THE Klamath Falls Marine Barracks, in contributing mightily to the defeat of malaria and "mumu" bugs among the veterans of the Pacific fighting...

EPLEY

The great success of the program is shown by the fact that total personnel stationed here since activation is 4851. Most of these men came here with what were widely supposed to be incurable tropical diseases...

Future? THE steady reduction of personnel resulting from the success of the program has aroused some concern.

Although he is soon to return overseas and turn the command over to his successor, Colonel Van Orden is tremendously interested in the future of the Klamath installation...

There exists some opinion that if the marines do not make full use of the installation—which is still being expanded in its physical facilities—it may be taken over by some other branch of the service...

What seems to have happened is that the marine corps has been so busy with recent phases of the Pacific fighting that it has not been able to move men here at the expected rate.

Unusually large numbers of marines were called to fight on Okinawa and Iwo Jima. It appears probable that before long there will be a heavy influx of marines to the post, which will end the question as to any immediate change in the status of the place.

The pride shown by the marine corps in the excellent installation here, the fact that another half million dollars in building is just being started, and many other indications point to the improbability that the marine corps will want to jeopardize its hold on the Klamath Falls installation.

Blurb WE picked up the following blurb from the Klamath Republican edition just 40 years ago. It shows, we believe, a faith in the future of the Klamath country at that time which has proved to be well justified.

"Klamath Falls, Oregon, is the coming city of a region larger than New England. It is the county seat of Klamath county, is situated on Klamath river between two great lakes and within one-half mile of one of the most beautiful lakes in the world, Upper Klamath lake.

The country abounds in beautiful streams and lakes, all of which are swarming with mountain trout, of which it is no uncommon experience to catch a 12-pounder. It is without dispute the finest trout fishing in the world.

There is not less than 30 billion feet, board measure, in the virgin pine forests of the county untouched by the axe. The United States government is putting in the greatest irrigation works in the United States, using the natural lakes as reservoirs. Some 250,000 acres of the richest land sun ever shone upon will be under the system at a cost of $18.80 per acre, payable in ten annual installments without interest.

The Weed Lumber company is building a standard gauge railroad from Weed, near Mt. Shasta, on the Southern Pacific, into this city. The government will expend $4,500,000 in their work and the railroad $2,500,000. There will be a boom here of unusual proportions. Buy something here.

News Behind the News By PAUL MALLON WASHINGTON, June 27 — A Boston reader wrote me asking what is this thing called communism and why should it not dominate Europe.

The Russians seem to be fairly agreeable peasant people. As General Eisenhower said, they like to laugh and enjoy life. They are not a warlike people.

Yet their government comes at you with the grimmest manner ever known to man, from a hole so deeply walled with censorship that it will never let escape a single verifiable statement about itself, or even a sincere convincing statement of its purpose.

What is this thing with which we are faced? This raises the prime question of the world today, for it is the question behind war or peace, behind the strength or weakness of the San Francisco peace formula, behind prosperity and world trade, world politics—everything that is ahead of us economically, politically and spiritually.

If we are going to live in peace with this new world force, we must know it and handle it. What is it? Is it something to fear? To war against? To appease?

We cannot agree upon these answers until we can agree on what it is. We cannot handle it until we understand it.

An agreeable answer is therefore worth searching for, no matter how long, how much thought or how many columns it may eventually take.

Not Communistic System THE first penetrating glance at the Russian system will tell you it is not communism. It is not what it calls itself, because it practices the communal ownership and operation theory only on its farms.

In industry, where its government has always made greatest efforts, it follows a kind of socialism, but with "rents and profits" which are repugnant to socialism. So, it is not socialism.

Norman Thomas will be the first to tell you that. The American socialist is the bitter enemy of the Russian system, although the official title of Russia is "The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

Apparently there are all kinds of socialism, including the late Hitler kind. The word Nazi is derived from the German title of Hitler's national socialist party. Thus we have Russian, German and American socialism, the most implacable foes of each other, all swearing death against each other. This being so, what is it?

The Russians called the German socialism "fascism," and we have accepted that term, but is it correct? Fascism, in theory, is a government by classes working together. The name was derived from the Italian word "fascis," denoting a handful of sticks held together.

Whereas we elected our congressmen to represent geographical districts containing all classes of people, the fascist theory advocated a national representative setup on class lines.

Mussolini Started It This was Mussolini who instituted this at first in Italy. It did not work. He took it over as dictator on a per diem theory basis.

The parliament and councils tended to become a nonentity in a nation where terrorism restricted politics to one party of which there was one leader, and the individual was made the slave of the state.

These indisputable facts suggest our thinking even on this subject has been warped by semantics. There are all kinds of dictatorships around the world. Russia calls all except her own, fascist. This is no more accurate than to call Russia "communist."

Hitler borrowed methods from Mussolini, but not the fascist system. Indeed Hitler had a reichstag (parliament) elected by districts, but he, too, allowed only one party to exist by force, power, terrorism.

Now both Mussolini and Hitler created their systems in opposition to an older political movement in Europe, using all the same methods, but still another form of "cell" representation under a dictatorship—variously called communism, bolshevism and Marxism.

The theory of a dictatorship of the proletariat was conceived out of the German Philosopher Marx to overthrow capitalism. The Marx theory was negative and, like most philosophers, broad enough to encourage anything going its anticapitalist way.

The bolshevists favored immediate revolution for overthrow of capitalism and Lenin wrote the communal dogma, compromising the Marx bolshevism, and Stalin has compromised it further.

But the methods of secret police, absolute discipline upon the individual, no free election choices, subjection of the individual to the will of the state, purges, and singleheaded dictatorship were originated by the self-styled "communists," and taken up and imitated with equal or greater violence by Mussolini and Hitler, on the plea of suppressing communism.

I suppose you might loosely call the Russian system "Marxian bolshevism" but this would be true only to the extent to which you might say "Moses Christian" to describe Moses as a forerunner of Christ.

Less Justification INDEED, your justification would be less, because Russia has profits, interest and rents, which Marx described as the horrible habitations of capitalism.

The Russian system, therefore, is something new—without a written ideology. It is an improvisation, without fixed principles. It is a negation of all existing principles outside of Russia, but it has no affirmative doctrine, except that it control, and its control be despotic.

I would say the most accurate name for it would be the despotism of the proletariat, which is the sole distinction it enjoys from other despotism carried on by other political parties and contrary groups of politicians in other countries.

I will continue the search for accurate understanding as to exactly what is this thing with which we are faced, or think we are threatened in subsequent columns from time to time in hopes of establishing a sound theory for working with it, or alongside it, in peace.

RED CROSS TAKES OVER DISASTER AID

With the liquidation of the U. S. office of civilian defense the Klamath county chapter of the American Red Cross has reactivated its disaster committee.

Under this plan the Red Cross is responsible for food, shelter, clothing and medical care in the time of a disaster.

The chapter committee on preparedness and relief must be ready to act at all times. During an emergency, relief is administered on a mass basis while rehabilitation after the emergency is handled on an individual or family basis and is based on need arising from disaster.

The disaster committee is as follows: E. M. Thompson and L. L. Low are co-chairmen; Carl Schubert, rescue; Dr. Peter Rozendal, medical aid; Ted Reeves, food; Arnold Gralapp, shelter; Don Anderson, clothing; C. H. Foster, transportation and communications; Lena Dennis, registration and information; George McIntyre, fund raising; public information and finance; Earl Edsall, central purchase and supply; E. M. Chilcote, appraiser; Charles Seavey, E. P. Livingston, KFJI, and Malcolm Epley, communications.

Rhythm Rangers Here For Performances Cal Shrum and his Rhythm Rangers arrived here Tuesday night for their three-day engagement at the Tower theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

From Klamath the Rhythm Rangers will appear in the Golden Gate theatre in San Francisco, after which they will return to Hollywood to make another picture.

Showers Reported In Basin Grain Areas Good showers have been reported in some Klamath basin grain areas the past two days, C. A. Henderson, county agent, said today.

White frost was reported this morning in the vicinity of Mallin, but extent of any damage could not be determined at that early hour. After the sun warms up, plants will wilt if affected by the frost.

Temperatures this morning were unseasonably low. Growth of crops is delayed with the cold night, but frost is the main danger.
