Upon a vacancy in the presidential chair, an everybody knows, the vice president steps up.

A principal function of the vice president is the presidency of the senate. Article I of the constitution provides that the senate shall choose other officers, and also a president pro tempore, who will serve in the case of absence of the vice president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States. Senator Kenneth D. McKellar of Tennessee is the president pro tempore of the senate, and is now its regular presiding officer.

That's the story. Inquiries have still been coming in, and we repeat it here to clear it up for those who missed yesterday's story.

'TIS TIME FOR REST
(In Memory of Franklin D. Roosevelt)

Oh weary hands that all life's day
Have sought to labor hard and long,
Now softly falls the twilight gray—
The bells are rung for evening's song.

An hour ago the golden sun
Sank slowly down into the west—
Oh weary hands your toil is done,
'Tis time for rest—sweet rest.

Oh weary feet, that many a mile
Have trudged along a stony way,
At last they reach the trusting stile
No longer fear to go astray.

The gentle bending, rustling trees
Rock the young birds within their nest,
And softly sings the quiet breeze,
'Tis time for rest—sweet rest.

Oh weary eyes from which the tears
Fell many a time like thunder-rain,
Oh weary heart that through all the years
Has beat with such yearning restless pain—
Tonight forget the stormy strife
And know what Heaven shall send is best,
Lay down the tangled web of life
'Tis time for rest—sweet rest.

TEEN-AGERS PICKED UP IN STOLEN CAR

Four teen-agers, attempting to outwit a Keno service station operator, landed in the Klamath county jail early Thursday night.

The quartet, including Donald LeRoy Fox, 19; Harry George Shaw, 18; Floyd Vernon Martin, 18, and Floyd Ray Hilton, 17, are being held for California authorities. Sheriff Lloyd L. Low said the youths were en route to Seattle to rejoin the merchant marine and were traveling in a stolen car. All four waived extradition.

According to the sheriff, the driver ordered his gas tank filled at the Keno station and then asked for oil. When the operator left the pump the car sped away. The operator called Medford and three state police officers and a deputy sheriff halted the car at Pinchurst. The boys admitted having successfully used the gasoline stunt in California.

Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

WHEN a piece of big news breaks, such as occurred Thursday afternoon, everybody on the telephone.

The local telephone reaction to reports that President Roosevelt had died near-block in the central office of the telephone office. The crescendo came down in about an hour, but for the rest of the day the system was extraordinarily busy.

In the back room of the exchange building here, the change boards each dialling records each dialling with a click. Beginning before 3 o'clock Thursday morning, the clicking mounted steadily, and men working there, who hadn't heard the news, came into the front office to find out what had happened.

Telephone people call it a "central office block" when the volume of calls becomes so great that the system simply will not carry it. It didn't quite happen Thursday, but it did.

The War Today

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
(Substituting for DeWitt MacKenzie)

PRESIDENT TRUMAN and Secretary Stettinius have proclaimed "no change" in American foreign policy. There is one place where they may have a hard time making the proclamation stick.

Of all his personal diplomacy, President Roosevelt's policy regarding Russia probably depended more directly on him than any other. Labels are likely to prove inaccurate. It may not be strictly correct to term the Roosevelt Russian policy as "co-operation at any cost," but it was very close to that and also was probably the foreign policy which drew more criticism than any other.

Entirely aside from those who always want to "get tough" when anyone fails to abide strictly by what Americans consider their country's ideals, there has been a more temperate expression of fear that by yielding to Russia on certain points affecting small nations, we have been storing up a whirlwind.

Held In Check

THE "no compromise on virtue" attitude probably has been held in check, to a great extent, by widespread knowledge that Roosevelt was far better informed on the subject than anyone else, that his motives were unquestionable, and that there was no course except to trust him.

Roosevelt obviously thought that the maintenance of machinery for co-operation between the Big Three was more important than anything else. He not only seemed to feel that in yielding now he could hope for enlightened changes later, but he also acted personally as a moderator between Joseph Stalin and Winston Churchill, the equator between what almost amounts to two poles.

MEMORIAM: F.D.R.

I looked at men through tear-wet eyes,
As though I knew not what to say—
My grief too young to realize,
Today, my friend
Has passed away.

I hear your voice across the sea
Say, "He's our leader! Come what may—
He'll push us through to victory!"
In service, too,
He passed away.

The nation stands in leaden grief,
And silent tribute comes to pay,
In memory of him "Our chief—"
Our friend this day
Has passed away.

A voice is still'd. A tortured sphere
Gives pause from out its thundering day—
To duly honor and revere
A friend of man,
Who passed away. L.V.S.

Why They Call

WHY can only guess what people call about under such circumstances. We know here the Herald and News office that hundreds of people called here to verify the news they heard by radio, through other telephone lines, and on the street.

Many people probably call relatives and friends to give them news they think might have been heard, or simply to discuss the significance of the development with them. Everybody, at heart, is a news gatherer and a purveyor.

Self-Sufficiency Policy

WHETHER Roosevelt was right remains to be seen. He was conducting a campaign something similar to the one against isolationism in the United States. Russia's policy, at best, is self-sufficiency against any enemy. Roosevelt could hope that once she felt herself out of danger she would co-operate in eliminating danger for all, and after that she might relinquish some of the hedgemony over her neighbors that she now feels necessary.

Those who disagree fear any compromise or principle, lest Russia, learning what she can do by flexing her muscles, become insatiable. Truman and Stettinius cannot expect, for a time at least, to enjoy the same public confidence regarding foreign affairs as did the Roosevelt-Hull team. Those who disagreed with Roosevelt, but felt incompetent to go to the mat with him and his unique store of information, may now be expected to become more insistent.

"No change" may be a diligently guarded watchword. Whether it can be accomplished is another matter.
