SUMMER HOME FOLK ELECT OFFICERS

Election of officers took place at the annual meeting at the Lake o' the Woods Summer Homes association on Sunday, August 18, at the lake.

E. P. Ivory was re-elected president of the association with Lloyd Prock, secretary-treasurer. Directors are: Don Provost, Ashland; G. C. Lorenz, Klamath Falls; W. B. Barnum, Medford.

Improvement of roads to Lake o' the Woods area was the main point of discussion, to be further discussed with Klamath county court and the forest service. The association also went on record as favoring keeping open the road to Lake o' the Woods resort during the winter, with the road barricaded against general travel at a point near the Pelican guard station. This was proposed to facilitate winter caretaking in the area. The matter will be further discussed with Klamath county court.

Ration-Free Shoe Sales Held

Through September 29, certain types of men's and women's low-priced shoes are being sold ration-free. Only shoes manufactured before March 1, 1944, and which are priced at $3.50 or less, will be affected by the ration holiday. No children's shoes are included. Rationing of shoes and rubber footwear will continue until supplies are more nearly equal to demand. This ration holiday is for the purpose of clearing dealers' shelves of old stock for which consumers have not been willing to surrender ration stamps.

MEXICANS WORK AT SCOTT CREEK CAMP

The Rogue river national forest camp at Scott creek, north of Fort Klamath, is employing 30 Mexican nationals piling slash, residue from logging operations, along the road.

The work, which started August 5 from the Scott creek camp, at about half a mile per day with slash piled on either side of the road.

Mexican laborers from Washington are being used during the slack harvest season, which will probably last about two months.

Ask Paul O. Landry this question:

"My husband has been offered a position in another city and we intend to rent our home while we are away. If we do not find a tenant immediately and some of the windows should be broken by mischievous boys while the house is vacant, would our fire insurance cover the cost of replacing the windows?"

COUNTY ASKED TO SALVAGE MATERIALS

A telegram received by Paul Lee, Klamath county salvage chairman, from the state salvage committee, WPB, Washington, indicates the continued need for salvage material.

The telegram is quoted as follows: "Although fighting war has ended certain materials are in short supply and restrict orderly reconversion. For present, therefore, will you please ask your committee to continue salvaging used fats, tin cans and waste papers as if no change in war's status. We hope the need for volunteer activities in salvaging these materials will terminate in the near future, but present efforts are definitely needed."

Andrew Ufran stepped from military service as a Comdando in Africa and Europe into a Great Northern job as a machinist's helper. He is one of several discharged World War II veterans now performing vital service for the Great Northern, which has nearly 8,000 experienced employes in the Armed Forces.

OUR JOB ISN'T OVER!

Slamming home the Victory punch in the Pacific took manpower—plenty of the best in the world.

Transporting fighting men and equipment with which they defeated Japan took manpower, too.

The end of the war does not mean that the railroad transportation problem is over. Far, far from it—and one of the greatest factors in that problem is sufficient manpower to operate the railroads in the demobilization days ahead.

America's railways, particularly Western lines, must have thousands of additional workers if the military transportation schedules are to be met.

The Battle of Transportation still goes on. Our job isn't over. We need manpower, experienced if possible, to complete Great Northern's share of the biggest, most important job in the railway's history.

The Army and other government manpower agencies urge those who are not presently employed in war industries or in the production of food and other necessities to—GET A RAILROAD JOB NOW!

Apply in person or write to the nearest Great Northern Railway agent or office, or to the U. S. Railroad Retirement Board, or the U. S. Employment Service.

Railroad employment offers good wages, security under Railroad Retirement and Unemployment Insurance, in addition to transportation privileges.
