

LOVE TRIANGLE CLIMAXED WITH MD'S SUICIDE

Was Jealous Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8 (AP)—Dr. John H. Mansfeldt has joined in death the nurse his wife has been charged with murdering in a tragic climax to a supposed love triangle.

The body of the 48-year-old prominent San Francisco physician was found Sunday morning slumped in the front seat of his car, parked at the top of a cliff in a remote ocean front picnic ground 19 miles south of this city.

Took Poison
Deputy Coroner Ida M. Lasswell said he had been dead for three days. Evidence showed he had taken his own life with a powerful poison within a few hours of the time his wife, Annie Irene, 45, had been charged with the murder of Mrs. Wada Martin, the woman she believed was the rival for her husband's affections.

Mrs. Mansfeldt collapsed in the city jail when she was told of her husband's death.

"I killed him. I killed my husband! Nothing can help me now. I killed him and I wasn't even right. He's gone and I loved him so," she screamed incoherently.

"Dead Inside"
"Oh what will happen to my poor babies? Her three teenage children. My whole life is gone—I'm dead inside."

At first the stricken woman refused treatment, but later she was transferred by court order to a psychopathic ward in the county hospital "for observation."

Discovery of Dr. Mansfeldt's body ended a state-wide search for the physician after his disappearance Thursday. He had appeared for a few moments at the Central Emergency hospital to identify his wife, stared briefly and silently at her and then drove away.

Body Huddled Grotesquely
George Lewis, proprietor of the Shelter Cover resort, found the doctor's body huddled grotesquely on the front seat of his sedan. A stethoscope dangled from the pocket of his coat. Near him lay an empty vial of poison and in the glove compartment of the car were two drained bottles of a powerful pain-killing narcotic. Also in the compartment was a glass-barreled hypodermic which appeared to bear traces of the drug.

There was no suicide note in the car.

Lewis told authorities he saw the doctor drive up to the isolated spot Thursday, get out and stand for a few moments with his back to the ocean seemingly in deep thought, and then get back in the car.

Mrs. Annie Irene Mansfeldt, 46, wife of San Francisco, Calif., society doctor, who faces charge of murdering Mrs. Wada Martin, special nurse, whom she suspected of having an affair with her husband. Too late, Mrs. Mansfeldt told police she is convinced of her victim's innocence.

"I dismissed the incident from my mind, because I assumed the man was going fishing. Then this morning my son, Bob, returned from Santa Cruz and said the sedan, apparently unoccupied, was still there. I thought this was strange, so the two of us went up the hill to investigate," Lewis said.

Identification Made
Positive identification of the body was made by Dr. Mansfeldt's brother-in-law, Otto Sonnenberg of Larkspur, and his attorney, Vincent Hallinan.

An autopsy to determine the type of poison taken by the physician was performed later Sunday by Dr. Stuart Lindsay of the University of California, who said results were inconclusive. Viscera samples were turned over for analysis to Joseph Swim, San Francisco toxicologist.

Dr. Mansfeldt's death confirmed the fears of his wife, who repeated incessantly after her imprisonment that she was certain he had done away with himself or he would have come to her side.

The auburn-haired society matron will appear in municipal court October 10 for a hearing on the murder charge. Her physical condition was so poor at her arraignment last Friday that Judge Edward Molkenbuhr ordered a postponement.

News Notes and Comment

By JOAN O'NEILL

Saturday night was a big night down at the Teen-age club. Quite a few freshmen turned out even though the publicity on the affair had not been extensive. The idea that night was to teach some of the freshmen how to dance. The upper classmen danced with freshmen most of the evening.

Many of the freshmen expressed the feeling that they liked the idea and the upper classmen were a bit bitter that they hadn't had something like that when they were freshmen.

One of the upperclassmen voiced the opinion that by the time the kids down at the club Saturday night were juniors and seniors they ought to have a class that will be really active in things up at school.

As it stands now not enough of the boys in any of the classes know how to dance or at least feel they don't, and the result is that a great percentage of the kids don't attend the school dances.

The Freshman night was deemed a success by several members of the TAC committee and the freshmen, too, so it is to become a part of the TAC from now on. The committee members hope to have a dance like that twice a month.

Ashland Drills
Ashland sent their band and twirling squad over along with the Grizzly team Friday night. Ashland put on a drill at the halftime which was exceptionally good.

One thing especially noted about their drill was the twirling group. Those girls moved with precision and they knew how to whirl those batons, too.

EUGENE MAN CITED FOR HEROIC ACTION

SEATTLE, Oct. 8 (AP)—Capt. Eugene B. McKinney of Eugene, Oregon, acting commodore of submarine squadron 5, doesn't like to talk about the green and white ribbon which represents a letter of commendation, nor his Navy Cross, Legion of Merit and Silver Star.

Crewmen proudly told how the skipper could have dived the sub—which his frantic officers urged him to do that day in Lingayen gulf—but McKinney, fighting his first action and on the surface, was too busy waiting for two big Jap destroyers to come a little closer.

When the charging Nip ships were virtually atop his submarine, McKinney let go a torpedo. It blew the first Jap out of the war. He let go a second torpedo, ordered his sub down and everybody heard a tremendous explosion as the sub slanted into the depths.

Los Banos Freed By 11th Airborne

By NEA Service
That talented liar, Tokyo Rose, was at her untruthful best Dec. 7, 1944. She told how invincible Jap paratroopers had just dropped on a vital airstrip in Leyte and destroyed countless planes and Yank soldiers.

This furnished a good laugh for the 11th airborne division, because they happened to be on hand when the Nips dropped, and promptly engaged them in the first paratrooper versus paratrooper battle of the Pacific. Before morning every Jap who landed was dead.

The 11th arrived at Leyte in November, 1944, and before it left had killed 5700 Japs, fighting through rain, mud, howling winds, dense jungles, rugged mountains and rice paddies. The troopers made an amphibious landing 60 road miles from Manila. After an advance of 30 miles they were held up by a stubborn Jap defense line, key of which was Tagatay Ridge. On Feb. 3 men of the 11th made their first combat jump to capture the ridge. The 11th broke through the Genko line and moved toward Nichols Field. Following the fall of Nichols Field the 11th aided in capture of Fort McKinley.

The 11th then made a daring hit-and-run raid to liberate the Jap internment camp at Los Banos, 25 miles behind the enemy lines.
