REYNAUD FOR FRENCH UNION WITH BRITISH

naud, Leon Blum and former Commander-in-Chief Gen. Maurice Gamelin. Court adjourned at 6:30 p. m. with Daladier still on the stand.

The dapper little politician, who said yesterday he despised the old marshal, described the proposal of Prime Minister Churchill when France was collapsing in 1940 for a union.

Petaim's Calm
Petaim, on trial for his life on accusations of intelligence with the enemy and plotting against the security of France, strode into the Palace of Justice courtroom 20 minutes late on this second day of the hearing. He was clad in his marshals uniform; his face appeared fresh and expressionless.

Reynaud said that on the day his cabinet fell, June 16, 1940, he did not oppose a "cease fire" order but was firmly against demands for an armistice. He repeated that he wished to transfer the government to French Africa and continue the war from there and was opposed by Petaim and Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander-in-chief of the reeling French forces.

Petaim's Threats
Reynaud testified that at a cabinet meeting on the day he formed his government, Petaim read a letter threatening to resign as vice premier if an armistice were not accepted.

"The next day I received the great British project for union between our two people," Reynaud said.

He added that Camille Chautemps, former premier and a member of the Reynaud cabinet, opposed the plan, saying he did not want to see France become a British dominion. He testified further that Chautemps declared it was impossible for the government to leave France without first getting terms of the armistice.

Reynaud Resigns
"I was then left with no choice but to resign, for I was in the minority," he said. "That night I explained the situation to the cabinet and President Albert Lebrun asked me to enforce the policy of the majority. I replied, 'I will never apply it, for if the majority opinion of the cabinet prevailed, France was lost.'"

Reynaud said President Roosevelt sent Petaim an "extremely strong" message warning the marshal that he risked losing the friendship of the United States government and people because of the terms of the armistice Petaim accepted from Germany.

Fleet Plans
He testified that while the armistice was being discussed he argued with Petaim and Adm. Jean Darlan over the French fleet. Asked if the warships would be given to the Germans, Reynaud said Petaim replied: "I would sooner put it out to sea."

The former premier said that Petaim nominated him for ambassador to Washington and he refused the post.

"After that I became public enemy No. 1 in France," he said.

Petaim's Blunders
Reynaud recalled the opinion of Marshal Joffre regarding Petaim, saying that after the battle of Verdun Petaim lacked faith in the possibility of defending the fortress.

"Joffre declared he found Petaim so defeated that he wanted

FLOOD CONTROL PLANNED

ALBANY, July 24 (AP)—Linn county may form a flood control district to finance maintenance of proposed revetments for the North Santiam river near Stayton. The plan was suggested after the county court refused to approve a U. S. engineers' plan whereby an allocated $50,000 would be spent to save farmland from further erosion with the county providing funds to maintain repairs.

to surrender the fortress," Reynaud said.

Reynaud charged that Petaim opposed fortifying the northern frontiers of France and also a two-year period of military service. He produced a 1935 fascist brochure written by Henri Herve entitled "We Need Petaim."

The witness testified that while Petaim still was ambassador to Spain before the battle of France began, the marshal told former Cabinet Minister Anatole Demontzie:

"France will need me the latter part of May."

He said Chautemps still favored continuing the war early in May, 1940, but suddenly changed his views and advocated an armistice, Reynaud asked:

"Who corrupted him? Only Petaim could have corrupted him."

He said also that Petaim "corrupted" Darlan and thereby brought about capitulation of the French fleet, asserting: "The armistice could not have been signed without capitulation of the fleet."

Reynaud closed his testimony with the words: "Never has a people been more mistaken than the French concerning Petaim—never has a leader done so much harm to a people as Petaim did."

SHERIFF'S OFFICE GETS RESCUE REPORT

Erroneous information was given the sheriff's office here concerning the rescue of three Medford girls and a man from Lake o' the Woods Tuesday night, July 10, when Robert Barney Hollingsworth apparently drowned.

In the report from the lake, Ed Miller, logger working in that vicinity, was credited with the rescue single-handed, but it was learned today that two other people, along with Miller, assisted in the rescue.

Professor James Rogers of Santa Cruz, Calif., was has a summer home at Lake o' the Woods and Lt. Earl Kent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kent, and on leave from his duties as navigator on a B-24 Liberator, were the first on the scene.

A few minutes after 10 o'clock on Tuesday night they heard screams coming from the lake. Rogers and Kent hastened to the lake shore and rowed out onto the lake to give assistance.

Rogers rowed the boat while Kent used a spotlight to locate the people in distress. The overturned boat with the four people clinging to it was revealed by a flash of lightning and Kent kept the spotlight on them until they were able to reach the scene.

They put two of the girls in their boat and at that time Miller arrived in his canoe. He had followed the other rescue boat out and he took the other girl and the man into the canoe. Both boats then took the four people to the shore.

Sheriff Lloyd Low said this morning that summer residents at the lake are keeping a sharp lookout for the body of Hollingsworth, who evidently sank after helping the others to safety.

CONGRESSMAN ATTENDS CAC MEETING HERE

Congressman Lowell Stockman arrived in Klamath Falls today for a visit of several days, and this afternoon attended a meeting of the city airport commission and aviation committee of the chamber of commerce relative to the through airline proposal for Klamath Falls.

Stockman said he would be glad to do what he could to help Klamath get adequate airline service. A CAB examiner has recommended a feeder but not a through line stop for Klamath. Stockman said he expects the senate to ratify the United Nations charter. The discussion, he said, is principally for the information of the country, but when the vote comes, the charter will get an okeh.

Warm praise was voiced by Stockman for the cooperation given him in all eastern Oregon matters by Senators Cordon and Morse.

Stockman, "biggest man in the house," is now in his second term, and said he has thoroughly enjoyed his service in Washington.

He spoke of frequent development of matters of common interest to his district and that of Congressman Clair Engle of the California second district.

"We get along fine," said Stockman. "But, incidentally, those press dispatches which say Engle has the biggest district in the country are incorrect. My district is bigger than his, and there is one in Montana that is still bigger. It's a matter of no importance, but I notice that the press insists on calling the California district the biggest in the U. S. It 'just ain't so.'"
