APPEAL SENT TO COURTS ON LAND EXCHANGE

Copies of appeal on the decision of the general land office commissioner in connection with Shevlin-Hixon land exchange, were sent Thursday to all county courts in the state of Oregon, Oregon representatives in congress, and to the commissioner.

Appeal was based on the ground that the attempted exchange and acquisition of properties involved, "is not in the public interest."

The following errors were set forth in the appeal:

That the seven points of protest submitted by Klamath county were never adequately, or in any degree, considered by the commissioner.

That this appellant, and appellant Lake county, were assured at a meeting attended by the forest service on January 17, 1945, that an open hearing would be had upon the protest, and that Klamath and Lake counties would be given an opportunity to be present, and to present any and all witnesses in support of the protest; that no such hearing was ever held, and this appellant never given such opportunities to present evidence in support of its protest.

That the commissioner in his decision herein merely finds that the protest of this appellant is not founded in fact, without having the facts of appellant before him, and without having accorded to this appellant an opportunity to produce such facts.

That neither the forest service, nor Shevlin-Hixon company has ever served upon this appellant any brief, argument or evidence, in support of the proposed exchange to show that such exchange was for the benefit of the public interests.

That no evidence was ever presented to the commissioner to indicate any basis for a decision that the contemplated transfer is in the interest of public interests, and of public benefit.

That the commissioner has given no indication as to what public interests may be benefited or what evidence or facts support such conclusion.

The appeal is signed by members of the Klamath county court, and Clarence A. Humble and J. Hawkins Napier, attorneys for appellant, Klamath and Lake counties.

INFORMATION ABOUT MISSING MAN HEARD

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Muskrat, formerly of Klamath Agency and now at Stewart, Nev., have received further information from the war department concerning their son, 1st Lt. Harvey Robert Muskrat, reported missing January 28, 1945, over Germany.

In a message from the notification branch of the service, the Muskrats were told that Lt. Muskrat's plane, "Miss America," on which he served as navigator on the B-24 Liberator, participated in a bombardment mission to Dortmund, Germany, on January 28. The bomber had dropped bombs on the Dortmund marshalling yards when it sustained damage from enemy anti-aircraft fire. Two parachutes were observed to emerge from the plane and when last seen, the craft was under control.

In the meantime, next-of-kin of men on the bomber have written the Muskrats and advised that five of the crew were taken prisoners by the Germans, including the pilot.

SAM HAYES TO SPEAK ON WAR MEMORIAL PLAN

Sam Hayes, veteran Pacific coast newscaster, will be heard in a new role when he addresses representatives of service clubs and the chamber of commerce in Klamath Falls, May 16, in his capacity as regional adviser for the American Commission for Living War Memorials.

A luncheon for the radio newsman is planned to be given in the Willard.

Fifteen years ago on the Pacific Coast NBC network at 10 o'clock one Sunday night, a young man stepped to the microphone and said, "And a good, good evening, ladies and gentlemen." That was the birth of the first regional 10 o'clock news of the air in the west.

That young man was Sam Hayes. Since then he has spoken 15,000,000 news words over radio transmitters in this state. Today he is pouring 70,000 words weekly into network microphones.

Sam Hayes has a personal message for the Pacific coast audience, from the American Commission for Living Memorials. This is a non-profit organization, working in cooperation with the National Committee on Physical Fitness of the Federal Security Commission, and has been approved by the American Legion and other veterans' organizations.

Hayes is now on a tour of Pacific coast states that will take him to every major city in these states, helping communities select memorials in honor of its war heroes.
