Today's Roundup

THIS department, which began years ago to discuss the city-county jail idea for Klamath Falls, is thrilled by the report that the officials of the two political units are actually making progress in the direction of just such a project.

They say they may be able to work out the financial angle without a bond issue, resorting instead to current budgeting and using some funds already in reserve.

In making their plans, we hope the emphasis is not placed entirely on jail. It seems to us it should be a city-county law enforcement building, with the jail just a part of a setup that will provide offices, jointly used identification laboratory, radio, and other facilities.

Everybody is well aware there is considerable duplication in law enforcement work, and that jurisdictional questions occasionally arise.

Modoc Point

KLAMATH civic workers are determined there won't be a repetition of the strange circumstances that surrounded the launching of the SS Klamath Falls last year at a Portland shipyard.

When it was recently disclosed that the SS Modoc Point is to be launched on May 5 at the Swan Island yard, the community advertising committee of the chamber of commerce got busy with offers to work up a program that would have something to do with the significance of the name of the boat.

Progress has been made and the committee has assurances that if it can develop a satisfactory program it can take over on that occasion.

Modoc Point is one of the interesting historical and geographical features of Klamath county. The name tracks back to events preceding the Modoc Indian war of 1872-73.

Some of the Klamaths used to call Modoc Point (the mountain) Nilakla, which is Klamath for dawn or sunrise. It was also known among Indians as Ktiti and Muyan.

Local people may not all know that the Indian service has erected on Modoc Point the highest lookout tower in the entire Indian forest service in the U. S.

Modoc Point has been in the news just this week with what may prove to be a significant industrial story. The Lamme Lumber company for many years operated a mill there, but recently dismantled the plant.

REPRESENTATIVE TALKS IN MERRILL

MERRILL—State Representative Henry Semon, guest speaker at the Merrill Service club luncheon Tuesday, spoke on work of the legislature just completed, mentioning the relief appropriation increase from $27 million to $32 million, stating that the increase is necessary to care for old age pensions and other forms of assistance.

He discussed the measures that will be submitted this fall to the people of Oregon in a special election, particularly the bill he introduced which would make possible the appropriation of $10 million in the next two years, $4 million to be used for the expansion of Oregon universities and colleges, the expansion program to involve study courses for returning veterans of World War II.

Representative Semon favors also a measure proposed for a 2 cent tax per package on cigarettes, this tax to be allotted to elementary schools over the state.

Present for the meeting were two service men, former Merrill residents, PFC William Poe, former president of the service club, who has been stationed at Anchorage, Alaska.

THERE'S a growing suspicion that some of the beef on the black market may be horse meat. . . . Which gives new meaning to that talk about the "old nag around the kitchen". . . . It is reported that every 30th man among German war prisoners at Camp White can speak English. . . . He learned it in preparation for the German occupation of Britain and the U. S. . . . As it turned out, the occupation was limited to Camp White, the old CCC camp at Tulelake, and other spots where the occupiers are kept inside a high fence. . . . It seems to us it's just about time to bring an end to re-hashes of the legislative session.

News Behind the News

WASHINGTON, April 6—The happiest hopes of the oppositionists to the manpower bill was to get a majority of 10 votes against it at most. Yet they got 17.

The measure had been painfully thrust through the house by a margin of only seven votes under the utmost pressure from Mr. Roosevelt.

The unexpected senate strength can be traced to reports the senators received from back home when voting was delayed over the weekend by the administration in expectation of mustering votes.

The reaction from the country was unfavorable to the confused conglomeration of ideas proposing compulsion in the freezing of labor, and the administration lost ground by the delay.

The public failed to respond warmly to the idea of imposing compulsory work upon the people now at the very verge of victory on the most dangerous front, especially as the victory is being won by voluntary democratic production methods.

Senators Suspicious

The Byrnes report left the impression with senators that the administration wanted compulsion to keep men at work for the Japanese front, but many a senator suspected with Taft of Ohio it was intended to be used on into the peace.

From within the house ways and means committee, considering Mr. Roosevelt's plan to cut tariffs about 50 per cent, come reports that this also is doomed. My information is the committee is likely to report out a bill continuing the existing reciprocal tariff power another year or two—but without authority to whack the tariff more than the 50 per cent already accomplished.

Also Menaced

The Bretton Woods agreements also are in some danger, according to administration authorities, who want most ardently to see the bank and foreign exchange plans both adopted. At least the coming Economic Generalissimo Fred Vinson who is to take Byrnes' place was freed wagging his head dubiously about them the other day.

The main portions of the Roosevelt postwar program thus far presented, have run into a land-mine area in congress which is likely to blow it to bits.

What worries the administration is lack of popular enthusiasm for these prospects. A public impetus necessary to sway congress against its natural wishes is lacking.

The foreign policy has been running into similar troubles which have cast doubts upon its fulfillment. Enthusiasm for it is not noticeably running at a high pitch.

I would not be surprised if considerable reshuffling of the whole postwar deck develops. The trend we have been following may be sharply altered in directions not yet fully discernible.

It will not be toward free trade and compulsions on the home front. Nor is it tending toward what was known as isolationism on the international front. But it is developing against international spending (as per Bretton Woods). This is as much as can be seen so far. We are still being directed by events beyond reckoning.

80,000 SOFT COAL MINERS HOLD WALKOUT WASHINGTON, April 3 (AP)—More than 80,000 of the nation's soft coal miners were reported absent from the pits today despite a union-management agreement to temporarily extend their now expired contract until May 1. Estimates of mines closed by workers' absences ranged as high as 95 per cent in the Alabama area. More than 30,000 miners were reported idle in the Pennsylvania fields. The shutdowns occurred in spite of telegrams sent by United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis to the union's local leaders forming them that the contract negotiation period had been extended and asking the members to remain at work. "The message of the miners' committee is the message of the miners' committee," said a spokesman.

Christian Science in the Light of Reason

In response to the article of April 4, in your column "Telling the Editor," in which the writer stated that the Christian Scientists "take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal life," I wish to relate a few facts.

1. Christian Scientists (so called) deny the truth of the Bible by characterizing certain parts as false—the exact opposite of truth. (Read Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, page 321, line 26; 522:3; 522:20; 522:24; 32; 533:15).

2. They prove their lack of belief in the Bible by sundry statements in direct conflict therewith. (44:20; 46:21; 3. They assail certain parts of the Bible with irrelevant and sarcastic ridicule. (53:32; 533:15).

4. They prove their unbelief in the Scriptures by teaching that Jesus did not die. "They saw him after his crucifixion, and learned that he had not died." (48:2). Christian Science arrogantly and unblushingly denies the fact of all facts, without which modern Christianity is as impotent and as purposeless as is the derelict in mid-ocean amidst the blackness of night and the fury of the storm without rudder, chart or compass.

5. Christian Scientists do credit the Bible by making most of their quotations from Mrs. Eddy's book. 6. They discredit the Bible by teaching that sickness is only a delusion. "One disease is as much a delusion as another." (348:9). The Bible refers to many who had fevers, leprosy, etc.

7. They teach that sin, sickness and death are not facts. "Sin, sickness and death are not facts. They are not ideas, but illusions." (283:8). In direct contradiction to this the Apostle John said: "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us." (1 Jn. 1:8). 8. Christian Scientists teach the non-existence of matter. (421:18).

9. They deny the reality of universally obvious phenomena. In lieu of these facts I ask the intelligent reader to decide whether or not this sect is scientific or whether it believes the Inspired Word of God.
