

BANKS AID IN BOND SALES, SAYS GAMBLE

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—Treasury threw a big boost to the nation's banks today when R. Gamble, national war director, said the banks and their officers and employees are taking part in the sale of war bonds in the 7th War Loan on a scale never before attempted in a bond drive.

Before the drive ends on June 30, he said, most of the 34,000,000 war bonds having checking depositors will have been solicited personally through their connections. They are asked to buy extra bonds from their deposits.

Several large savings banks, he said, are recommending the first time that war bonds be purchased not only out of income but also by drawing from savings funds.

Drawals from the Chicago Clearing Association have been made and if a savings deposit is withdrawn during the drive, May 14-June 30, these funds are invested directly in war bonds through the war bank, no interest will be paid up to July 1.

Many other clearing associations are taking similar action.

How the war loan today: $1,748,000,000 collected from individual investors of which $1,198,000,000 is the sale of E-bonds. Individual sales now are 25 percent of the $7,000,000,000 E-bond sales are 30 percent of the $4,000,000,000.
