

Today's Roundup

ON this Thanksgiving eve, we spent a little time looking back into this newspaper's files for the year that has passed since Thanksgiving observance on Nov. 23, 1944.

These files are paced with headlines that give emphatic justification for an outpouring of gratitude on this first postwar Thanksgiving.

A year ago today, the allies had just taken Mulhouse and Metz. The French troops were 19 miles from Strasbourg, capital of Alsace-Lorraine.

On the Pacific front, the battle of Leyte was in full swing, and the first American bombers had just flown over Manila. B-29's were opening their grand assault on the Jap homeland.

Those were among stepping stones that led to the climactic events on V-J Day and V-E Day. We said here, a year ago today, that "the great day of Thanksgiving will come with the victory that will bring home to us the men who are far away and in great danger."

That day has come in the intervening year, and the great homeward movement is well underway. Need more be said about the significance of Thanksgiving, 1945?

Why Not Evergreens?

IN discussing a proposed community Christmas tree the other day, somebody suggested that a qualified evergreen ought to be planted on the courthouse lawn, so that it could eventually grow up to be a permanent Christmas tree.

And that brings up a question as to why the modern plantings on the courthouse grounds, high school grounds, and other public property, have not included at least a few pines or other evergreens. Certainly, pines are so characteristic of the Klamath country, and so important in the area's economic set-up, that they would justify such public recognition.

And that isn't all. Evergreens have a distinctive year-around beauty that alone qualifies them for inclusion in any well-planned landscaping project. They are not rapid-growing, but they are handsome while still small, and another generation, enjoying the large trees, will bless those who had the foresight to plant them in the right places in our community.

HIGH SCHOOL

News Notes and Comment

By JOAN O'NEILL

Thanksgiving being tomorrow it seems appropriate to do a little thanksgiving for KUHS and to those who make it possible.

After visiting other schools in the state, some of the students of Klamath have remarked about our nice school building, wonderful gym, and well organized student government.

Most of us up at school spend our time in a happy, light hearted way about this and that we don't like about our alma mater, but once in a while we realize our luck.

KUHS is a peppy school and an active one. For the student who wants to be busy there are numerous clubs, dances, and committees.

The kids can have a pep assembly before every game for the asking and the faculty is fairly broad minded about any activity. Klamath High has one of the best turfs in the state, a nice campus, and school building.

El Rodeo Reality

The El Rodeo went over the top on its sales yesterday so there will definitely be an annual. The sale of subscriptions is closed. Pictures of the juniors and seniors will be taken in the near future. The two upper classes will have individual pictures and the freshman and sophomore classes will have group pictures.

Assembly A Thanksgiving assembly was held at 1:05 today. The capella choir furnished the musical part of the program. Frank Jenkins, publisher of the Herald and News, was the speaker. Reverend Victor Phillips of the Methodist church rendered the Thanksgiving benediction.

Pellicana Pellicana was conducted in the form of a quiz program last night. Wesley Robinson and Phillip McGilvary were the editors of this broadcast. Marian Baker, Barbara Blackburn, Virginia Albers, Charles Martin, Bill Irving, and John Ogle were the contestants on the battle of the sexes Pellicana broadcast. shaft... Beneath it an ungrammatical patriot had scribbled: "To hell with the guy that done this"... A dry-farming acquaintance of ours is jubilant over this fall's weather, which has deposited a lot of moisture on his unfrozen summer fallow... Whenever that happens, he avers, there's always a bumper crop the following summer... A typographical milestone was passed by The Herald and News yesterday when it abandoned the old Gothic heads that have been a feature of the sheet for 15 years or more... The new type is blacker, more legible... It has an aggressive face which we hope is in keeping with the spirit of the Klamath country in the postwar years.

World Today

THE other day there died in Tennessee a man named Luke Lea. One of the high points of his very active life (he was soldier, publisher, senator) was an attempt to kidnap the kaiser.

Colonel Lea and a handful of picked followers essayed the capture of the German emperor in Holland shortly after the end of World War I because all the allied bluster about trying war criminals, and the shouts of "hang the kaiser," proved to have been the thumping of an empty tub. Lea and his colleagues decided to take the matter into their own hands.

Ahead Of His Time

THE colonel was living ahead of his time. Today—a generation later—the Nuernberg trials are under way, and a score of nazi leaders are facing judgment for the part they played in Hitler's assault on humanity.

The other day Josef Kramer, the "beast of Belsen," and 29 others were convicted by the British at Lueneburg for the horrors of the Belsen and Oswiecim concentration camps. And Japan's war-lords are being brought to book.

These trials, as I see it, mark a world movement in the right direction. It's difficult for you and me, as we think of loved ones lost in this cruel war, to see good coming out of such a conflict. But it is indeed a hopeful sign that the world should rise up and declare itself against the crime of war.

Opening Address

JUSTICE ROBERT H. JACKSON, chief prosecutor for the United States at Nuernberg, declared in his opening address before the tribunal:

"The real complaining party at your bar is civilization."

Justice will be served. The American prosecutor stated that he would try to convict the nazis with the written records which they have kept rather than by testimony of their foes.

"There is no count of the indictment that cannot be proved by books and records," he said.

Klamath's Yesterdays From the files—40 years ago and 10 years ago.

And incidentally There is a stamp machine in the office now so that the students should be saved a trip to the post office.

The student council has set up a grievance committee so that the kids may tell any complaints they have to this committee and receive attention on the matter that is bothering them.

The senior homerooms each nominated a girl from their class to run in the good citizenship contest.

There will be no school tomorrow and Friday because of Thanksgiving.

Poe Valley

POE VALLEY—A bridal shower was held at the community hall Saturday night for the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Millet. Many useful gifts were received and a good time was had by all.

Beating Places Man In Hospital

Dale Sechrist, 30, an ex-server man residing at 1440 East Main, is in Klamath Valley hospital for treatment of a broken jaw and slight concussion following an alleged beating at the hands of a marine last night.

The marine found Sechrist in his apartment last night about midnight, asked him to leave and beat him up when he refused.

Sechrist was taken to the hospital by his sister, Marjorie Hawkins of the East Main address, and his condition was said to be fair today. The marine is not being held.

YES, we're the "big" hotel. And because we are the big hotel, statesman and diplomats, Admirals and Generals, and lots of movie stars just naturally come to The Olympic. Of course we're happy to have them, but actually we are anxious, in fact more anxious, to have our Northwest neighbors.
