Grandpa Jones, is the only man in town who doesn't need this engine saver!

Here's why modern cars need the extra protection of IMPROVED COMPOUNDED RPM MOTOR OIL

Let's Look at the Wage Record

Leaders of the UAW-CIO have never accused General Motors of paying low wages.

They have not because they could not. GM hourly wage rates are substantially higher than the average for industry in general.

Under these circumstances the wage demands of UAW leaders appear fantastic.

Without offering anything in return, they demand a wage jump that would add 30% to the pay of workers already among the highest paid in the country.

In 1941, the last peacetime year, the average GM factory worker received a wage that put his income among the top one-third of all incomes in the United States —not just labor incomes but all incomes.

The average GM factory worker can buy much more food, clothing and other necessities—as well as more of the comforts of life —than the average industrial worker can.

General Motors has always paid high wages to its employees. It always expects to.

GENERAL MOTORS

"More and Better Things for More People"

Any kind of oil would do for the put-put engines of Grandpa Jones' day. But modern motors need an oil that does more than just lubricate. RPM Motor Oil, for instance, is compounded to stop corrosion, which can wreck bearings as quickly as a file.

Ouch! That engine's sizzling hot. But it's many times hotter inside. That's why Improved RPM Motor Oil has an ingredient that makes it cling to engine hot spots. Old fashioned oils (like the kind Grandpa Jones still uses) creep away from these hot spots.

You can't get at your engine to scrape it out the way you can a pipe. That's why we put a cleansing agent in RPM Motor Oil that gradually cleans out gum and carbon, and prevents new formations. "RPM" keeps engines cleaner, saves repair bills in today's cars.

We fortified Improved RPM Motor Oil to solve every lubrication problem—even to a "de-foamer" to prevent crankcase air-bubbles. Straight mineral oils—little changed from Grandpa Jones' day—can't give modern motors full protection. "RPM" does, try it!
