

Ghastly Orgy In Red Cross Station Told

By JOHN GROVER
MANILA, Oct. 29 (AP)—Four Japanese sailors in Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita's Philippines command killed or wounded 100 women and children in a bloody orgy in a Red Cross station today, a pretty survivor testified today as the general's trial on war criminal charges opened.

The heavily medicated, bullet-headed Yamashita, defeated at every turn in legal skirmishing which opened the hearing, took keen interest. He followed legal arguments carefully with the assistance of a personal interpreter, but appeared to understand considerable English.

Patricia Abad, 26, testified that four Japanese sailors savagely bayoneted and shot the 100 women and children here last February. The orgy continued more than an hour although there was no resistance.

Her arm in a sling, Mrs. Abad testified that she covered behind a cabinet with her 10-month-old daughter in her arms. She was shot through the elbow and bayoneted nine times. Three thrusts went through her body and fatally injured her baby.

The four Japanese slaughtered more than 50 of the women and children, Mrs. Abad told the responsible for crimes committed by his command.

Guards escorted Yamashita to the defense table minutes before court opened in the heavily guarded high commissioner's residence, where officers, troops and Filipinos vied for the few seats available to the public.

The defense objected to admission of 59 new points in the prosecution's bill of particulars on the ground that it opened an entirely new theory of law. The bill charged that Yamashita "permitted" his troops to commit atrocities. The objection was overruled.

The defense then sought a two week postponement to adequately counter the prosecution's new charges. That was denied, but the court stipulated that the defense might renew its request for postponement after the prosecution rests.

It was clear that the defense carefully was laying the groundwork for an appeal, either to President Truman or to the United States supreme court if Yamashita is convicted. It asked dismissal of all charges against Yamashita, who is the first Pacific war criminal suspect to face trial, on the contention that the commission is without jurisdiction and had no proper authority to hear the case.

The chief prosecutor, Maj. Robert M. Kerr, Portland, Ore., in his opening statement said the case would "not be pleasant to hear" because it would pile horror on horror in relating how the Japanese ran bloodily over the Philippines.

Kerr said the prosecution will attempt to prove that violations of the laws of war were so widespread and commonplace that Yamashita must have known of them, or must have taken "affirmative action not to know" which would make him equally guilty.

Li. Col. James G. Feldhaus of Howard, S. D., opened the afternoon session of the trial's first day with another strong objection for the defense against the authority of the trial commission.

The first afternoon witness was Gliceria Andaya, Filipino Red Cross nurse, who told of being stabbed through the breast at the aid station orgy.

Credits Prisoners
W. H. Anderson, farm labor field assistant of employment service, credited prisoners of war with being responsible for the early conclusion of the harvest which was completed ahead of an anticipated date.

Work was completed earlier than last year, Anderson said and stated the work of German prisoners was entirely satisfactory. This was due to various reasons he said. In co-operation between army representatives and Anderson, frequent field inspection trips were made while harvest work was underway.

The daily quota of 150 sacks was the goal set for each man and almost without exception this goal was reached. Last year's daily quota per man was 80 sacks.

Mexicans No Good
Mexican nationals proved far from satisfactory this season. A number who refused to work according to contracts between their government and the United States were sent back to Mexico for this reason several weeks ago.

Migrant camps at Tulelake and Malin are still well populated, although families are leaving rapidly.

Only a few scattered fields of potatoes are still to be harvested and the onion crop is about 75 per cent under cover, according to growers. Potato and onion storage space is about filled, in all growing areas.

Bonanza Man Didn't Waste Time In Jap Prison Camp

Lonnie Morse Satterfield, fireman first class, United States navy, feels that he didn't waste his time in the long years of imprisonment in a Jap prison camp. He got his hands on a Jap dictionary and by the time he was liberated by the United States army, he could carry on a conversation which made him the spokesman for his camp in Japan.

Young Satterfield docked in San Diego last Friday but his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Satterfield of Bonanza, couldn't sit home and wait for their son to get home. They jumped in the family car and drove south where there was a wonderful reunion.

Luck pursued the parents for they learned that another son, F1/c Leonard Satterfield of the navy, had just put in with his ship from the Pacific. So they drove north to San Francisco where the brothers met for the first time in five years.

When the Satterfields got home, their cup fairly brimmed for they had a wire advising them that two sons, Clemon and Robert Satterfield, and a daughter, Mrs. Callie Satterfield, were en route from Kentucky and should be in Bonanza "any time."

"We're really going to have a jubilee," said Father Satterfield today.

The army has terminated contracts for 20,000,000 packages of gum. Soon we'll all be able to choose our choice of chews.
