

Patterson Backs Doolittle In Armed Merger Testimony

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Secretary of War Patterson backed up army officers today with the assertion they may "express their own personal convictions with force and vigor" when discussing proposals to merge the armed forces.

Patterson took his stand in his reply to a letter from Secretary of the Navy Forrestal protesting statements by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle before the senate military committee.

"I have read his testimony," Patterson wrote, "and I am certain that he had no intention of presenting the case for unification on other than its merits."

Doolittle touched off the row when he remarked "our B29 boys are resting uneasily in their graves" because of claims by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Marc Mitscher about the importance of the navy's role in the Pacific victory.

Useless Recriminations

"Remarks reflecting on those who hold contrary views or impugning their motives, as well as statements claiming that any branch of the service won the war single-handed, are bound to produce more heat than light and to provoke useless recriminations."

"This does not mean, however, that officers should not freely express their own personal convictions with force and vigor. Lt. Gen. Doolittle did that in presenting his views to the committee."

As for Forrestal's suggestion that "injurious acrimony" be avoided by "elevating this whole deliberation to the level of a special inquiry by a presidential commission," Patterson replied:

"I do not agree that the deliberations can be 'elevated' to a higher level than the senate committee on military affairs. I know of no higher forum for matters of this nature than the appropriate committees of congress which have the ultimate responsibility."

The committee plans to hear Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's views Friday. The European theater commander arrived in the United States by plane from Germany yesterday.

The senate military committee made public yesterday a telegram Eisenhower sent from Frankfurt last July 25 saying he recommended unification "both to promote efficiency in combat operations and to avoid unconscionable duplications involving unnecessary expense, both financially and in manpower."

Sheep Breeders Will Hold Meeting

Oregon breeders of Corriedale sheep will hold a meeting next Wednesday, November 14 at the courthouse in Albany, Ore.

The meeting will be called to order at 1:30 p. m., by Charles A. Evans, Salem, Ore., who will act as temporary chairman.

The purpose of the meeting will be to organize a Corriedale Sheep Breeders association similar to organizations now functioning in other states. All breeders of Corriedale sheep are invited to attend whether they have purebred or commercial flocks.

R. G. Johnson, head of the animal husbandry department of Oregon State college will be the guest speaker.

Picture Of Klamath Man Appears On Postage Stamp

The picture of a former Herald and News carrier who has helped make history in the United States navy reserve, will soon be distributed throughout the country.

He is Virgil "Jinx" Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Johnson, of 2478 Oregon avenue, whose picture appears on the new 3-cent postage stamp, with a group of other navy boys in tropical whites.

CITY STREETS TO BE CLEAR OF SNOW

With winter coming on, the city street department once more has the job of seeing that the streets of Klamath Falls are kept clear of snow.

City Engineer E. A. Thomas stated that the city's snowplows and other equipment are adequate for handling the snowfall this year unless it is exceptionally heavy.

In the business district snow is cleared off the streets and removed, and in the residential sections it is graded to the side of the streets.

"We appreciate the cooperation of individual property holders in connection with the city ordinance stating that property holders should clear snow off the sidewalks within 24 hours after a snowfall," Thomas added.

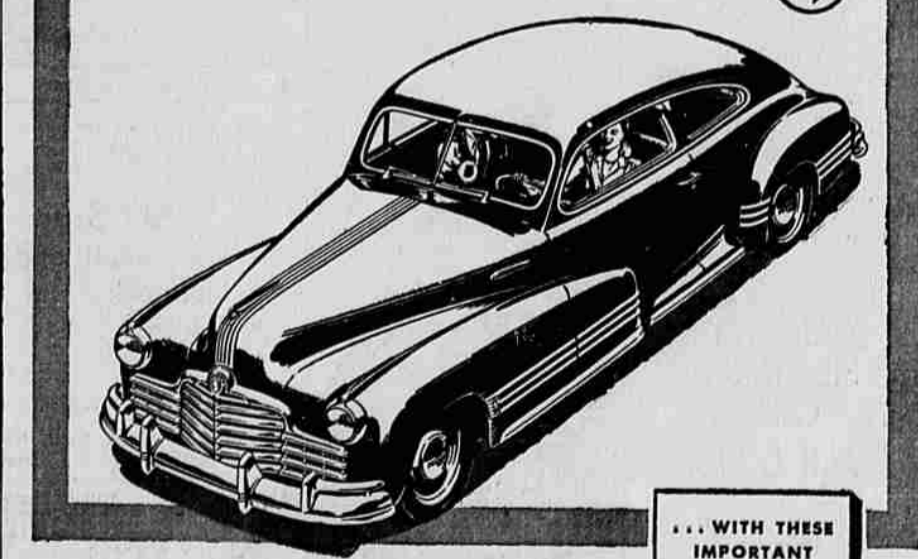

The job of clearing off snow reaches its peak after Christmas and during January and early February. Cleaning the streets of leaves is almost finished now.

The two greatest bumper crops in U. S. history were produced in 1943 and 1944.

Harding Grange Back On Corporate Status

SALEM, Nov. 13 (AP)—Harding grange in Clackamas county, which was incorporated in 1875 and authorized to do a general business, was restored to corporate status today by Acting Gov. Howard C. Belton.

A few weeks ago, it was discovered that the grange lost its corporate status in 1912 because of carelessness on the part of its officers. However, it had continued its meetings for the next 33 years as a corporation.
