RESINOL OINTMENT AND SOAP

FIGHTERS FIRST!

Millions of battle-weary veterans must get home for furloughs, then move back to camps for pre-Pacific training. For them these trips ARE necessary.

And, just as necessary to the country for which they are fighting! No. 1 job of Great Northern's passenger service is moving fighting men first. On the Empire Builder and the railway's many other trains, space for civilian travel now is at a minimum.

The Office of Defense Transportation order that over-night sleeping car service on runs of 450 miles or less be discontinued on July 15 will mean considerably less space for civilian travelers.

Great Northern is confident that it can continue to successfully meet its obligation to the men in uniform if everyone will think, "Fighters First!"

Capt. Mills said he wasn't sorry for the experience but, "the responsibility was almost too much."

His parents are spending the summer at Crater lake, and his wife and baby daughter live in southern California.

NORMANDY BASE SECTION
France—PFC Paul H. Leeling of 621 N. 11th, a member of the 780th army transportation corps base depot, finds his work at a large redeployment port in the Normandy base section to be as urgent and important since the cessation of hostilities as it was prior to the war's end.

The port, which a few weeks ago was handling a steady flow of incoming supplies destined for our armies inside Germany, is now handling material going out of Europe under the redeployment plan. This material, no longer of use in Europe, is being shifted through this port to other theaters of operation to aid in final victory over Japan.

Flashes of Life

NICE BABY!
SPOKANE, Wash., July 18 (AP)—Investigating "kiddie napped baby" report, Detective Ralph Weir discovered that a seven-year-old neighbor girl had taken the infant to her wadhead to "play house" after she heard him crying in his crib.

The case was solved in less than an hour, but Weir is afraid there may be new developments. The baby had chicken pox. The little girl—and Weir—never have!

DOG'S LIFE?
VANCOUVER, Wash., July 18 (AP)—Buck Private Bosco went AWOL recently and a court martial board at Vancouver barracks "busted" him from private first class.

With the demotion in rank went a sentence of confinement to quarters. But the errant St. Bernard isn't barking about that. The "quarters" happen to be the officers' mess, where Bosco languishes in luxury and mulls over the fate of civilian canines between bites on his steak bones.

MAD MONEY
LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 18 (AP)—Arrested on a charge of jaywalking when she assertively dashed into heavy downtown traffic, Mrs. Dixie Evans, 28, wife of a serviceman, was declared by the policeman involved to have:

Refused to give him her name; Clung to a telephone pole to keep from going to jail. And the municipal court judge found her guilty of the jaywalking charge, fined her $50. Usual "fee" to jaywalkers is $2.
