

OFFICERS SEEK TO IDENTIFY BODY IN LAKE

No positive identification has yet been made of a body thought to be that of Roy Taylor which was discovered Sunday at Lake o' the Woods. Taylor disappeared in the company of his brother, Roland Taylor, on October 13, 1942 and the two men have never been seen since.

The body was discovered by a party of marines who were dragging the lake for the body of Robert Barney Hollingsworth, who apparently drowned there last week.

A post mortem examination of the body was made yesterday by George Adler, county coroner. The body was badly decomposed and the only means of identification are a previous dental plate or through identification of clothing by his wife.

Efforts are being made by the police office to locate Florence Taylor, wife of Roy Taylor, who is last known to be living in West, Calif. No reply from West has been received as the body was clothed in a wicker leather jacket, brown wicker army shirt, lightweight underwear, and black shoes. A check of the clothing revealed in the pocket of the shirt had a package of Lucky Strike cigarettes. The pockets of the jacket had deteriorated.

Hollingsworth, for whom the dragging party was searching, is still missing today.

In the fateful 40s, when the decision to extend the boundaries of the youthful United States of America to the shores of the Pacific was being hammered out on the anvil of public debate, more than one member of congress arose in his place, pounded the desk before him and shouted that the whole western country wasn't worth $2 and was fit only for rattlesnakes and jackrabbits.

WELL, they were wrong—as politicians often have been. Those who had FAITH IN AMERICA were right. ALWAYS, from the planting of the first colony on the bleak Atlantic beaches until now, it has been those who had faith in America who were right and those who wanted to sell America short who were wrong.

Let's keep that fact in mind in these puzzling post-war years that are coming.

This advance placed the Chinese moving along the railroad at a point within nine and one-half miles of Yungfu, which is 31 miles southwest of Kweilin.

The Chinese occupation of Moncay, which presumably was lightly garrisoned, added to the isolation of Japanese forces in Indo-China. Their only remaining overland link with China—a tenuous circuitous highway leading to Canton—now has been ruptured at several points and rendered impassable as an escape route.

Vets Must Renew Licenses

SALEM, July 17 (AP)—Veterans who held funeral directors and embalmers licenses before the war cannot get them renewed unless they apply for reinstatement within six months after being discharged from the armed forces, Attorney General George Neuner ruled today for the State Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers.

Labor Shortage Slacks Harvest

MILTON-FREEWATER, July 17 (AP)—Shortage of harvest hands has resulted in hundreds of acres of canning peas being abandoned in the fields, growers reported today.

Growers said earlier predictions of a record crop must be revised to equal last year's bumper yield.

German prisoners of war are laboring in the canneries and Mexicans are working the fields, but unexpected hot weather ripened the crop before it could be harvested.
