

Capt. Coggeshall Honored For Fine Work At Barracks

Receives Medal

Capt. Lowell T. Coggeshall

The outstanding job done at the Klamath Falls Marine Barracks in solving the problems of malaria and filariasis among marines came in for national attention this week when Capt. Lowell T. Coggeshall, USNR, the directing medical officer at the barracks, received the Gorgas medal in special ceremonies at Washington, D. C.

Capt. Coggeshall went east for the presentation, which took place at a dinner in Washington October 29. The medal is awarded annually by the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States for outstanding medical achievements in behalf of the armed forces.

It was the Klamath program against filariasis—that was a major factor in Dr. Coggeshall's special honors. Under his direction, a job was done here which actually wrote filariasis off as a major medical problem in the marine corps.

Dr. Coggeshall is recognized internationally as an expert on tropical diseases. The Klamath Marine Barracks, where all tropical disease cases in the marine corps could be brought together, rather than hit-and-miss treatment of the problem, was largely his idea. He got together the outstanding medical staff that helped him do the job, and throughout has had the close cooperation of the marine corps, represented by three barracks commanding officers—Col. B. Dubel, Col. George O. Van Orden and Col. Charles T. Brooks.

A press release from the Association of Military Surgeons gives the following biographical material about Dr. Coggeshall: "Born in Saratoga, Indiana, in 1901, Coggeshall was sent while still a young biology student into the swamps of Georgia by the Rockefeller Foundation to discover why mosquitoes bred in one stagnant pool and avoided the next. Feeling himself inadequately prepared for the job—as he felt, was everyone—he gave it up and went to medical school. At the University of Chicago he rose to an assistant professorship. His appointment as director of malaria research at the Rockefeller Foundation followed. This was topped by an offer of the chairmanship of the Department of Tropical Diseases of the University of Michigan, which he accepted.

Received Calls
"That was in 1941, Coggeshall was barely settled in his new post when he received a call from Pan American Airways asking for help in controlling malaria at airfields in Africa they were then establishing. Forty per cent of the men at these airfields were already infected with malaria, a condition to PAA's medical director.

3-Mile-Limit May Be Extended
"Coggeshall went to Africa, and the next year—in Liberia, on the Gold Coast, at Lake Chad, at Khartoum—completely eradicated among American personnel tropical diseases which for generations had been taken for granted.

"His next project was the one for which he is, along with malaria control, being given the Gorgas medal: Cure of the tropical disease, filariasis, among members of the armed forces who became infected with it in the South Pacific—cure, and complete restoration to full health, full duty and a normal life. His success can be measured by these figures: Of the total number of men—marines, seafarers, army and navy units—who have passed through the rehabilitation center at Klamath Falls, Ore., only nine have ever been sent back from other stations for alleged relapses, and the majority of these are doubtful."

HIGH SCHOOL News Notes and Comment

By JOAN O'NEILL

Many a doorbell will be ringing with kids out treat-or-trick-ing. The high school gang may consider themselves above all that, but you can bet they will be out doing a little devilment.

Teen-age Club Closed Tonight
The Teen-age club will be closed tonight. Since it is Halloween, the committee felt that there would be a dwindling crowd and too much roughhousing because of the Halloween spirit.

Also the attendance at the club hasn't been enough to warrant it staying open after school so the club will be closed for a while at least. It will be open only on Wednesday and Saturday nights. However, the committee is going to try to have more entertainment and a variety of things to do on those nights.

Girls League Assembly
The assembly for girls only yesterday boasted high school talent along with the meeting. Betty Cleig tap-danced for the group and Fred and Ted Reeves, Jim Ivory, "Blacky" Blackstone, and Mrs. B. B. Blomquist, high school dramatics teacher on a short skit.

Mrs. Blomquist portrayed a woman of the gay nineties interested in the furthering of culture. In the interests of this worthy project the boys put on

Britain, Canada Can Make Atomic Bomb

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Great Britain and Canada, as well as the United States, have the "know-how" to produce the atomic bomb, President Truman told his news conference today.

The information was given in response to a reporter's inquiry. But he said in answering another question, that he did not believe it was true that the late President Roosevelt and former Prime Minister Churchill reached a secret agreement at Quebec for the peacetime use of the atomic discovery.

Regarding the coming meeting between the president and Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, the president said Attlee can talk about anything he chooses (when he gets here) but he is coming to talk about atomic energy.

The next step, after a three-week agreement on international policy with respect to the atom bomb has been reached, the president added, will be discussion with other governments of Europe.

Asked whether he had received an answer from Attlee on his proposal for additional Jewish immigration into Palestine, Mr. Truman said he had two or three messages from the British prime minister, but these could not be made public because the matter is still under discussion.

"Beast" Laughs Long And Loud

LUENEBURG, Germany, Oct. 31 (AP)—The "beast of Belsen," Josef Kramer, laughed long and loud today when someone gave him a cartoon from the London Sunday Express showing him with a long white beard being wheeled away from "the olde Lueneburg trials" in 1945.

The war crimes trial against Kramer, the commandant, and 44 guards of the Belsen concentration camp is now in its seventh week. The British military court is a month behind schedule.

One of every five narrow-neck bottles made in the United States in the first half of 1945 was a beer bottle.

COMPANIES OFFER TO REDUCE RATES

SALEM, Oct. 31 (AP)—Public Utilities Commissioner George H. Flagg was considering today an offer by the Portland General Electric and Northwest Electric companies to reduce their rates by $500,000 a year in order to promote use of electric ranges and water heaters.

Flagg did not indicate whether he would accept the offer. The new rates would be effective November 23.

Users of 300 kilowatt hours or less would save 20 per cent, while users of 500 KWH would save 10.1 per cent. The new rates would be $4.50 for a user of 300 KWH, while the next 700 KWH would be sold for 6 mills per KWH. The excess would be sold for 8.5 mills a KWH.

TRIPLE SURPRISE
SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 31 (AP)—A few weeks ago Benjamin Watson Stillwell, 18, gave his father, Army General Joseph W. (Vinegar Joe) Stillwell, a surprise by joining the navy.

Yesterday the general returned the surprise by visiting his son at the naval training center where the son is a seaman. The younger Stillwell was rushed into dress blues and sent to his famous father and mother.

The general later said of his son: "He looks swell—I almost joined the navy once myself."

Aluminum was discovered only a little more than 50 years ago.
