Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY
THIS column and this newspaper participate today in the solemn, world-wide tribute paid to the memory of Franklin Delano Roosevelt...

The mighty impact of his death exemplifies the position of vast influence he was given in world affairs. It was given to him, as to few men, to write world history. Mr. Roosevelt was spared to see the approach of the victory toward which he had led this nation in the greatest war in its history...

A New President
THE awesome responsibilities of the presidency passed yesterday to the hands of Harry Truman, and it is well at this time that citizens express to Mr. Truman their confidence and their support...

Have Better Chance
IN the larger assembly, even with Russia's three votes to our one, we would appear to have a better chance of a majority, but the assembly is not to make the important decisions, and the Russian position puts entire responsibility in the council, as indeed does the text of the agreement...

News Behind the News
WASHINGTON, April 13.—The sub-surface tentacles which are somewhat confusedly directing events leading up to the San Francisco conference, seem to me discernible as follows: The Russians are determined to get a big nations' world order. Stalin is irrevocably committed to empire building...

COLLEGE PRESIDENT TO VISIT IN BASIN

MALIN—Dr. Morgan S. Odell, president of Lewis and Clark college, Portland, will visit churches and high schools of the Klamath basin this weekend, speaking in the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning, April 15. He will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Street, Tulelake, for dinner prior to meeting with those living in the Tulelake community at 6:30 Sunday evening in the Tulelake Community Presbyterian church...

Klamath's Yesterdays

From the files—40 years ago and 10 years ago. From the Klamath Republican April 13, 1905. The Klamath Falls Light and Water company has received a notice from the district army engineers office warning it not to divert water from Link river without permission. The company is constructing a pipe line to its new light plant. W. B. Snider of Lakeview passed through here en route to Portland to represent his lodge at the state IOOF convention. From the Klamath Herald April 13, 1935. Some 50 Rotarians and Rotary-Anns of Klamath Falls visited Alturas yesterday. It was disclosed this week that the interior department has ordered the federal land office transferred from Lakeview to Klamath Falls. A hen's egg contains 66 per cent water, 10 per cent fat, 13 per cent protein, and 11 per cent minerals.

NO PLEA
BOISE, Idaho, April 12 (AP)—The Idaho board of pardons unanimously turned down an application for a pardon made by Abraham Rich, the state penitentiary blacksmith. Rich wasn't around to plead his cause—he walked away from his cell a month ago and hasn't been heard from since.

termination to the cause of the smaller powers as the basic guarantee of the Atlantic Charter, the four freedoms and the whole theory of the war. Our government initiated the pledge against territorial aggrandizement. It is carrying the policy to such extent that it will not even take the defense bases our navy wants for postwar, bases we conquered, but proposes that these be held in an international trusteeship by the new League of Nations. As a consequence of this policy, the Philippines already are asking their independence for next year, instead of the year following. So we are gathering the small nations into the fold of the new world order at San Francisco, largely on our own leading initiative, while both the British and Russians display their lack of enthusiasm for the importance of our effort by sending ambassadors of lower rank than the other delegates.

Lean With Russians
FRANKLY, the British appear in all ways to lean toward the Russian side of this basic world proposition. They are an empire already. Early in this war Churchill made plain that he did not take leadership in this war to preside over the dismemberment of the British Empire. The British believe in empire as a way of life. The French and Dutch also have empires. intend to take them back, firmly believe in them. Thus we are entering into a new world in which we alone (unless we include China) among the major powers really believe in the Atlantic Charter doctrine and insist upon practicing it. The question is how this cleavage will work out? Can we successfully conclude the Dumbarton-San Francisco treaties under these circumstances, and get them securely ratified? If we do, can we then live in friendly peace under them? Or is it time for alteration or a change in our policy? How much? Should we get military bases? Keep the Philippines? Close more tightly in upon Latin America as is Russia upon Poland, etc? There are some authorities who think our position is sound and can be permanently maintained. Certainly our stand should gather the small nations toward our side, or at least those left loose. We could make quite a formidable world bloc of small nations behind us, perhaps. But if we must fight on the council for our position, we will certainly be on the losing side. There, Russia, Britain and France could control the course. China and the United States would no doubt be a minority.

Have Better Chance
IN the larger assembly, even with Russia's three votes to our one, we would appear to have a better chance of a majority, but the assembly is not to make the important decisions, and the Russian position puts entire responsibility in the council, as indeed does the text of the agreement. Yet win or lose, we would, by continuance of this policy, continue to stand for our ideals. I suspect this is the basis upon which the administration now is moving toward and beyond San Francisco. To me personally, however, it seems a change of front is necessary in the interests of national security and maintenance of our now existing primary authority as a world power. I think there is an essential and somewhat suicidal weakness in the extremity we are pursuing, renouncing all hopes of getting anything out of the war, delivering bases to an international trusteeship, leaving the Philippines open to the next invader, etc. It should not be necessary to renounce our ideals and the Atlantic Charter, in order to protect ourselves and maintain our interests to the fullest as the others are doing. We could have a temporary postwar policy based on national security with the promise to moderate it and create maximum freedoms for all small people as soon as world conditions warrant. For instance we might be able to maintain the Philippines a lot freer under our wing, than by letting her fall under some other wing. If we need Iceland, for defense or even for commercial purposes in a world of empires, we should have it. We are not nazis. There is nothing onerous about our democratic influence. Perhaps the extension of our power democratically might well save the world from worse things. The tentacles of these facts, at least, are laying hold of events, and guiding the course of world development.

REVIVAL SERVICES CONTINUE AT CHURCH

Revival services at the Apostolic Faith church, 228 North 8th, are continuing. Sermons preached by Evangelists R. Robert Crawford and Allen L. Crabtree have urged the people of Klamath Falls to prepare for postwar conditions by building up homes of faith and prayer. The Rev. Crawford holds the distinction of being a real "Sky Pilot," having learned to fly in 1920 and made the first transcontinental airplane trip from Tulsa, Okla., to Portland. This was in his own plane which he used for a number of years in distributing literature and filling ministerial appointments on the coast. His experiences were interesting, including the time when he ran into a storm over the Siskiyou and made a forced landing, through a tiny break in the clouds, at Mt. Shasta. Evangelist Crabtree tells of the conversion of his father in the Kentucky hills and of the simple, humble living of the mountain folk and of their trust in God. The Sunday services are at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., with week night meetings Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 8 o'clock. The custom of no collections has prevailed since the beginning of the Apostolic Faith work, in 1906.

Kiwianians Welcome School Musicians

A rousing ovation was given Klamath Union high school music groups when they appeared at Thursday's luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club. Kiwanians got to their feet after the appearances of the concert band and the a cappella choir directed by Andrew Loney. The students presented the entire program.

REV. MORTON TO ASSUME PASTOR

MALIN—Rev. Glenn A. Morton, former pastor of the Idaho Presbyterian church, Clatskanie, who has accepted the invitation of the Malin Presbyterian church, has arrived with his family to make his home in Malin. He moved into the newly erected manse this week. His wife, Mrs. Morton, and their two daughters, Lois, a university student, and Esther, a teacher, will join them during the summer. Rev. Morton comes highly recommended and is particularly interested in the young people of the community. A reception was held in honor, to be held in the church Friday evening, April 12. Plans for future services of the church will be announced.

ADVENTISTS TO RAISE ADDED SUM

In addition to its regular budget of $11,000,000, the Seventh Day Adventist church has undertaken to raise an additional sum of $5,000,000 for the restoration of its churches and institutions ruined during the present war. Four million dollars of this fund was obtained by the denomination's institutions and the remaining $1,000,000 was taken in a single church offering February 3. Latest reports from that offering advised that $831,131, is already in the treasury and the 95 churches of the Oregon conference were the first to reach the goal with a single donation of $85,000.
