

WAR AGENCIES FACE CUT IN YEARLY FUNDS

WASHINGTON, June 1 (AP)—The house appropriation committee today cut sharply into the 1946 fiscal year funds for a group of war-born agencies in a bill it described as "the beginning of the end" of such agencies.

With one exception, the committee trimmed budget estimates for every agency which already had been reduced by President Truman, as it sent the $769,784,850 measure to the floor for house action next week. The exception was a $325,000 allotment for operation of state marine schools, which the committee left untouched.

"This bill," the committee told the house, "marks the beginning of the end of those agencies established during the war to develop and maintain the war production machine, to furnish the necessary civilian assistance to the armed forces, and to adjust the civilian economy to wartime necessity."

Many of the domestic controls adopted during the war, the committee said, the "foreign to the American way of life" and "should be eased as rapidly as progress of the war will permit and abolished as soon as national security no longer requires them."

One war agency, the office of civilian defense, already is being liquidated, the committee pointed out, and another, the war relocation authority, soon will go out of business.

COUNTY SCHOOLS HOLD GRADUATION

Graduation ceremonies were held Thursday evening at three Klamath county schools. The smallest class in 20 years graduated at Main with only six receiving diplomas. Phil Hitchcock was the principal speaker, A. E. Street is principal of the school.

R. C. Groesbeck was the main speaker at Merrill where six students also graduated. This is also one of the smallest graduating classes in many years, according to school authorities. George Elliot is principal at Merrill.

Eighteen were graduated at Henley where John Sandmeyer, president of the Klamath county junior chamber of commerce, was guest speaker. Of those who received diplomas, eight were Bonanza students who had finished school at Henley. C. B. Howe is principal at Henley.

Stock Owners Warned Against Violations

Numerous complaints have been received from residents of suburban districts charging stock owners with allowing their stock to run at large on the public highways in violation of the herd law, according to District Attorney Clarence Humble.

Several arrests have been made by state police and the sheriff's office for violation of this law.

KLAMATH TOPS IN FAT SALVAGE DRIVE

That Klamath county far outstripped most other communities in Oregon for the month of April in the national fat salvage drive became apparent this week with the release of statewide figures on the fat saving campaign, according to Winnifred K. Gillen, Klamath county home demonstration agent and fat salvage chairman. While figures for the state as a whole showed an increase of 23,811 pounds for April, 1945, over April, 1944, the figures for Klamath county alone were more than doubled during the same period.

Klamath county patriots saved a total of 8491 pounds of waste fat and tallow in April of 1944, while in 1945 the figure jumped to 19,940 pounds. Part of the increase can be attributed to the intensive effort to collect from rural dwellers, who sometimes have large amounts of waste fats from farm slaughtering. The Oregon State college extension service has been cooperating with the state salvage committee for the past two months in this phase of the fat-saving drive.

An ever-increasing flow of used fats to receiving butcher shops is still urgently needed, Mrs. Gillen reported today. The defeat of Germany has not improved the fats and oils situation. She added that it is important that tin containers for salvaged fats be used exclusively, as there is a real danger from breakage of the glass ones.

U. S. Urged to Set Up World Libraries

PORTLAND, June 1 (AP)—A recommendation that the United States help set up libraries throughout the world, allowing recipients to choose the books, came from Carl H. Milam, a consultant at the San Francisco conference.

Milam, for 25 years executive secretary of the American Library association, noted that one-third to two-fifths of this country's cultural relations with Latin America has been through books. Several European countries, however, had sent books years before, he said.

He gave the Chinese first credit for making cultural understanding a task of the new world peace organization, since a Chinese delegate asked that "cultural and educational cooperation" be a goal at Dumbarton Oaks. The United States, because of its Pan-American program, should rate second high, Milam said.

USE OF NAZI WAR PRISONERS HIT BY BOARD

PORTLAND, Ore., June 1 (AP)—Use of German war prisoners for industrial employment after the war has been condemned as a "principle bordering on slavery" by the Oregon State Federation of Labor executive board.

The board urged the government to return all Nazi prisoners to Germany as early as practicable. Another protest was directed against importing Mexican laborers for farm and industrial work. The group also opposed a $97,000,000 congressional appropriation for vocational education, charging improper balance in aid given to academic or cultural education compared with vocational training.

The labor leaders, who began the second of three days' meetings today, endorsed both the state building fund on the June 22 special ballot and the referendum on restriction of commercial fishing in coastal streams. J. T. Marr, board secretary, was authorized to draw up a bill repealing the cigarette sales tax for the November ballot if a light June 22 vote indicates approval "is not representative of public sentiment."

Snell Bets Wallgren On War Bond Buying

SALEM, June 1 (AP)—Governor Earl Snell today bet Governor Mon C. Wallgren of Washington that Oregon state employees would buy more bonds per capita during the 7th war loan drive than would Washington state employees.

Governor Snell, in a telegram to Wallgren, said that if the Oregon employees lost, he would give Wallgren a personally-conducted tour of Portland shipyards, and give a banquet for Wallgren and for the executive committee of Washington state employees. "Do you accept the challenge, and what's your inducement?" Governor Snell asked.

LIONS FEATURE TRIPLE-HEADER

A triple-header was featured at the meeting of the Lions club on Tuesday, when three speakers addressed the members of the club.

State Representative Henry Semon spoke particularly on the 10 million dollar building fund and cigarette tax, stressing the need of passage of both bills to appropriate money for the building of state institutions and buildings of higher education.

Rollin Cantrall spoke in regard to the city charter, emphasizing its antiquity. He also spoke in favor of the repeal of section 84 of the charter pertaining to filling of vacancies supplied by members of the city council, and of the charter that is to be submitted for vote in regard to a sewage and drainage system. He expressed the need for new sewage facilities, especially in Mills addition.

Alfred D. Collier addressed the group in favor of the proposed city-county jail, stating that when it is developed, much better service and economy may be rendered by the proposed consolidation.

Vern Moore, chairman of the day, made a final report on the united clothing drive, stating that 62,000 pounds of baled clothing had been donated, enough to fill two freight cars.

The results of the clothing drive were in excess of 50 per cent above the budget of 40,000 pounds. Moore wished to thank the public for their cooperation in the drive.

Ray Ward was appointed chairman by President Paul Skeen, for the coming installation dinner for officers to be held sometime this month.

SLAUGHTER PERMIT DEADLINE SET HERE

Farmers who slaughter meat for sale, transfer or gift, or expect to do so, are urged by Percy Murray, chairman of the local OPA board, to file an application for a permit at once with the local board.

After the July 1 deadline, farmers will lose their right to register, Murray emphasized. He pointed out that class 3 farm slaughterers who did not apply by May 13 will not sell or transfer meat until their applications are in, and that farmers should not put off meeting this requirement any longer, thereby losing the chance of getting a license or permit.

Murray explained that class 3 slaughterers include persons who "live on and operate a farm and slaughter, or had slaughtered for them, any kind of livestock from which they sold or transferred during 1944, or during a 12-month period from January 1, 1944 to March 31, 1945, not more than 8,000 pounds of meat."

Farmers who delivered no meat or less than 400 pounds in 1944 may obtain a permit to deliver up to 400 pounds from Mrs. Phil Schroeder, food clerk at the board office on 430 Main.

Murray pointed out that no limitations are placed on slaughter for home consumption.

SUPERVISOR HERE ON CENSUS WORK

John Kellak, area supervisor for the state's agricultural census, is here from Salem and met with other area supervisors in the office of R. L. Ackerman, Klamath supervisor in the Medical Dental building Thursday.

Eugene Sullivan, Northern California-Nevada area supervisor, and Regional Director Earl Kramer of Rocky mountain, Pacific coast states and Texas were present at the meeting.

Actual enumeration for Oregon farms and acreage and special products started in January, 1945, and is almost completed.

Kellak works out of the office of commerce in Washington, D. C.

Only two counties are left on the re-check program to complete the count for central Oregon. They are Gilliam and Wheeler counties.

Every five years the agriculture check is made on total farms and acreage in each state. Completed 1945 check will be compared with 1935 and 1940 counts and sent in to be tabulated in Washington. The report then be released from Washington.
