By MALCOLM EPLEY WHILE some progress has been made to get Klamath's strike-bound lumber industry back into operation...

EPLEY

This is a somewhat disheartening prospect, but it is possible that the stoppage may be averted by industry-wide conferences between management and labor leaders.

The strike here has already cost more than $750,000 in wages. Whether it has been worth while is a matter for those involved to answer for themselves.

Road Situation

SHERIFF LLOYD LOW called for state police aid in connection with the Weyerhaeuser picket line situation because he had good reason to believe he and his small force could not prevent violence in that affair.

Sheriff Low's statement that "violence will not be tolerated on this or any other road in Klamath county" deserves unanimous public approval.

Guest Editorial

By CHARLES R. STARK, Manager Klamath County Chamber of Commerce IN view of the announcement in last night's Herald and News that the navy would declare the Klamath naval air station surplus...

The board believes, and Sen. Guy Cordon thoroughly agrees, that the Klamath naval air station is an important connecting link between navy activities to the north of Klamath Falls and those activities around the bay area and further south.

With these convictions, the board asked Senator Cordon to contact the chief of naval operations in Washington to urge that no order closing the Klamath naval air station be issued until a thorough survey is made of the possible use of the local facility during the peacetime period.

The chamber of commerce has been on record for several months as favoring at least a part of the present navy program at the municipal airport. It will continue to do everything possible to reach its objective in this matter until the navy has disposed of its property here.

The chamber also is vitally interested in helping to develop a plan for use of the airport by commercial and private aviation, regardless of the final decision of the navy.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 — Mr. Truman's political mentor, Robert Hannegan, dropped a few words in Missouri which meant more than they seemed to. He said the president was not trying to go "left" or "right," but is only concerned about being "wrong" or "right."

Hannegan's Plan

HANNEGAN had something different in mind for the Truman administration. He wanted to build up the democratic party as the dominant political force of the country, rather than CIO. The coming of peace was a signal for launching a swerving series of events from the White House, thwarting that purpose.

After Ickes' retention, the whole CIO economic program was presented to congress by the president, along with a $91,000,000 budget-spending program as a starter for the next two years, and the CIO-PAC payroll worker McKeough was nominated to the maritime commission, where he could favor the radical unions against AFL. The lone republican was shoved out in the state department reorganization.

Knowing people have winked then and said the government was "going political." Another thing they said was: When the ex-economic stabilizer, Davis practically invited CIO to demand an economically disruptive 30 or more per cent wage increase, several thinking people here threw up their hands, figuring frankly the inflation snowball was being invited to roll over the country.

These are the factors behind an entirely new series of events presented from the White House last Tuesday. A new tack was indicated.

Court Choice

THE supreme court choice for retired, discouraged republican Justice Roberts was a fair and clear-minded republican, Senator Burton, who is not yet discouraged. Legally, this preserved the court as was—torn in the same pieces. Politically, Truman swiped a republican senate seat thereby, because Ohio's democratic governor was expected to supplant Burton with his own man.

War Secretary Stimson went out for age, nothing else, particularly not for Pearl Harbor. His successor, Patterson, is a republican, but not a party man. Patterson has been running the department. No change, therefore, is implied here. The significance behind the Truman action lies chiefly in what he might have done. Some democrats wanted him to seize the war department politically by putting Sherman Minton in there. But the president contented himself with taking control of the great surplus property treasure, by putting his man Symington in, replacing the three-man board. On labor the action was mild, yet CIO-ish. Mr. Truman knocked down all the walls around the Davis office, and, by implication, invited him to notice all the free air outside his administration. Soon after, Mr. Davis resigned. The war labor board, which has been inwardly fighting CIO-ish against Labor Secretary Schwelbensch, was blanketed in under its adversary, who was given inestimable power to act in labor disputes—or not, as he chooses. The Davis invitation for the wage strikes was directly repudiated.

Roosevelt Ground

THIS newly established ground is about where Roosevelt had it—spending and all. Now the wingers are saying: "Mr. Truman's trip out to see his home folks did him some good; he had a chance to talk with some real people." Strangely no one objects to Wallace in the cabinet, although Wallace is just as leftist as the interior secretary, Wallace, however, does not carry CIO matches, only the torch. The administration no doubt will continue to be "political." Mr. Truman has a distinct political bent. But the question is whether the backfire builders are in to stay or whether now he will go the Hannegan way, dissolving both "right" and "left" and being guided by what is "right" and "wrong."

Rent Overcharge Penalties Invoked

Penalties for rent overcharges were invoked against Ruth Klinkhammer, 1414 Homedale road, Klamath Falls, on September 20, according to Marvin D. Hixon, rent area representative. The case involved overcharges amounting to $125 collected by the landlord over a five-month period. An administrator's triple-damage claim in the amount of $375 was settled by the landlord, with the overcharge being refunded to the tenant and the balance, $250, to the U. S. treasury.

Any case of willful or negligent violation on the part of a landlord subjects him to penalties under rent regulations. Hixon pointed out. Landlords are cautioned against demanding or receiving rent in excess of the legal maximum, as enforcement will be tightened as inflationary housing pressure continues to exist in this area.

The War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE Associated Press War Analyst

The big five council of foreign ministers in London seems to be moving with determination (due caution) for a closer inspection of the several crises in the Balkans—those small but troublesome states which comprise the political atomic bomb of Europe.

The matter of immediate importance is to clear the way for the framing of peace treaties with the axis satellites—Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. In the interest of accuracy it should be said that Hungary technically isn't one of the Balkans, but it's a Danubian country and so is generally included.

Difficult Situation The situation is difficult and it is delicate, for it presents a sharp clash of views between the Anglo-American allies and the Russians. Indeed it's so delicate that allied statesmen have hesitated to give things their true names and have dealt rather in euphemisms. The further the conference of the Big Five ministers proceeds, however, the more openly the matter is being handled.

The background of the whole picture is the emergence of Russia as dominant power of the eastern hemisphere.

Allied vs. Red Views Since the Balkans represent one of the red hot spots it's well for us to get clearly in mind what is involved. To take the lid off the kettle, the position is that the new governments of Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria are strongly communistic, which represents a heavy swing to the left. England and the United States refuse to recognize these regimes, on the ground that they don't represent the people as a whole. Washington and London want fresh elections held under conditions which will guarantee representative governments.

Russia, on the other hand, maintains that the present governments do speak for all the people. Moscow is well satisfied with them—an attitude which is easy to understand, since the soviet government would indeed display an odd tendency if it went about ousting other communistic regimes.

Diplomatic Debate Naturally this situation has given rise to debate in diplomatic circles whether these red governments of Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania were in effect installed by Moscow—whether Russia is willing to tolerate action in the Balkans. The soviet answer is that it favors these governments and that they are truly democratic.

Anyway there's no compromise in sight among the Big Three. Uncle Sam and John Bull both insist that peace treaties shouldn't be signed with the present governments.

What Is Outcome? And what is likely to be the outcome? Well, I don't think it matters a hill of small potatoes to the final picture what happens to the present governments of Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary. Russia already has established herself as the dominant power of the Balkans, barring Greece and Turkey, where her influence will be strongly felt though they probably will continue to lean towards England.

Now of course acceptance of this viewpoint doesn't mean that America and Britain shouldn't stand fast by their principles and insist on elections in these satellite countries. My point is that no matter how you add it up—whether you have new elections or whether you don't—you will get the same answer, which is that the Balkans already have been incorporated in Moscow's sphere of influence. That's not so surprising when you stop to think that before the war the Balkans (down as far as Greece and Turkey) were in Germany's zone of domination.
