FIREWORKS POP AS COUNCILMEN VOTE HEAD MAN

trall, Landry, Newton and Van Doren.

When the matter of electing a council president came up, Cantrall nominated Landry.

Councilman Angus Newton, who has sided with the mayor in recent disagreements, proposed the name of Martin.

Opinion seemed to prevail around the council table that a second was needed for nominations. Councilman Van Doren suggested the possibility that he might second both nominations. When this was met only with chuckles, the mayor said that apparently both nominations were lost for want of a second.

Councilman Landry said he felt it best to let the matter rest for a week until Martin could be present.

Discussion

There then developed a discussion as to how Martin felt about the council presidency.

Cantrall said he had talked to Martin. He and Martin are the older members of the council in point of service, and he said they had discussed splitting the time between now and the expiration of their terms, each taking the council presidency for a time. Cantrall said, however, that he personally felt that Landry would be well qualified for president, and that he was sure Martin would agree on that point.

Mayor Ostendorf said that he, too, had talked with Martin. Martin, he said, was willing to take the council presidency.

It was again proposed to let the whole matter rest until Martin could be on hand to express his ideas in person.

Landry moved that the election be delayed for a week. The council was polled. Landry and Cantrall voted yes on the motion, Van Doren and Newton voted no.

"It's a Tie"

"It's a tie," said the mayor. "I vote no."

That forced the election.

Newton nominated Martin again, and Van Doren seconded the nomination.

Cantrall nominated Landry, and Landry seconded his own nomination.

The mayor called Newton's proposal a motion and called for a vote.

Newton and Van Doren voted yes (yes for Martin, presumably) and Cantrall and Landry voted no.

"It's a tie," said the mayor. "I vote yes."

The mayor added that the matter was settled.

"How about Landry's nomination?" asked Cantrall.

"Yes, let's vote on that 'motion'," said Landry.

"We don't need to vote on that," said Ostendorf, and called for further order of business.

Indignant

Landry and Cantrall were indignant, and when the meeting adjourned shortly thereafter, declared they considered the election irregularly conducted.

After adjournment, Mayor Ostendorf recalled some matter that had been overlooked, and suggested that it be taken up.

"Not now, Mr. Mayor, we've adjourned," said Landry.

"You fellows are getting technical," remarked a reporter to Cantrall and Landry.

"Not half as technical as we are going to be from now on after what happened tonight," said Cantrall. "And you can quote me."

Landry and Ostendorf are personal friends of long years' standing, but feeling has developed between them in municipal affairs.

Cantrall said after the meeting that he had proposed Landry for council president because he believed the mayor and Landry, with the latter working as council president, would establish a basis of harmony.

The mayor, in discussing the feeling that has developed in the council, agreed that harmony was needed. He said he thought members of the council should have consulted with him about the council presidency—a complaint he made two weeks ago with respect to Councilman Keller's adjournment.

mendations of the conference rules committee and to give consideration to Lewis' position.

The fracas developed over the rules committee's recommendation that the conference arrange for an eight-member executive committee as proposed.

Lewis succeeded in getting the conference to leave open this question.

AFL President William Green backed Lewis. Green proposed executive committee representation for the UMW and the railroad brotherhoods before the conference's second day session began.

The four places for management on the committee would be divided equally between the National Association of Manufacturers and the United States chamber of commerce.

KLAMATH BOYS FACE ASSAULT CHARGES jury to the eye. The baby was showered by the broken glass but was unhurt.

In the living room of the house with Angstead were Ed Ryan, assistant football coach, and "Mac" McMillan, an ex-serviceman. The brick crashed through the window, tore through a venetian blind and sailed three inches over McMillan's head. All three men were showered with glass fragments and McMillan's shirt was ripped to shreds.

Noreen was picked up by state police and juvenile officials at the high school Friday afternoon and allegedly admitted upon interrogation his part in the rock-throwing episode. He had voluntarily gone to Angstead's house the day before and told the coach that he had had no part in it. This was before he was questioned.

White, who will be 18 tomorrow, was the object of a police search until he walked into the state police office at noon yesterday and asked if they were looking for him. He had returned to California the day after Halloween.

Well-Known

Both boys are well-known to juvenile authorities here. White lived in Klamath Falls until last year and attended high school here, but he now resides in Fairfield, Calif. He was here visiting Noreen last week. Noreen, a senior at the high school, resides at 1739 Arthur.

White made a statement to juvenile authorities, saying that another boy had driven Noreen and him to Angstead's house Halloween night and that they decided to hurl a rock through a window of the house.

"We dislike the man," the statement reads, "but had no intention of harming him or his family." School troubles dating back to the boys junior high days are believed to be the cause of their grudge against Angstead.

White's statement told that he and Noreen had seen Angstead in the kitchen and concluded no one was in the front room. They waited for a while in front of the house, then hurled the rock and brick and ran down an alley across the street, state police said.

Both boys are now in custody and the case will be taken through regular court channels.

Two Men Lodged In Jail On Suspicion Of Robbery

ported stolen earlier in the evening, officers drove south on highway 97, and one mile this side of Midland observed two men walking south on the road. The pair answered the description of the hold-up men and when stopped and interrogated by police gave their names as Crumpacker and Thill.

Revolver Found

Officers searched Crumpacker and found a 32-20 Colt revolver in his right hand overcoat pocket. Later the two were subjected to a more complete search at state police headquarters where they were stripped. Officers said they found $8 on Thill's person and $74 on Crumpacker, $60 of this amount rolled in a tight ball in Crumpacker's shoe. Both men were then lodged in the county jail.

Police said Crumpacker is an ex-convict who served two years in Walla Walla, Wash., state prison on a burglary charge. He has been employed cutting wood, it is thought. Thill is said to have been driving a truck for a lumber company here and in 1936, police said, had been sent to the boys' state training school at Woodburn where he was held for six months in answer to a larceny charge.

District Attorney Clarence A. Humble said that Frazer had not signed a complaint at a late hour today.

Witnesses to the hold-up were three persons employed by Frazer. They are Mrs. Estelline Harrington, 2317 S. 6th, and Mrs. Anna Morrison and son Bruno who live in the rear of Frazer's market.

HUNDREDS QUIT WORK ON ATOM BOMB PROJECT

in numerous instances departing workers list "uncertainty of the future" as a primary or secondary cause for quitting.

No Estimate

Although Groves would make no estimate of the extent to which this draining off of key workers has cut production, he asserted that there has been considerable slowdown.

Since peak employment on the atomic bomb project, more than one fourth of the workers have quit and many more have served notice they intend to leave by the first of the year, according to figures provided by Maj. John Moynahan, Groves' press representative.

At the peak of employment, other than construction workers, there were 1700 operational employes and 67,000 other workers on the project. Now, there are 1400 and 49,000 respectively. Since V-J day, more than 6000 workers have quit and approximately 3000 more have indicated their intention to leave in the next month or two.

The general said permanent employment policies which would remove any uncertainties cannot be drawn until a law is passed clarifying the future status of atomic energy production and research and providing the executive set-up which will run the peacetime project. Those policies also include permanent wage scales.

The house probably will begin debate in a week or two on a controversial bill to place control of atomic energy production and research in the hands of a nine-man commission.

NEW CLUE SIGHTED TO LOST BOMBERS

the Hadsell Creek section. It was the first concrete clue which has developed and the first definite indication that some of the fliers, at least, may still be alive.

Another clue which the Air-Sea unit has been following is the report that clipped fir tree tops were sighted in the area between Blue River and Sweethome in the high Cascades. That area has been scouted but because of cloud conditions no success has been met. It is believed that some confusion has resulted in the location of the clipped tree tops. One report placed them at Oakridge, in the Willamette instead of the McKenzie area.

Hit-Run Driver Smashes Fender

A hit-and-run driver pulling out from the curb at Main and Esplanade shortly before noon today sideswiped a car driven by A. J. King of Merrill.

The rear fender of King's car was ruined and almost torn off, but the other car did not stop, King reported to police.

Curtis Cowan Gallum of Bly posted $2 bail for an appearance in police court today on a charge of making an improper left turn at Main and 8th.

The city jail now has 34 inmates. Five drunks and one vagrant appeared in court this morning, and one drunk and disorderly case bailed out. Three parking tickets were paid.

IDENTITY OF DEAD WOMAN REVEALED

vised she was en route to Klamath Falls.

In the meantime Mrs. Georgia Tuttle, wife of Dewey Tuttle, also one of the accident victims, had arrived from Woodland, Calif. She told officials she and Dewey had separated but were not divorced and said she would return her husband's remains to Bakersfield for interment. Tuttle is survived by two sisters and one brother, Allice Burchett, Grace Mara and James Tuttle, all of Bakersfield.

With the identity of two of the victims established, officials were still searching for relatives of the third, Mrs. Lucille Pollock Bishop. It is understood that Mrs. Bishop had moved into the trailer house with Tuttle and Velma Seavell and that her mother, Mrs. Mattie Pollock and the two little Bishop children, had gone to Sacramento just a week ago. No report as to the whereabouts of Mrs. Pollock and her grandchildren has been received. An inquest is slated for Thursday at 9 a. m. at Ward's.

AFL MEN TURN COLD SHOULDER TO WAGE OFFER

voted to accept the offer but wrote in a provision that the IWA continue negotiations for the full 25 cents. At the same time, Walter Belka, secretary of the Northern Washington district IWA council, Seattle, said the compromise was "entirely inadequate."

He declared the IWA negotiating committee had "never been given authority to do more than refer an offer from the employers to the membership." The council recommended its locals vote against acceptance of the offer unless "employers agree to continue negotiations upon the balance of the original demand."

Upset Negotiations

At Aberdeen, Wash., an AFL local president declared the CIO terms had upset the AFL's negotiations with operators of eight mills in the Grays Harbor area. Kenneth Nazer said the operators had offered a 13 per cent boost above the $1.00 minimum, but backed out when the non-striking CIO announced terms of the offer by Big Fir industry.

Negotiations were scheduled to resume this week between AFL districts and operators. Plywood industry agents are meeting here today with the strike committee. Others are meeting later.
