Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

THE unpleasant and difficult situation of Sheriff Lloyd Low in the Weyerhaeuser picket line affair must be apparent to all fair-minded people, who will agree that the cantankerous pot-shots at the sheriff from opposing sides are not justified.

EPLEY

It is the sheriff's sworn duty to preserve law and order. It is impossible for him, as an elected officer responsible to the public, to ignore the potentialities of the situation at the Weyerhaeuser gate. He has gone there on the occasion of the three incidents with only two men, his regular deputies, basing his actions on the assumption that his authority will be respected by good citizens. He has sought by reasoning and calmness rather than loud talk and threats to maintain order and peace in a dangerous situation.

There is nothing in the record of Sheriff Low that would justify any charges, stated or implied, that he is anti-union or anti-labor. He has been re-elected by the people of Klamath county many times, and his present term will end 24 years of service. Any suggestion that he is fascistic or would collaborate in fascistic schemes is an absurdity.

So far as unionism is concerned, the sheriff happens at the moment to be in a situation where one union has asked that the public highway be kept open, whereas another union has a picket line across this road.

It is quite clear to any disinterested observer that the sheriff's interest is and must be in the preservation of the peace; that he has no connection with any project to break a strike, to prevent men from using the public road, or in any other matter concerned with the issues of this dispute. He would, of course, like to see it settled—and in that, we believe, he is in agreement with just about everybody hereabouts—unionists, non-unionists, management, and the general public.

Everybody talks that way, and it is strange indeed to see a situation grow more tense and serious in the face of a seeming unanimous wish that it were all over. Surely, there are enough people with adult thought processes hereabouts that they can do something to bring it to an honorable and fair conclusion.

We still think that some presently belligerent feet ought to be put under the same table for a few hours. An armistice in organization and personal recriminations for a while would help to get them there.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—The foolishness is starting up again. Nevada's Senator McCarran has introduced a bill, and California's Downey is promoting it, to reduce the federal payroll sitters work-week to 30 hours—5 hours a day, 6 days a week—a sort of WPA without shovels. Mr. Truman reduced it from 48 to 40 hours at the war's end, and now the New Dealing senators are trying to drop it to 30, with the usual hour or so for lunch, no doubt, and 30 days vacation with pay and 30 days sick leave (usable for headaches or whims.)

• • • •

Federal Jobs

THIS would make a federal job so nice, you would hardly have to go to work at all. The payroll sitters naturally look kindly upon Senators McCarran and Downey and say: "They are great humanitarians; they have the interest of the common people at heart," and the objects of this adulation naturally are swelling their chests at the good work they are doing, realizing how superior are their emotions toward the common man. Thus the racket is starting all over again.

Humanitarians, eh? Listen:

Behind this proposal is the overmanned condition of the federal payroll. In war, anyone could get a job doing anything or nothing here—and did.

Stenogs who did not know how to put paper in a typewriter, drew their salaries and got away with it, through help of associates who did know how to work. Why, maids and domestics left the kitchens in droves to become typists, although they could not write: "Now is the time to come to the aid of the democratic party." There was plenty to do then. Now there is little to do, yet no one wants to give up the soft jobs. They want to keep all the war employes on the payroll, and share the work by reducing the work week, all at the expense of the working man in this country who pays taxes, to support more people than are needed to run the government.

That is the basic proposition here.

Humanitarians, eh? Destroyers would be a more accurate term, as I think I can clearly prove.

• • • •

Full Production

IT is plainly evident, and conceded by all, this nation would be at its best for all the people if every man was employed in full production of his energy and talents. In this world of financial fictions, only production is real wealth. We saw this so clearly in the war. We won because we marshaled our productivity beyond that of any other nation and fully supplied the victory of every allied nation. They could not do the job. Their productivity was insufficient to meet the task.

Work, then, is wealth. To the individual, his productivity is his only real security. With prices, money, federal debts and all financial factors running toward inflation, the ability of an individual to produce, is the main guarantee of a safe place for him. Economically also, his work generates more work for more people.

He produces an auto, and perhaps 100 men help get a living from that auto, dealer, salesman, mechanic, shipping clerk, railroad agent, gasoline filling station proprietor, etc. If he did not produce that auto, the 100 would suffer. If 1000 men did not produce autos, 100,000 would fail of their livelihood.

• • • •

Work Is Stimulus

ECONOMICALLY, therefore, work is the stimulus of the nation and production is national wealth and well being.

Now inject into the system, a reduction of the work week. Cut it from 48 to 40, then 30, perhaps 20, 10 or 1, and you cut the heart muscles of your system. Somewhere along the way, your production declines and your nation declines and falls.

Specific experience, we saw of this also, in the war. French politicians got their work week down to 30 hours before the war. This was not sufficient to sustain the country, much less provide the armaments with which to fight a foe, producing the utmost of its deficient manpower energy and using its facilities to the fullest.

• • • •

France Pushover

FRANCE was a pushover because she could not make the guns, planes and ships to meet the effort of her adversary, although her available manpower was greater in numbers and she had access to raw materials beyond the dream of the Germans.

If we are now again going to take up the wrong end of the economic telescope and look toward negation of production, non-use of manpower, "spread-the-work" etc., we will not measure up to Russia, which worships the goal of production; indeed, eventually we could not match infantile Japan.

• • • •

Nation's Workweek

THAT workweek is best for this nation which produces the best nation, not the most ease and least work. What this nation desperately needs in the continuing world crises is a workweek which is just and sound for the workers and people, and yet will do the job of work and production which must be done. With all the work crying to be done in this country, the place for surplus government employes is to do some of it. They should be put at useful production.

Humanitarian? The declining work-week, with its waste of manpower, serves every base economic and political cause, and therefore is destructive of the cause of humanity.

The War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

MacArthur's grist-mill is grinding finer and faster — an encouraging circumstance, since studied speed is vital.

MacKENZIE

The situation in East Asia as a whole is dangerous — and Japan is the focal point of the infection. It will require both adroit and quick handling to forestall an epidemic of discontent, and anti-western animosity, in the various countries. For while Japan is the main source of the evil which has descended upon that part of the world, yet because the allies are now in control they will get the blame if the disorganization isn't righted speedily.

In short, the western allies are on trial in a big way in the Orient. Anyone who has studied the Far East at first hand knows that it long has harbored much suspicion of occidental motives. This is a mighty danger which either will be eliminated or accentuated, as allied efforts at rehabilitation—economic, political and social—succeed or falter.

Optimistic Report

So it is good to get General MacArthur's report that the occupation of Japan is proceeding smoothly. One notes in this connection that it's only a month since Tokyo surrendered — a short time to get a tight grip on a country which had some 3,000,000 crack troops still under arms, and the militaristic clique anxious for further trouble.

While the occupation was said to be going well in the mikado's home domains, reports from other quarters weren't so optimistic—a situation which was to be expected in view of the widespread distribution of Japanese fighting strength throughout China, Indoesia and many islands of the Pacific. The Japanese high command in China says it may take several months to repatriate the million Jap soldiers there.

Blame Pinned On Tojo

Important commentary on Jap war guilt comes from Prince Konoye, vice premier of Japan. He pins the Pearl Harbor crime to General Tojo and a small group who are described as operating so secretly that not even the rabid militarists as a whole knew what was happening. Tojo succeeded Konoye as premier in the summer of 1941 and then developed his plot against America. The prince expresses the belief that war might have been averted if he could have carried out his plans of meeting President Roosevelt personally.

Be that as it may, one would hesitate to challenge the prince's statement without proofs to the contrary. It may be noted that preventing the war wouldn't have killed Jap militarism.

Ex-War Minister Commits Suicide

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13 (AP)—Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama, former war minister, committed suicide yesterday, the Tokyo radio said.

The broadcast, recorded by the federal communications commission, did not say where or how the field marshal took his life.

Sugiyama was former chief of the army general staff and was relieved of his post in February of 1944.

He was made inspector general of military education later and became minister of war in Premier Kuniaki Koiso's cabinet July 23, 1944.

House OKs Return To Standard Time

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP) The house yesterday passed without opposition a resolution to return the nation to standard time September 30.

The measure would abolish daylight saving, or war time. It would mean that clocks would be turned back one hour at 2 a. m. on September 30.

The legislation now goes to the senate, where speedy adoption is expected. Action by the president is not required.

Clocks were set ahead one hour in 1942, when congress created wartime as a means to conserve fuel and provide longer daylight working hours.
