

ROGERS OPENS NEW JEWELRY STORE FRIDAY

A front composed of ivory carrara is one of the modern features to be found in the new store of Rogers Jewelers which will have its official opening Friday morning at 9 a. m. Other improvements include the enlarging of space for the show windows from 4 1/2 feet to the present 10 feet and the installation of a new lighting system. Inside the store a cooling system has been installed and the ceiling has been covered and redecorated.

Dan Bastien, of Stockton, became manager of the local store when the Rogers Jewelers bought out Metz jewelry store in March. Nationally advertised watches and jewelry have been added to the stock and Bastien states that his store intends to maintain a high standard of quality. Budget terms are offered by the new business.

Work on the store has been going on for about 2 1/2 months under the direction of Contractor Cecil Green. Sheldon Brumbaugh is the architect while Gilmore sign service handled the Neon lighting.

BEST REVEALS JAP STATUS AT NEARBY CENTER

TULELAKE—Operation of the Tulelake Japanese segregation center is proceeding as usual, it was announced today by R. R. Best, project director. The statement was made in reply to inquiries in regard to the status of the big center where 17,000 persons of Japanese ancestry are waiting for the return to normal living as citizens of the United States or are looking forward to returning to the land of their birth.

There was little demonstration except prayers by those whose sympathies are with Japan during the two days that followed President Truman's announcement of the surrender of Japan. Best stated that because of the peace announcement there was no change in the relationship or the necessity for cooperation between the WRA and the center residents.

"I cannot at this time answer the questions that I know many of you are asking in regard to the changes that the ending of the war eventually may bring about in the status of the various residents or of the center itself.

"Whenever any information is received from Washington which will in any way affect the future of any residents of the center, the people of the Tulelake project will be informed immediately.

"I wish at this time to express my sincere appreciation of the cooperation Tulelake residents have given in the orderly operation and maintenance of this center, and to express also my full confidence that this will be continued in the much less trying days of peace that are to come."
