SUGGESTION here some time ago that the then-threatened CIO lumber strike in the northwest might not develop seems to have been borne out in the news of the past few days.

CIO unionists have made agreements with fir operators which definitely avert the strike, and meetings are now scheduled with pine operators. One such will be held here next Tuesday.

The CIO took a strike vote in the northwest territory, and the CIO negotiators were given permission in that ballot to call a strike if necessary. In the meantime, the AFL did call a general strike in the industry in this region. The CIO, however, gave indication that it wasn't anxious to strike if that extreme could be avoided.

This was a welcome situation in this area, where there was a CIO strike of seven weeks duration. It looked for a time as if our CIO people would hardly get back to work before they would be called out again. As it turns out, they have stayed on the job through the AFL strike and now it appears a CIO stoppage has been fully averted.

Furthermore, there are hints that the AFL strike is soon to be ended. Some "friendly" talks have been held the past few days, and the prospects for labor peace in the northwest lumber industry look good. The principal local operation shut down by the AFL strike is Big Lakes Box.

Map Correction

ON a number of occasions in the last dozen years, Klamath chamber of commerce has found it necessary to embark on a "map correction" program to get the publishers of road maps to show accurately the highways in this section.

Recently, the chamber has noted or been informed about a number of errors that have again appeared on road maps, and another campaign for map correction has been launched. Public cooperation is helpful in this project, and anyone who discovers mistakes or omissions on road maps would be doing a community service by informing the chamber or this newspaper about it.

It took the map publishers a long time to catch up with the construction of the Willamette highway, and some of them haven't done it yet. Even the Weed-Klamath Falls highway is not always fully recognized on maps. A current oil company map shows the elevation of Upper Klamath lake at 4390 feet, which is rather high.

Most map-makers are anxious to cooperate, and usually all that is necessary is to call their attention to errors. As the great post-war travel period opens up, oil companies, travel bureaus, and other agencies, will be publishing thousands of new maps. Now is the time to make certain that they tell the true story of highways, geographical features, etc., in the Klamath area, as well as our major connections.

REPORTS of resistance to occupation authority in Germany are now joined by similar reports from Japan, although the situation there does not seem to have developed to the same danger level.

Whereas in Germany the outbursts have been described as approaching organized resistance, in Japan the movement is attributed to a few individuals with small followings.

Authorities there express concern, however, lest trouble increase as Japanese soldiers from the Asiatic mainland, undefeated in the field, are repatriated.

Troubles Delayed

IT is not so amazing that such troubles develop as that they have been delayed so long. MacArthur's safety precautions in the first days of occupation evidenced doubt that even Hirohito's command would result in as complete an end to wartime fanaticism as has been in evidence so far. Smiling Japanese, anxious to accept war blame, to reveal the hideouts of their wealth and to discuss their military weaknesses; affable Germans stolidly, even happily carrying out the orders of their conquerors, have presented anomalies after the sort of war just ended. Such supine acceptance creates its own problems in setting up stern controls, and leaves an uneasy feeling that more is going on than meets the eye.

This very "feather pillow" situation may be partly responsible for the new troubles, especially in Germany. It was one reason for the "non-fraternization" ban in the beginning, it caused the ban's failure, and now fraternization is solidifying German hatred of the occupation forces in a manner which could hardly be accomplished in any other way. The reports serve to emphasize the importance of proper American conduct in occupied areas. Dispatches from Germany have been full of references to American participation in black market operations, and especially to American "fraternization" with German women.

Great Deal Of Laxity

NOW it is obvious that no army can do a complete job of policing the morals of its members. But when a New York Times correspondent can write from Germany that much hatred derives from former German soldiers returning home to find their wives and sweethearts living with American officers as well as with enlisted men, it would appear that there is indeed, a great deal of laxity.

The proclivities of certain types of soldiers are international and you might say, internationally understood. But there still are codes governing officers, and the one referring to unbecoming conduct covers a great deal of territory.

Occupation of a beaten country can never be made pretty. If it is not militarily proper it can give rise to more problems than it can settle.

HE GAVE THEM HEALTH

(Oregonian)

Thousands of young men, delivered from the fear of lifelong illness and deformity and restored to rugged health, will testify that no war award has been more deserved than that made to Capt. L. O. W. E. T. Coggeshall, USNR, senior medical officer at the Klamath Falls Marine Barracks, in Washington, D. C., Monday night the Gorgas medal of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States was presented to this expert in tropical diseases who led the way to defeat of filariasis and malaria.

The Klamath Falls Marine Barracks, which has a dispensary but is not a hospital, was the answer of the marine corps and the naval medical department to the increasing number of marines returning from the Pacific with tropical diseases. It was commissioned in May, 1944, and has proved so effective that instead of being crowded with "patients" it has been reduced to the status of a separation center. It was Capt. Coggeshall, former medical director of Pan-American airways and chairman of the tropical diseases section of the University of Michigan's school of public health, who instituted the program based on the theory that a man built up physically and mentally by exercise and recreation in a healthful climate will throw off tropical ailments more easily than one softened by long stays in hospitals and rest centers.

Capt. Coggeshall took the mystery out of filariasis, proved to despairing marines that its cycle may be broken naturally and that dreaded elephantiasis and sterility will not occur if there is not reinfection. He proved that malaria is not incurable, and that relapses may be prevented. His gift to the young men of America is incalculable.

Cannery Dispute May Go To Court

PORTLAND, Nov. 3 (P)—The Libby, McNeill & Libby cannery dispute, apparently settled at a bargaining election, may go to court after all, an AFL administrator said today.

Charles Hughes said he would appeal the case to the national labor relations board. Workers chose the CIO as bargaining agent in an election Thursday.

The AFL entered a complaint a week before the election that the garage where voting took place was inadequate, Hughes reported. He said a vote of only 35 per cent of the plant's workers was not representative.

Portland Traffic Toll Rises To 56

PORTLAND, Nov. 3 (P)—The death of 83-year-old William Mall, injured by an auto October 28, today brought the fatality list here to 56.

The driver, Mathias A. Ethen, said he failed to see Mall in the rain.

Klamath's Yesterdays

From the files—40 years ago and 10 years ago.

From the Klamath Republican

Nov. 2, 1905

Some 1800 acres of land lying two miles south of Klamath Falls has been sold by J. C. Mitchell of Gazelle to C. E. Wantland and other parties—among them Frank Ira White, Portland. Wantland is land agent for the Union Pacific railroad at Denver. He was accompanied here by Charles W. Eberlein of New York, land agent for the Southern Pacific, who came along to see the country. It is believed the purpose of the new owners is to cut the area into small tracts.

From the Evening Herald

Nov. 4, 1935

Yesterday morning, mercury here dropped to 2 above zero, shattering all previous November records. Upper Klamath lake froze over, the last potatoes in the ground were frozen, and it looked like a long siege.

The Medford Tigers defeated Klamath Falls, 10-14, in a hard-fought football game here Saturday.

OPA To Crack Down On Ceiling Violators

PORTLAND, Nov. 3 (P)—Redoubled efforts to crack down on violators of ceilings on rents, used cars, household appliances, and other items were announced today by the Portland OPA.

The OPA staff was reorganized to aid enforcement, which will protect returning veterans and their families and many other citizens on curtailed incomes, officials said. A single section covering rent, consumer goods, services and fuel is headed by Charles Kaufman.
