

DECLARATION OF WAR HELD UP IN TOKYO

By RUSSELL BRINES
 TOKYO, Oct. 25 (AP)—Fleet Admiral Osami Nagano—the man who gave the order starting the Pacific war—said today that a formal declaration of war was to have preceded Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor by one-half hour, but "for some unknown reason" the vital message was delayed in Tokyo.

The attack, he said in an exclusive Associated Press interview, "achieved far greater success than I had expected," and was not a military blunder.

Accepts Responsibility

Nagano, Japan's wartime chief of navy staff, accepted "full responsibility" for making the decision to attack after a bitter internal controversy in which some admirals asserted that the plan was "too dangerous," he added.

He declared that he and other navy officers expected Japan's declaration of war to precede the attack on Pearl Harbor by 30 minutes. He did not elaborate on his comment that it had been delayed in Tokyo "for some unknown reason." His comment seemed to imply, however, deliberate stalling.

"Looking back on the fighting strength in the United States and Japan, I feel confident I made no mistake in issuing final orders to attack Pearl Harbor. Without its success, the Japanese would have been defeated earlier," he asserted.

Expects Prosecution

The 65-year-old admiral, now living quietly on the edge of Tokyo, said he expected to be prosecuted as a war criminal for his share in the war, which he said included:

Breaking the deadlock between admirals urging that the first attack be made on Java and Malaya, and those advocating a first attack on Pearl Harbor.

Issuing orders for departure of the attacking fleet although the late Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto decided the sailing date, November 26.

Issuing orders on December 4 or 5 "to use our martial might on December 8, 1941 (Tokyo time; December 7, U. S. time)."

HIGH SCHOOL News Notes and Comment

By JOAN O'NEILL
 The senior class secured the work of selling the windshield stickers which will in some way designate that the owner of the car is a member of KHS.

These stickers have become quite popular at colleges and in some high schools. KHS recently received a pamphlet from one company that offered to make a design for Klamath. The stickers are in the form of pennants, crests and shields with the appropriate school name upon them.

An announcement appeared on the bulletin the other day asking any club that was interested to put in its name. Three clubs responded and by the choosing of numbers the senior class won the job. Kelly Farris is president; Jim Palmer, vice president; Donna Brotherton, secretary; and Ted Reeves, yell leader.

Home Ec Club

The representatives from each of the home economics classes are meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the home of one of their advisors, Mrs. Dorothy Kerns. Both the representatives and their alternates will meet to discuss further the plans for the proposed Home Economics club.

VITAL SAWDUST SALE NOT OPPOSED

SEATTLE, Oct. 25 (AP)—Sale of enough sawdust to heat schools, hospitals and private homes will not be opposed by striking lumber and sawmill workers, their leaders announced here today.

"But we are not going to allow any great quantities to be shipped here, and absolutely no sawdust must be shipped or sold to heat commercial houses," added E. C. Jorgensen, business agent for the union here.

The sawdust fuel shortage has become acute since all 19 Seattle AFL mills have been closed for a month. Some is available from CIO mills.
