AP)—Harry Bridges has recommended to the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CIO), in biennial convention here, that it endorse the "new charter for labor and management" signed by leaders of the CIO, AFL and U. S. chamber of commerce.

The charter supports private property, free choice of action and a private competitive system of competitive capitalism. It is double-barreled, as it should be, in behalf of both labor and management. It recognizes the responsibility and right of management to direct the operations of a business or industrial enterprise, and it supports the right of labor to organize and engage in collective bargaining.
