Fourth Of July Spent Quietly

Most Klamathites spent a fairly quiet Fourth of July holiday this year, perhaps one of the reasons being that the holiday was for most a one day affair coming in the middle of the week. Many chose to spend the day at summer homes at Lake o' the Woods while others remained at home or attended the annual Klamath Buckaroo Days celebration at the rodeo grounds.

However, among the places we would like to have been was the mess hall at the Marine Barracks where cooks there put out a special turkey dinner that the lucky guests are still talking about. Added attraction was a package of cigarettes at each place!

Spending the holiday at their home on Lakeshore drive was Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reeves and their two daughters, Ann and Ramona. Guests for an informal dinner on the Fourth were Mr. and Mrs. George Rogers and two daughters, Ruth and Shirley.

Mrs. Tony Grace and two children, Richard and Stanley, accompanied by Mrs. Charles E.

Buckaroo Dance

The Buckaroo dance given Monday evening at the USO, 11th and Walnut, by the Junior Hostess organization was a colorful affair livening up the Fourth of July holidays for the servicemen stationed in this area.

Half of the clubrooms was decorated in the style of a western corral with crepe paper streamers giving the illusion of a corral fence. Members of the Marine Barracks orchestra which furnished the music for the occasion sat behind music stands disguised as bales of hay.

Junior Hostesses also attended a dance for the marines at the Barracks Friday night, July 6.

Klamath Girl Bride In Church Wedding

Before a flower-decked altar of the Church of the Good Samaritan, Episcopal, at Corvallis last Sunday evening at a quarter past eight o'clock, Mary Awdry Radcliffe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Heber Radcliffe of this city, became the bride of Robert Eugene Stutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Stutz of Corvallis.

The Rev. Frederick C. Wissenbach of St. Paul's here, read the ring ceremony. White gladioli and white snapdragons were used on the altar and also along the front pews.

The service was read by candlelight. The beautiful hymn, "O Perfect Love," was sung by Mrs. Gene Clark of Corvallis and the church organist played the traditional processional and recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of ivory white faille taffeta, the V-neckline outlined by a shirring of taffeta. The basque blouse was buttoned to the waist with tiny buttons and the long full skirt fell in a sweeping train. The sleeves were pointed at the wrist. The bride's veil, worn by her sister-in-law, Bernice, Mrs. Thomas H. Radcliffe of Portland, was of ivory silk net and fell from a shirred cap. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom. Mary Awdry carried a white prayer book, loaned by Mrs. Charles Neville, wife of the rector of the Church of the Good Samaritan, and on it was a single white orchid from which fell a cascade of ivory satin ribbons.

The "something borrowed" was the prayer book, the "something new," her gown, and for "something blue," the bride wore a blue garter.

Helen Radcliffe was her sister's maid-of-honor, and she wore an ivory taffeta gown similar to that of the bride's. The bodice was embellished with a white marquisette yoke and single blooms of white gladioli were in her hair. Helen's flowers were a cascade of pink and white gladioli.

Bridesmaids were Margy Johnson of Klamath Falls and Betty Stutz of Corvallis, sister of the groom. They wore identical frocks of blue faille taffeta with net overskirts and carried pink gladioli in cascade arrangement with single blossoms of the flowers in their hair.

The little flower girl was Nancy Nolte, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Franz Nolte of Corvallis, and her dress was a miniature of the bride's gown. She carried a nosegay of carnations and pink roses.

The best man was Clyde Miller, and ushers were Ensign E. Adams, William Woodcock, Gene Clark and Walter Reed, all of Corvallis. Immediately after the service, a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, 529 N. 34th street. The bride's table was centered with an all white tiered confection decorated with rosebuds. After the bride and groom cut the first piece of their cake, Mrs. Thomas H. Radcliffe served. Pouring at the coffee urn and serving punch were Mrs. Robert Ripley, Mrs. Charles Neville, Mrs. L. A. Kanipe and Mrs. Delmar Goode. Serving were Patrick and June Chugg, Mrs. Blanche Cushman, Mrs. Clyde Plants and Barbara Northrup, all of Corvallis.

The young couple left by motor for Seattle, and on Monday continued to Madison, Wis., where they will be at home at 11 N. Spooner street. For traveling the bride wore a lettuce green wool suit of dressmaker design and black accessories with an orchid on the lapel of her jacket.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Radcliffe wore a skipper blue crepe floor length gown with a pale pink feather hat and pink gloves. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Stutz wore a wisteria crepe formal gown with matching hat and gardenias.

Among the Klamath Falls guests were Mrs. Frederick C. Wissenbach and Miss Hazel Morrison.

The new Mrs. Stutz was graduated this spring from Oregon State college where she majored in botany. Her husband is also an Oregon State graduate and was awarded a research scholarship to the University of Wisconsin at Madison. He is now studying for his master's degree and the young couple will make their home in Madison while he is in school.

Mr. and Mrs. Radcliffe stopped at Lake Odell for several days en route home from their daughter's wedding.

Those in attendance were Father Raymond Beard, Lynn Roycroft, Otto Smith, Frank Sexton, Mrs. Andrew Honzel, Mrs. James Higgins, Mrs. L. K. Nidorf, Louise Vaughn, Mrs. Dick B. Miller Sr., and Mrs. A. P. Heup.

Wives Meet

The newly organized Servicemen's Wives club met in the ladies lounge of the USO for its regular meeting on June 28. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. N. R. Hawk and Mrs. Jerry L. Thompson.

An enjoyable evening of games and shell-craft activities was spent and the women were given a chance to display their ingenuity in molding the tiny shells into colorful earrings.
