Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

TOO much "overhead irrigation" may cut 1945 crop production in the Klamath area, but don't let yourself be carried away with bearish sentiment. Crops that have been lost before have sold for several million dollars in the fall.

EPLEY

However, it is plain that the persistent May rains "didn't do the potato farmers any good." They badly disrupted the planting season. There was some loss of seed, and delay in planting may reduce the yield unless there is an unusually long growing season in the autumn.

The area seems to be spotted with good and bad individual situations. Some farmers find seed in the ground in good condition and the crop coming along. Others haven't finished planting.

Whatever losses there may be in potatoes and onions are likely to be partially offset by extremely favorable conditions on dry lands and pastures, due to that same "overhead irrigation" that made it a nasty spring for irrigation farmers. Pasture and range have never been better. Dry land farmers, who were looking forward to a scanty season six weeks ago, now find their crops in exceptionally fine shape—so good that there will be excellent yields regardless of how dry the season may be from here on out.

And so it goes. Farmers seem to view the general situation optimistically or pessimistically according to their individual situations. Those, as we have said, are spotted. So is sentiment over the outlook.

As for us, we were sufficiently optimistic today to break out last year's straw hat.

Paper

WE have received at least half a dozen announcements from the department of the interior telling us that Goodrich M. Lineweaver has been appointed director of the branch of operation and maintenance. Today, we received another, along with comment which Reclamation Commissioner Bashore made to Secretary Ickes about Goodrich M. Lineweaver.

It is our wish at this time to report that we are fully convinced that Goodrich M. Lineweaver is the new director of o. and m. We also wish to point out that there is a paper shortage, and to suggest that if Mr. Ickes and Mr. Bashore and their aides will quit writing to us and others about Mr. Lineweaver's appointment, maybe enough paper can be saved to allot The Herald and News an extra ton before war's end.

Suspicious

SUSPICION seems to have reached a new high hereabouts.

A feminine acquaintance of ours reports that she was seated in a local restaurant next to a man who concluded his meal and left just after she sat down. She wanted to play the juke box, and moved over into his seat to reach the nickel slot in front of that place.

When our friend got up to pay her bill, the waitress asked her why she had moved to the adjoining seat. Startled, she explained, but the waitress looked at her accusingly and remarked that the man who occupied that seat had always left a quarter tip.

"I couldn't find it there today," she added, significantly.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

NEW YORK, June 7—It was a hard-war program which Mr. Truman put before congress. Unlike Mr. Roosevelt, he told the people what was needed in men and energy to defeat the Japanese. Like Mr. Roosevelt, his primary point was that he must drive the Japs to unconditional surrender.

Criticism immediately arose, disclosing opposition on this point such as existed against Mr. Roosevelt. It is not illnatured opposition but represented a genuine view that lives can be saved by concessions.

I saw one critique which put the matter this way: Mr. Roosevelt was a frustrated person trying to imitate in this war General "Unconditional Surrender" Grant in the Civil War, who earned his nickname at Fort Donaldson but gave generous terms to Lee at Appomatox.

I think I can demonstrate, if you will read on, that any procedure except the Roosevelt-Truman policy of unconditional surrender is not only impractical but impossible—and the hope of many people to save lives by offering conditional surrender is founded on an unsound understanding of military history, particularly the same Civil War.

The Japanese war is being conducted by a ruling military clique with the full support of the people. No terms to the clique are possible because these would mean the end of the persons who operate it. Any terms offered to the people could not be effective until they overthrow the clique, and therefore the only feasible time to consider terms is after that. But when they have done this, they are prepared for unconditional or any surrender.

• • • •

Task Impossible

TRY to write some terms to encourage them to revolution and you will see how impossible is the task. One critique I saw suggested we offer the people the restoration of their emperor. What emperor, to what Japanese class and for how long? Unless Jap military might is first crushed can we possibly contrive anything to prevent another bigger Pearl Harbor 20 years hence—a successful one next time.

I do not believe wars can be ended except by unconditional surrender. The terms which Grant gave Lee at Appomatox had nothing to do with the end of the war. Further resistance proved impossible before Lee asked for terms. The South had been crushed. Indeed, it lay prostrate for nearly 50 years. Does anyone think an earlier conclusion could have been reached to the Civil War if Grant's terms had been offered earlier? It is impossible for anyone to believe that. And what were those terms? Basically that the officers could keep their sidearms and the soldiers their horses (which they owned anyway as the Confederate commissary could not furnish any) in order that they might go home to plow and to live, without requiring federal support.

You have to beat an enemy in any war in order to get any terms, then after they are beaten, you can call it whatever you like—it still is unconditional surrender. In the War of 1812 we negotiated a peace before we won the battle of New Orleans, and this fiasco resulted in terms so unpopular they could not be enforced by the victors against us.

Kidding Doesn't Help

NOTHING can be gained by kidding ourselves. Lives are saved in wars by swift, decisive action. The quicker you beat the enemy, the smaller is your casualty list. Therefore what you need is overpowering might and shrewd generalship, not peace programs. You can never save lives by selling your war aims short.

Innuendos suggest we might do well to leave Japan with something to offset prospective Russian inroads in Asia, or capture of that continent, as Europe has been considerably captured. That is not our way. This nation acts on the basis of first deciding what is right, and then pursuing it with irresistible might to final conclusion. We will gain nothing by aping European methods of doubledealing. We have done better as a nation following our own way than any of the doubledealers in all European or world history. There is greater power in the American heritage than anyone can muster. That power and heritage will survive in this world long after the doubledealers have contrived their extinction by their own artifices.

House Sticks By Expense Allowance

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—The house of representatives stuck by its self-voted $2500 annual expense allowance for members today, despite the senate's refusal to go along.

By a roll call vote, 206 to 152, the house sent the legislative appropriation bill to President Truman for his approval with the expense allowance intact. The vote came after a sharp debate over whether the house should insist on getting paid expenses or should back out of the $2500 it voted itself last month.

The expense item, one of the most controversial subjects to reach Capitol Hill in months, had frayed tempers to the point where at least one blow had been struck.

Maryland farmers trapped 275 tons of Japanese beetles in a few weeks' time in 1940.
