SNELL URGES STATE AGENCY TOURIST PLAN

GEARHART, Oct. 23 (AP) — Governor Earl Snell recommended to the Oregon Coast Highway association tonight that Oregon's tourist advertising programs be coordinated under a single state agency.

Predicting that the state's tourist industry, which amounted to $51,000,000 in 1941, would be vastly increased, the governor said a more effective job could be done if the state could obtain coordination of the tourist promotion programs which now are sponsored by the state highway commission, road associations, chambers of commerce and other agencies.

Emphasis on Advertising

He urged greater emphasis on advertising, dissemination of tourist information to Oregon citizens so they can help do the job, development of special tours, expansion of tourist accommodations and facilities, and development and conservation of natural resources.

The governor, after pointing out that travel has been restricted for the past four years, said:

"There is now a tremendous pent-up desire on the part of the masses of our people to travel, to go, to see, to vacation. They will travel in such numbers as to dwarf into insignificance all tourist business of the past, both in numbers and in dollars."

Governor Snell also recommended the development and promotion of special events and attractions, such as the Pendleton round-up, Portland rose festival, Eugene Oregon trail celebration, Astoria regatta, Waldport salmon derby, Oregon caves, Crater lake, Timberline lodge, the Wallow wonderland, and scores of others.

He said the highway commission would spend $200,000 next year to advertise tourist attractions, double the amount the commission has ever spent in one year for this purpose.

WEATHER REPORTS MAY NOT APPEAR

Weather reports of stations other than Klamath Falls may not appear for a few days, due to the closing of the aerology office at the Klamath naval air station Saturday.

As soon as authorization has been received from the regional office of the civil aeronautics administration in Seattle, weather on these stations will be released through the CAA office here.

Don Lightfoot, weather bureau field inspector from Seattle has been here this past week installing additional weather instruments for the local office and he expects to be finished today and return to Seattle.

Maximum, minimum temperatures and precipitation for the past 24 hours, have been published for Eugene, Klamath Falls, Sacremento, North Bend, Portland, Reno, San Francisco, Seattle, Medford and Red Bluff.

The naval aerology station, which has been operating since the naval air base was established here, has supplied weather forecasts, especially ceilings and visibility reports for practice flights from the station, as well as weather for transient military aircraft en route through this area. In addition to these duties the station has supplied local weather for the past 24 hours on the 10 cities mentioned.

With the naval air station placed on caretaker status aerology department has ceased operations. Flight weather forecasts were discontinued October 1, and since then weather observations alone have been compiled by that department. It was relieved of this duty also when the aerology station was officially closed down Saturday, October 20.

The station operated 24 hours a day with a night watch of two men and day watch of four men under Lt. Leland Ellingworth, aerological officer in charge of the station.

ADMIRAL KING RAPS MERGER OF ARMY-NAVY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP) Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King declared today the proposed consolidation of the war and navy departments is "working out the problem backward."

"I regard it as a step backward to attempt to regiment military thinking, particularly at high levels," the navy wartime commander-in-chief said. "This nation has come to be the most powerful in the world by following the opposite theory."

Admiral King appeared before the senate military affairs committee shortly before President Truman gave his views on the military situation to a joint session of congress.

King supported a substitute program for postwar national defense advanced yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal. Admiral King summarized his postwar planning this way:

1. The navy should continue as a separate service "unhampered in function and operation" by officers "unfamiliar with naval operations."
2. The separate war and navy department should be retained, each headed by a civilian cabinet officer.
3. Overall military control should be through the joint chiefs of staff with subordinate agencies "expanded and amended."
4. Civilian wartime agencies such as the war production board and war manpower board should be continued.
5. Closest liaison should be maintained at cabinet level between war, navy and state departments.

MAULDIN CHARGES ADULTERY IN SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23 (AP)—William H. (Bill) Mauldin, whose cartoons delineated the part which he and other foot slogging American doughboys took in the African and Italian campaigns, has charged his wife with adultery in a divorce suit.

The 24-year-old cartoonist named as co-respondent Elmer Gaines, 27, Los Angeles upholsterer.

Mauldin recently returned to Los Angeles after being discharged from the army where he served as an infantryman. He said he and his wife, Norma Jean Mauldin, separated last October 1. They met while he was in an army training camp near Abilene, Texas, and were married at Abilene February 28, 1942.

He asks custody of their son, Bruce, 2, and lists as community property their home here, film and newspaper contracts and copyrights to his best seller, "Up Front."

Pedestrian Protection—Paths for Pedestrians Reduce Rural Hazards

TOO MANY RURAL TRAFFIC DEATHS INVOLVE WALKERS: States are tackling this problem by constructing pathways along main highways to safeguard those afoot. Oklahoma, winner of the 1940 AAA National Pedestrian Protection Contest for States, recently built 19 miles of such pathways.

FOUR PEDESTRIANS KILLED ON HIGHWAY

Four pedestrians were killed in Oregon during the year 1944 while walking on highways with traffic, rather than on the left, facing approaching traffic, according to the Oregon Safety Week committee.

Since, according to figures compiled in the office of the secretary of state, more than half the pedestrian fatalities in Oregon occur on rural roads, the committee urges persons who walk along highways to keep to the left, facing approaching traffic.

"When vehicles approach, the pedestrian should step off the paved portion of the road, to assure his own safety," the committee said. "The safe pedestrian is the person who accepts the responsibility for his own safety."

MUFFS BIG CHANCE

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23 (AP)—"I've walked and walked that beat and nothing ever happened," complained Edward F. Smith, night watchman for a group of offices.

"But last night what happens? I find three guys giving the safe the works in one of the offices. I reached for my gun and it wasn't there. I felt like two cents."

Smith lost his big chance. The safecrackers escaped with $45 in cash and checks while he ran after his pistol.
