

BRITISH PLAN OCCUPATION OF HONG KONG

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP)—A foreign spokesman said today that "Hong Kong is a part of the British empire and we intend to occupy it just as any other part" but he asserted the British were not racing with the Chinese to get there first.

He said he would not confirm a report that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek had notified Britain officially that the Chinese intended to occupy the port. The British long have made it plain that after Japan's defeat they were determined to return to the big sea base, British-held for 100 years. Whether the change in Britain's government will produce a different stand remains uncertain.

A responsible American source said the future of Hong Kong was one of the questions U. S. ambassador to China Patrick J. Hurley discussed earlier in the year with Winston Churchill, then prime minister. Churchill had insisted at that time that Hong Kong must remain under British control.

The liberal British weekly New Statesman and Nation said that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was "unlikely to wish to retain Hong Kong or to regard Malaya as territory for British exploitation."

No Lane County Layoffs Seen

EUGENE, Aug. 18 (AP)—Because of the great civilian demand for lumber, not one Lane county worker will lose his job through army cancellation of orders for 250 million board feet of lumber, the secretary-manager of the Willamette Valley Lumbermen's association said today.

"For every army order cancelled, there will be two orders from civilians," Herbert J. Cox predicted. Building plans are being drawn up by industrial plants, farmers, and home owners, he said.

Henderson Warns Farmers On Sheep And Lamb Selling

C. A. Henderson, county agent, said today, "It is up to farmers who sell their sheep and fat lambs to buyers other than legally authorized slaughterers to protect themselves so that they receive prices reflecting the production payment under the government's sheep and lamb production payment program."

Under this new program, Henderson pointed out, commodity credit corporation payments will go to the last person who owns the sheep or lambs, who sells directly to the legally authorized slaughterer for slaughter.

Other conditions listed were as follows:

A farmer is eligible for direct production payment only on applications accompanied by a slaughterer's certification or statement that the animals were bought for slaughter.

A farmer, selling to a buyer who in turn will sell to a slaughterer, should receive a price which will take the subsidy into consideration.

A farmer selling to a feeder or feeder slaughterer would not be eligible for direct subsidy payment, if the sheep or lambs are sold for feeding.

A buyer who buys lambs or sheep and sells them directly to a slaughterer will be eligible for subsidy payment, if he can present the slaughterer's statement and certification that they were bought for slaughter.

A slaughterer may apply for subsidy only if the animals were fed by him for 30 days or more before slaughtering, or if they were raised by him. On animals fed by him, he must present certification that the animals were bought for feeding only.

The certification required of a farmer or other seller in applying for payment must show place and date of sale, number, whether lambs or sheep, total live weight, purchase price paid, date of delivery, and name, address, and license number of authorized slaughterer.

Feeders or feeder slaughterers must also furnish a certification that the animals were purchased for feeding, and live weight at time of slaughter, in addition to the above, and signed by the seller.

STRUCK WORKERS MAY SEEK JOBS

Strikes by CIO unionists, which halted lumber production in four major mills and five logging camps in the Klamath basin, continued today with no apparent relief in sight.

No headway has been made in negotiations between the union and the companies involved and 2250 men are still idle from the struck plants. The strike was originally aimed at a wage increase and a union shop, although the wage demand has been referred to the war labor board.

All manpower controls have now been lifted, according to Jack Almeter, manager of the U. S. employment service here, and there is now no law to prevent struck unionists from finding work in plants that are in operation.

"This relaxation of manpower control could cause a shortage of workers when the struck plants here resume production, he said.

CIO-IWA union officials said this morning that the union is allowing strikers to seek work in other operating plants, although a closer check is being kept as to where the men are working.

When the strike ends, union officials stated, these men will return to their jobs in the Klamath basin mills now down. Workers are protecting their vacation rights and seniority rights, union men said.

There will be a meeting Sunday of local representatives of the IWA-CIO and the strike situation will be discussed, union men stated this afternoon.

No indication was given, however, as to what the trend of the discussion will be Sunday.
