Today's Roundup

THE extent to which Klamath Falls, as a city, depends upon the trade of the surrounding territory must be quite evident to everyone.

EPLEY

Indication that thought is being given to this subject came at this week's conference on cross-city traffic plans, when the matter of convenient access to the business district for people coming from outside to trade here prompted a number of questions from representatives of the Klamath Merchants association.

Parking, Rest Rooms

THERE are many other matters that deserve consideration along with the facility of traffic movement.

Convenient parking is extremely important. We have done a lot of talking here over the years about various plans for improving the parking situation, such as off-street parking, and it would seem that the time has arrived to do more than talk.

Another matter that has been called to our attention frequently by out-of-town visitors is that there is a definite shortage of restroom facilities for business visitors.

In the war period, a great deal was learned about methods of providing hospitality for foot-loose visitors in the cities, in connection with the service centers for service men.

That Added Touch

THE aggressive business community here has done a constructive job in developing merchandising and service institutions to meet adequately the needs of the territory.

Those things make the community attractive to the trade. To them should be added the refinements of public convenience that mean friendly hospitality and neighborliness and that demonstrate gratitude for the business that makes this a city and provides livelihood for its people.

Today's Bible Reading

From Ecclesiastes VIII
WHO is as the wise man? and who knoweth the interpretation of a thing? A man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and the boldness of his face shall be changed.

I counsel thee to keep the king's commandment, and that in regard of the oath of God. Be not hasty to go out of His sight; stand not in an evil thing; for he doeth whatsoever pleaseth him...

Dairy

DAIRY—A charivari party of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Robinson of West Dairy last Wednesday evening to congratulate them on their marriage.

spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death; and there is no discharge in THAT war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it...

Then I commended mirth, because a man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry; for that shall abide with him of his labour the days of his life, which God giveth him under the sun.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—What Pat Hurley said was true. For many months evidence has been leaking from the state department suggesting the permanent underlying clique was unsympathetic with top policy, and undermining it in subtle little ways.

The men within the department who have noticed the condition have been so frightened they dared not speak, even privately, outside of the department.

Because of the stands they have taken within the department they knew they were suspect to the reigning group, and occasionally thought they were being followed or their telephone conversations tapped.

Even business men dealing there have noticed the condition, compared notes about it among themselves, and wondered its extent. But until the retiring ambassador to China spoke out with direct charges the matter never reached the public eye.

State Secretary Byrnes, my informants say, does not know the facts, nor did his predecessor, Mr. Stettinius. Byrnes promised a departmental reorganization and brought in a few top men, but this was as far as his reorganization went.

The clique was strengthened under Stettinius, who functioned largely as a personal representative of the president, allowing the department to run itself, and today more men are being taken into the clique than are leaving it.

It is a peculiar condition and has never been accurately defined, not even by Mr. Hurley in his restricted charges. The men of the clique do not hold meetings and agree to undermine one or that. They are merely of one mind on some basic ideas.

Unsympathetic

FOR one thing, they are unsympathetic with American foreign policy today. For another, they agree in their distrust of anyone who would question Russia in the slightest upon any subject.

Objectionable things are to them "fascistic." Hence Chiang Kai-shek is a fascist; Russia, a democracy. But they branch off from communist grooves to others strangely enough.

The British have the best diplomacy, they think; hence, Britain likewise can do no wrong. They are known also as "the striped trousers set," affecting the uniform of the Downing street diplomats beyond necessities.

Hurley had two men in the Far Eastern division in mind in his charges.

These two he apparently caught telling the Chinese to pay no attention to him, and spreading around at cocktail parties the notion that the American foreign policy was temporary, that it would not back Chungking in postwar.

Beyond this, apparently, he had no convincing evidence. His purpose in reversing himself abruptly and deciding to quit with a challenging public statement was to force a congressional investigation. A thorough one no doubt would force a reorganization, which not even a secretary of state has been able to effect in his own department.

Hull Knew Story

BEFORE Byrnes and Stettinius, Mr. Hull knew very well what was going on. He could read in the papers daily the planted news that leaked from his department against him.

Mr. Byrnes has indicated his intention to smile away the matter, and there is danger that the democratic administration will treat it politically. Hurley is a republican, and his efforts for a congressional inquiry may be shunted off as a political attack.

If the inquiry fails to develop, the Americanization of the state department may await a future generation. There is talk that Byrnes will quietly start housecleaning to forestall an inquiry, but he must necessarily use a whisk broom where DDT is called for.

Unless something is done, Mr. Byrnes will find it increasingly difficult to effectuate his foreign policy, which is sufficiently popular with the country to have passed beyond public or congressional criticism, except from this one clique, and the newspapers and magazines of like mind.

Incidentally, Gen. Marshall, who was chosen by President Truman in Hurley's place, kept himself conspicuously above this kind of political diplomacy during the war. His aloof attitude was just what the Chinese situation called for.

Klamath's Yesterdays

From the files—40 years ago and 10 years ago.

From the Klamath Republican November 30, 1905

Klamath's new public library is now a reality, and credit must go to the Woman's club which has worked hard for this project.

From the Evening Herald November 30, 1935

Klamath county budget-makers, after a long struggle, have tentatively adopted a schedule which calls for higher taxes next year.

David R. Vandenberg will be speaker at the Elks memorial services Sunday.

Sprague River

Byron Welch is now in charge of the repair department of the Roper service station.

Dibbon Cook has returned home from a Klamath hospital where he has been for several days.

Mrs. Byron Welch is clerking in the Gienger grocery replacing Mrs. K. O. Tompson who has resigned.

Robert Carnini, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Carnini, called from Chicago to tell his parents he had received his discharge from the armed services and would spend a week in Chicago visiting relatives before coming home to Sprague River.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Welch and son, Wayne, have moved into the Grace Snoen property. Clifford recently received his discharge.

Joe Gains, a veteran of World War II, is employed on the Yanix ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap stopped here for a short visit on Wednesday, November 21, en route to Corvallis from Alturas to visit relatives.

Mrs. Dunlap is the former Florence Stone, school teacher. Her husband is a discharged soldier. Before entering the service he worked as a forest ranger and will return to this work.

The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

LONDON, Nov. 30 (AP)—Former Prime Minister Churchill's all-out attack on the new labor government, as leader of the recently defeated conservative party, represents the sudden though not unexpected opening of a conservative offensive to discredit the laborites (or socialists, as they frequently designate themselves) and regain public support.

Churchill made a daring challenge—daring because it is one from which there is no retreat—when he defined the issue as that of "the people versus the socialists."

He put it in this grim fashion: "The vote of the electors at the general election was one of the greatest disasters that has smitten this country through its long and checkered history."

He foresees with sorrow, but without fear, that in the next few years we shall come to fundamental quarrels in this country. It seems impossible to escape the fact that events are moving and will move toward the issue—the people versus the socialists.

He did not dot the I's and cross the T's of this order of the day to his fighting forces. I'm afraid, however, that anyone with imagination must see in it the implications of a fierce political struggle in which one class of the population tries to subjugate another.

Political Strategist

Churchill is a great political strategist, and from the applause being given him by his followers it would seem that they think he has picked the plan which has the best chance of success.

An impartial observer can only remark that the old maestro is playing a very long shot. The socialists at this writing are holding a strong position, and no man can prophesy the future with any degree of certainty.

Britain's wartime premier has employed the political tactics of pushing the laborites onto a premise which they themselves

Amazing Discovery In A Hearing Aid

A big improvement has been made in a hearing aid now welcomed by thousands. It is a new hearing aid that does not require separate battery pack, battery wire, battery case or garment to bulge or weigh you down.

The tone is natural, noiseless, clear and powerful. So made that you can adjust it yourself to suit your hearing as your hearing changes. It was developed by the Bellone Laboratories of Chicago, who have had many years of electronic experience.

In Oregon and Southern Washington it is distributed by James Taft and Associates, who have been serving the hard of hearing since 1934 and are widely recognized in this work.

For a free descriptive booklet telling about this remarkable device or a complete demonstration in your own home write Mr. S. C. Mitchell, c/o James Taft and Associates, 214 Miner Building, Eugene, Oregon, or 811 Lumbermens Building, Portland 4, Oregon.

Those present were Mrs. Ernest Milani, Mrs. Lyle Hickman, Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. Lee Sutton, Mrs. August Andrieu, Mrs. Leon Andrieu and children, Mrs. Pearl Burnett, Mrs. Fred Crapo, Mrs. Joe Milani, Mrs. LeRoy Houck, Mrs. Wendel Walnwright and Bobbie and Mary Ann, Victor Milani, and Carol Hickman.

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Kuhlman and daughter, Sharon, Mr. and Mrs. August Tikkanen and son Jimmie, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bohman and daughter, Anuna Rae, and Mrs. Opal Ross spent Thanksgiving in Bly.

Mrs. Edna Travers, Mr. and Mrs. George Flowers and daughters, Georgia Lee, and Donna Jean, spent Thanksgiving in Merrill with Ray Thompson and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. William Carson and daughter, Marguerite Stenett, and Phyllis Hense of South Dakota spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Milani.

Two Midland boys left this week for the army. They are James Phipps and John Meads. LeRoy Stuart left last week to go into the navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown of San Francisco surprised Mrs. Edna Travers who is Mrs.

not only had not taken but had disavowed. This is, as he puts it, that the "socialist doctrinaires" in carrying out their program will rob the country of "that reasonable prosperity and freedom for all classes on which we have hitherto built our English and British way of life."

Such a claim, of course, envisages extreme nationalization and regimentation of the individual.

Brown's sister, when they visited her on Thanksgiving. They returned to San Francisco Thursday. Mrs. Travers accompanied them to Fortuna in order to visit friends there for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Kinkade and family spent Thanksgiving in Ashland with friends.
