

14 SHIP YARDS AFFECTED WHEN 5000 QUIT JOBS

Its San Francisco port agent, James Drury, protested the arrest of AFL pickets at Warner Brothers studio, saying their seizure was "negating the democracy for which this war was fought," and liking the action of sheriff's deputies to that of "storm troopers."

New Picket Line
Lumber — Picketing AFL workers continued their attempts to close northwest mills employing CIO workers. That a new picket line was established at Coos Bay, Ore., was acknowledged by the CIO longshoremen's union there.

Warehousemen—The Oakland membership of Warehouse local 6 of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union authorized a stop-work meeting "whenever necessary" in the course of negotiations with more than 30 employers. The local has requested 46 hours' pay per week at the present rate with a reduction of working hours to 40 weekly.

Longshoremen Return
Striking longshoremen began returning to their jobs in New York harbor today, ending a 13-day walkout and easing somewhat the nation's troubled labor situation.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Association of Longshoremen (AFL), said the men were working "all along the line," but it was not made clear whether the strike had ended generally.

In Washington there was little indication that an agreement was near between bituminous operators and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers union, as they began their second week of conferences in an effort to settle a dispute involving some 200,000 miners.

The only report Secretary of Labor Schwelienbach offered after yesterday's session was that the union leaders are "still in the process of arguing" with the operators on the issue of recognition of UMW's foremen's union.

Another member of President Truman's cabinet, Secretary of War Patterson, had stepped into the labor picture. With Vice Admiral Emory S. Land, war shipping administrator, as well as Mayor LaGuardia of New York, they had urged the striking longshoremen in New York to return to their jobs. The mayor had pledged the completion of new contract negotiations.

In 1942, when American troops were landing in northern Ireland, Cardinal MacRory issued a public statement in which he said he found it "exceedingly hard to be patient" when he thought of "my own corner of the country overrun by British and United States soldiers against the will of my nation."

HOUSING PRICE CONTROL ASKED

expected to begin when all wartime construction controls are dropped next Monday.

Call on Congress
Snyder will be asked to call on congress for legislation delegating either to OPA or NHA authority to fix ceilings.

An alternative proposal will be that President Truman delegate such authority under the second war powers act.

It was under an executive order stemming from that act that NHA fixed an $8000 ceiling on new houses built during the war. That ceiling goes out with removal of construction controls.

AUTO ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL TO PAT SMITH

Ore. and entered the service shortly after his 18th birthday. On his return here he accepted employment with the Great Northern railway.

Costigan, whose home town is Davenport, Ia., told investigating state police officers that he joined Smith at the army Friday night and the two decided to attend the Potato Festival dance at Merrill. Costigan said he took Altamont drive, drove toward the airport and crossed east by way of Johns avenue to Homedale road, considering this a shorter route than highway 66.

When he reached Homedale road, Costigan stated, he attempted to negotiate the curve at Johns and Homedale but his car struck gravel and overturned once and came to rest right side up against a telephone pole.

Heard Crash
Henry Johns, 5789 Homedale, whose residence is 100 yards from the scene of the accident, said he heard the crash and when he went to the car found Costigan holding Smith who was lying on the left front fender.

Johns rushed the two to the hospital but Smith was declared dead on arrival. It is thought he died instantly, his injuries including a fractured skull, crushed chest and broken leg.

Costigan was driving a 1931 Ford roadster at the time of the fatal accident. The car was badly wrecked.

In addition to his parents, young Smith is survived by three sisters, Phyllis L. Luana M. and L. Darlene Smith, all at home, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Dryden of this city.

Smith was a member of Sacred Heart church, a veteran of World War 2, and a member of Mt. McLoughlin council No. 2255, Knights of Columbus. His father is salesman for Smith-Bates Printing company and a state officer in the Knights of Columbus.

Final rites will be held Monday at 9:30 a. m. from Sacred Heart church with interment in Mt. Calvary cemetery. There will be a recitation of the Holy Rosary at the Earl Whitlock chapel Sunday at 8 p. m. Whitlock's is in charge of all arrangements.

edly decreasing the position of the emperor or altering his current status under the constitution.

These sources quoted Konoya as saying that Hirohito has been "seriously considering" the possibility of abdication, which has been repeatedly rumored here.

Newspapers predicted that the cabinet's proposed constitutional changes would be completed and submitted to the privy council for approval, in time to be presented to the special diet session scheduled for December.

Drastic Reforms
MacArthur's directive called for drastic reforms of Japan's laws to provide for women's suffrage, labor unionization, abolition of oppressive police and the relaxing of industrial monopoly.

The allied supreme commander bluntly told Shidehara that liberalization of Japan's constitution, which has not been amended since it was promulgated in 1889, would be necessary to achieve the reforms. He also pointedly reminded the premier that the government should be "the servant rather than the master of the people."

While Shidehara's government wrestled with the reform problem, an allied headquarters spokesman said that Russian, British and Chinese troops will participate with the Americans in the occupation of Japan.
