Partial Eclipse Of Sun To Be Visible Here At Sunrise

By J. HUGH PRUETT, Astronomer, General Extension Division, University of Oregon

The first total eclipse of the sun to be visible from anywhere in the United States and Canada since 1932 will occur at or shortly after sunrise on July 9, Monday, in certain sections of the country. The many general statements which have been published regarding this phenomenon during the past few months have given the impression to some that the entire western part of North America—wherever the sky is clear—will have a complete solar blackout. This is not correct.

The eclipse will be 52 per cent effective in Klamath Falls, beginning at sunrise and ending at 6:08 a. m.

Although the event may be seen from nearly all of North America and Europe and parts of Asia and Africa, yet to all but a comparatively few observers this will be a rather narrow strip (varying from 28 to 48 miles in width in the United States and Canada) which will start at a point slightly east of Smith's Ferry, Idaho, and run in a generally northeast direction into Montana, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and Ontario. It will finally reach a locality 400 miles north of Iceland, then turn southeastward into Norway, Russia and Siberia. In the last named country it will be a sunset event, occurring over two hours after its start in Idaho.

Nowhere in the United States and southern Canada will the total phase last as long as a minute. Some towns in Idaho in the belt of totality are Cascade and Salmon; in Montana, there are Butte, Nelhart, Hilger, Malta, and Opheim; in Saskatchewan it will cross Ogema, Lang, Wolseley, and Brendenbury. Over a considerable part of western North America the sun will rise partially eclipsed.

An eclipse of the sun occurs when the moon gets between the earth and the sun. This can take place only at new moon, yet most new moons do not produce eclipses. As the moon can hide the sun from only a very small part of the earth at any instant, the times of occurrence of solar eclipses have to be calculated for every individual locality. The moon moves eastward around the earth, so when it is in a position to cast a shadow on the earth, this shadow also moves eastward.

The common method of observing partial phases is to view the sun through smoked glass, or photographic negatives which are just dense enough to take off the glare. Field glasses with such protection over the front lenses give excellent results.

Stole Soldier's Wife

"Take this letter to the captain." With these words, King David of old sent Uriah, a faithful fighting man to his death. This since the letter told them to put Uriah up front where he was bound to be killed. When the word came that Uriah was dead, David took Beth-Sheba, the man's wife and made her his own. So it was that David turned murderer.

Now came Nathan the prophet and showed David how great was his sin. The 51st Psalm tells the king's sorrow and repentance. For David to have peace of heart, a lamb or other sacrifice must be offered. His sin is to be covered. "I have given you the blood upon the altar to make a covering for your sins." God so directed. Then in the fullness of time, the Lord himself offered up a lamb—"Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." Sins of old, so long covered over were washed away and ours of this day. You are to believe that Christ died for your sins.

When your heart takes hold on this great fact, your sins are no more to condemn you to eternal woe. And to make you new for here and now, God then comes into your heart. He indwells you and gives you Himself for power, peace and joy. He is now your Heavenly Father by this new birth. Secret prayer is to become the very breath of life and the Bible your daily feast. Labor on and when you reach the other shore, you are to hear the well done, good and faithful servant. YOUR HEART KNOWS.

Would welcome a line as to the cheer that comes from these messages paid for by businessmen.
