RUMORS HUM ON SUCCESSOR FOR JOHNSON

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 8 (AP)—Political circles at the state capitol were humming today with speculation as to who will be appointed by Governor Warren to fill the unexpired term of the late Sen. Hiram Johnson.

Leading names in the latest crop of rumors include William F. Knowland, former state senator from Oakland and now a colonel in the armed forces; Major Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles; Paul Scharrenberg, director of the department of industrial relations and a great personal friend of Johnson; Lt. Gov. Frederick F. Houser, who was republican senatorial candidate at the last election, and Raymond L. Haight, California republican national committee.

The traditional political custom in California of balancing the higher political offices between the north and the south led many northern Californians to believe that the appointee would be from the northern part of the state. Sen. Sheridan Downey, formerly a northern California resident, now is living in the south.

Herbert Hoover, former president, was not mentioned in capital corridors. He could not be reached for comment at his home in Palo Alto, in the northern half of the state.

Bread baking, or the preparation of cakes from flour or parched grain by means of heat, is one of the most ancient of arts.

The earliest form of bread was prepared from acorns and beechnuts.

10,000th Soldier Leaves Ft. Lewis Separation Center

FORT LEWIS, Aug. 8 (AP) — The 10,000th soldier to be discharged from the separation center here was one of the most decorated men to leave the service from the northwest.

At a formal ceremony in the office of Brig. Gen. Royden E. Beebe, commanding general war department personnel center, the former newspaperman and magazine writer, 42-year-old S/Sgt. Edward C. Connors, was awarded an honorable discharge and four decorations of valor.

The Pacific veteran of the "sight seein' sixth" division, whose record was described by Gen. Beebe as "it hasn't been topped here," answered very succintly, "I had a lot of fun getting those medals."

His exploits included rescuing a wounded captain who was pinned down by fire on Luzon, and again the rescue of 24 soldiers lost in the jungles of New Guinea.

A student of philosophy at Harvard school of law, he worked on a dude ranch prior to his entry in the service in November, 1942. He is on his way to take up the strings where he left off at Helena, Mont.

Local Man Receives DFC For Hazardous Holland Trip

A NINTH AIR FORCE SERVICE COMMAND UNIT, FRANCE — Capt. Thomas H. Mills, who is a C-47 Skytrain pilot in the 442nd troop carrier group, has recently been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross. His wife, Mrs. Adelaide Mills, lives at Huntington Park, Calif., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Mills, live on Lakeshore drive, Klamath Falls.

This award, made by direction of the president, gives a glimmer of what pilots encounter on some of their many missions. On September 17, 1944, Captain Mills (then first lieutenant) piloted a troop carrier plane on a paradrop over Holland. Immediately after his 'stick' (planeload) of paratroops had been dropped the left engine was struck by enemy flak and put out of working condition. The captain feathered the propeller and started on the return journey home.

Ten minutes away from the drop zone it was discovered that the aircraft was burning. Capt. Mills ordered his crew to bail out although he stayed at the controls. As the crew chief and the co-pilot hit the silk the right engine was also hit and died. The plane rapidly dropped below safe jumping altitude and Captain Mills ordered the remaining crew members to prepare for a crash landing which he executed in a small, tree-bordered field with both engines dead and the C-47 blazing. The captain and the rest of the crew escaped from the burning wreckage just before it exploded.

Capt. Mills graduated from Huntington Park Union high school and later attended the Santa Barbara college, Santa Barbara, Calif. Prior to enlistment in the service, he was employed as an accountant in the U. S. general accounting office. Since arriving overseas he has added six battle stars to his ETO ribbon and also wears both the Air Medal and the rectangular, gold-bordered, blue Presidential Unit Citation ribbon awarded to his outfit, the 442nd, for its part in the Normandy invasion, June, 1944.

The 442nd troop carrier group, which has recently come under the direction of the 9th air force service command, has recently been active in re-supply missions to Germany and in the air-evacuation of wounded personnel, of liberated prisoners of war, and displaced persons.

SUMMER ROAD REPAIRS MADE IN DISTRICT

Regular summer maintenance work on highways throughout the state is continuing south from Bend. The oiling crew under Leo Kirkham, general foreman, is now working on three and one-half miles of the Willamette highway near Chemult.

The crew will work down this way from Chemult on the section between there and Fort Klamath where there is about a month's work to be done.

The state paving crew under Tom Gibson, general foreman, will soon leave the Bend district and work out from here on several different roads requiring repairs.

Work has been slowed down somewhat and some jobs have had to be shortened on account of labor shortage, Tom Edwards of the state highway department stated. Difficulty in getting the proper amounts of certain grades of asphalt because of war conditions and the OPA has also limited the work to only the most essential needs, Edwards said.

Work on the Fort Klamath timber access road under contract with Babler Brothers, is proceeding according to schedule, Louis Babler said, and will be completed about September 1. Twenty men are working in the crew. They have just finished putting on the road bed topping, and are now setting up the crusher to crush rock for surfacing. Work on the seven-mile road was started June 15, with clearing timber and brush from the roadway.
