Survivor Of Iwo Jima Flag Raising Returns To Duty

WASHINGTON, May 25 (AP)—An American Indian, one of the three survivors of the historic flag-raising on Iwo Jima, is being returned to overseas duty—at his own request.

He is marine PFC Ira H. "Chief" Hayes, 22, of Bapchule, Ariz. He is shown second from the left, with rifle slung over shoulders in the noted photo by Joe Rosenthal of The Associated Press.

Hayes, who already has served two tours of duty overseas, didn't want to leave his outfit, the 28th regiment, in the first place. For that reason he was reluctant to acknowledge his role in the flag-raising when questioned in the field.

But he and the other two survivors were brought home by order of the late President Roosevelt to open the 7th War
