

BUSINESS AREA TRAFFIC ROUTE STUDY STARTS

one-way street for southbound traffic and Klamath the one-way for northbound traffic. He argued that one-way traffic would not be found an inconvenience or an unfavorable factor for business on Main street. He said it would increase parking space on Main, and that persons wishing to enter Main from the south could do so by going around the block and coming in on any cross street.

Another suggested scheme was to make Walnut, paralleling Klamath on the other side, as one of the one-way routes. Baldock said that he would have to make a thorough survey of all the possibilities from an engineering viewpoint and with the general public convenience and benefit in mind. He said he was not ready to offer any final conclusions, and will press the survey as rapidly as possible, completing it by February 1.

Circumferential Route
Baldock said that whatever route is suggested, construction will probably not be undertaken in the first three-year program after the war.

He said further that he believes eventually there must be a circumferential route to carry north and southbound traffic, with the option of coming into the business district by the cross-town routes. The circumferential route, he indicated, would lie in the general neighborhood of California and Conger avenue. Some opinion was expressed that because of Klamath's unique situation as a city remote from any other, all traffic should be routed through the business district on a permanent basis.

South Sixth
Baldock later went out on the ground with City Engineer E. A. Thomas and others to look over the possible routings at the two ends of Main street. He was told that the Pine and Klamath link proposals in the vicinity of Esplanade and Main might affect two prospective building sites—the First Baptist church property adjoining The Herald and News office, and the Dick Miller truck building site at Eleventh and Klamath.

Discussing South Sixth street, Baldock said that four-laning that important thoroughfare is on the first year's program. He also indicated that the circumferential north-south route by way of Alameda street, joining highways No. 97 and 66, is on the program for the first three years after the war.

Arant Discharged From Local Hospital

Early Arant, 72, who was injured at the rodeo grounds in Lakeview over the weekend, was discharged from Klamath Valley hospital Tuesday night and is now resting comfortably at his home at 819 Plum.

Arant received a fractured arm and collar bone when he was knocked over by a loose horse during the Labor Day Roundup. He was one of the group who rode horseback from Klamath Falls to Lakeview for the holiday.

COURT APPOINTMENT
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 6 (AP)—The Kansas City Star, in a special dispatch from Washington, said today that President Truman will appoint Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri as a member of the District of Columbia court of appeals, a lifetime job paying $12,000 a year.

End Of Line For Nagasaki Trolley

Terrific concussion of the atomic bomb completely demolished this tram car in Nagasaki. Ditch at right of car tracks contains bodies of passengers, on tracks can be seen remains of the car. Upright poles carried the overhead trolley wires. (U. S. army photo obtained from Domei news agency via radio-telephoto).

Prisoner Escapes From State Pen

SALEM, Sept. 6 (AP)—Robert E. Bennett, 24, escaped from the state prison today, running away from a flax shed where he was employed in a prison gang. He was seen a few minutes later in a nearby grocery store, but got away.

He was sentenced from Yamhill county to three years for larceny, entering prison last July 27. He weighs 153 pounds, is 5 feet 5 1/2 inches tall, has blue eyes, dark brown hair, and was wearing a blue shirt and blue overalls.

DISCHARGE SCORES FOR OFFICERS TOLD

Officers will be released by next July 1.

All Branches
The point scores for all branches of the army and for all officers except those above the rank of colonel follow:

Male officers—colonel, lieutenant colonel and major, 100; captain, first lieutenant and second lieutenant, 85; warrant officer, and flight officer, 80. The point score for nurses is 65; for Wac officers 44; and for physical therapists and dietitians 41.

Orders have been sent out to commanding officers in the U. S. and overseas directing that all officers qualified for discharge report for separation within 60 days. Some specialists, required for occupation duty, may be retained for a time even though they have earned a score making them eligible for discharge. However, they cannot be retained longer than six months after the date they become eligible for release.

EDITORIALS ON NEWS

"that would never do. Our wives would get one earful of the kind of talk we use and give us the brush-off for good!" There was considerable serious mulling over of this talk business, ending in universal agreement that "we'll cut it out as soon as we get ashore at home."

They will, too.

IF any of you girls at home are worrying seriously about your man over here philandering around with the mademoiselles and the frauleins and the pink and white English maidens, you'd better quit it. If you know him intimately as an individual and he's that sort and always has been that sort, and you don't like that sort, you'd do well to call it off now and save time and trouble. If he did it at home, he's probably doing it here.

But if you're just worrying about him on general principles and if he's an AVERAGE American boy temporarily in uniform and lonelier most of the time than he ever knew before he went into the service that a human being could be, and low in his mind from time to time as only fighting men can understand, FORGET it. He's going to be all right when you get him back.

Sure, he may hold hands with a mademoiselle or a frauline, and he may go home with her to see her mother and her pop, and like all European females she may have ideas in her head, but if he's just normal American GI boy the first clean, smart, alert, on-her-toes American girl he sees will drive from his mind the memory of all the mademoiselles and the frauleins in Europe.

S. R. O. in the Unemployment Theater

A picture that is becoming more and more familiar throughout the nation is this scene at Douglas Aircraft's Long Beach, Calif., plant. Contract cancellations lopped off nearly 12,000 jobs at this plant, while hundreds of thousands were being laid off by other war industries in big production centers.

O'Connor Family Shares Sheep-Raising Activities

Between two and three thousand feeder lambs were shipped from Lakeview last week by J. D. O'Connor, biggest sheep owner in the county, to his feeding pens at the Long Bell mill on the Weed highway.

O'Connor's 19-year-old son, Jackie, is in charge of the feeding yards. He grinds all the hay and grain here for a mixed formula for the lambs, takes care of the sick ones, treats sheep who nibble at the many poisonous plants on the range, and rides herd on the flocks, protecting them from preying animals.

Dan, 21, is in charge of the O'Connor holdings in California, where the ewes are shipped for winter lambing. He takes care of the lambing operations during the winter and shearing in the spring. O'Connor supervises both his Oregon and California operations, sales, buying and wool marketing. Right now he is in California making preparations for shipping the ewes down for the lambing season, mending fence, getting the sheds ready and digging water holes under the AAA.

Sheep Sellout
In spite of the wonderful market for sheep and wool, most of the former big sheep holders in Klamath county have sold out on account of not being able to obtain experienced help. O'Connor who used to feed and fatten 11,000 lambs in the shed, and did so last year, has cut down his holdings for the same reason.

Foreign Labor
Many Nevada sheepmen are hiring Bascos from the borderland between France and Spain, because of their aptitude for handling sheep, but because of the expense involved in training the men who do not speak English, in modern operational practices, many owners would rather sell out.

Wool grown in Oregon is mostly sold in Boston and San Francisco. 1945 market prices were extremely good, according to growers' report.

greatest airborne troop movement. Every transport plane will be utilized.

Allied commanders in Singapore today reported that surrendered Japanese forces there include 85 generals, an unknown number of admirals, and 85,000 troops.

An American amphibious force led by the veteran Vice Adm. Daniel E. Barbey meanwhile neared the coast of Korea, fully armed and alert although expecting no trouble in occupying the north central coastal town of Jinsen. Some reports indicated Koreans had been attacking Japanese, who would welcome the American arrival.

Revolt Told
Taking time out from name-calling over who lost the war, the Tokyo press today disclosed one virtual revolt of Koreans had occurred in mid-August at Seoul (Keijo) as Russians approached. Demonstrators welcomed the soviet forces and seized control of the local government from the Japanese, the newspapers Mainichi and Nippon Times reported. They also disclosed that 20,000 Korean political prisoners now have been freed.

Ward Bond, Double, Stop Here On Way To Movie Set

Ward Bond, husky movie villain with his equally husky double, Fred Gramam, arrived in Klamath Falls Wednesday. They will be at the Willard hotel for several days before joining the Universal Studios unit at Diamond Lake for the filming of "Canyon Passage."

Duck and deer hunting first lured Bond to Klamath basin in 1942, to enjoy the sport with his uncles, Clarence and Harry Huntley, of Merrill. He met Matt Finnigan and has accepted his invitation to hunt with him this season.

Bond started his movie career "accidentally," he said. Fourteen football players from a southern California college were picked for some scenes to be shot at Annapolis in '29. Bond who was a sophomore was one of the fourteen. When he graduated, he was unable to work at construction engineering which he had studied for, and started working in pictures. He has followed this work ever since, freelancing between MGM, Universal and other studios.

Bond, who will play the villain "Honey Bragg" in "Canyon Passage," is not always a villain in pictures. He has played in "Dakota" and "Expensive" with John Wayne, "The Sullivans," and several western pictures.

Graham, a stunt man, is also a freelance. He does not always play doubles, but was chosen to double for Bond because of his similar physique and way of walking.

This is Graham's first trip to Klamath Falls, and he said that he hopes to do some hunting while here. Filming the picture is expected to take from three to five weeks, depending on the weather, the men said.
