HOW PAPER AIDS THE WAR EFFORT

It requires 96 tons of supplies for every fighting man across the Pacific. Most of these supplies are paper-wrapped and some is double and triple-wrapped. Why so much wrapping? To prevent the mildew and rot that causes so much loss. There isn't enough paper to supply war and civilian requirements fully. After you have read your newspapers and magazines, after you have used your cartons, make up in separate bundles 12 to 18 inches high, tie securely and have them out on your curbing before 9:00 a. m. Sunday. Those living outside of town should take their salvage to their community salvage depots before Sunday.

HOW TIN CANS AID THE WAR EFFORT

Our Armed Forces need the tin to protect much of the food sent to our men. In addition, medicines, blood plasma outfits and other items are made wholly or partially of tin. Prepare cans by washing thoroughly, removing labels, turn in or cut off ends and flatten firmly. Pack them in strong containers. Take tin to your curbing or community salvage depot along with the paper. Have it there by 9:00 a. m. Sunday.
