

Reds Assert China's Future Hinges On Chiang's Reaction To Coalition

By JOHN RODERICK
YENAN, China, Dec. 6 (AP)—The question of peace or war in China hinges on acceptance by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of the broad general principle of a democratic coalition government, Chinese communist circles at this communist headquarters city said today.

Inability to sell that point to the generalissimo caused the failure of Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley's mission as United States ambassador, they aver, and any impression that Chiang was ready and willing to give in on that subject and even had offered to take communists into the government immediately was totally false, Yenian leaders assert.

Peace Talks
 The approaching peace talks at Chungking, likely to decide the entire course of the future, would be helped by considering little published communist demands, Yenian says.

Mao Tse-tung, the communist leader, in a recently published book on coalition government, forecast election of a central government, dedicated to pushing a policy of "state managed, private managed, cooperative managed economy." The culture of this new state should be "commonly owned by the ordinary people," not "for the small, privileged minority," he wrote.

Mao calls this "a bourgeois democratic revolution" which only can be accomplished through the unified employment of "vast private capital in a cooperative economy," which postpones to the distant future realization of the party's Marxist social aim.

Empty Dream
 "To think of establishing socialism on debris of a colonial, semi-colonial and semi-feudal China is an empty dream," he declared.

To those who lift their eyebrows at communist willingness to include capitalism in the present program, Mao replies "our answer is simple: to replace foreign, imperialist and native feudalist oppression by development of a capitalist class as well as a proletariat. What exists in present day China is a superfluous foreign imperialism and native feudalism. We realize that under present conditions in China besides the state's economy, individual economy of tolling masses and cooperative economy, private capitalist economy should be given the facilities for development. Without it everyone would be building on ashes."

VITAL STATISTICS
 OTEY—Born at Klamath Valley hospital, Klamath Falls, Ore., November 1945, to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Otey, Doris, Calif., a girl, weight 6 pounds 1 ounce.

OBITUARY
HELEN AGNES KARGER
 Helen Agnes Karger, a resident of Klamath Falls, Oregon for 12 years, but for the last five years making her home in Portland, Oregon, passed away in that city on Tuesday, December 4, 1945 following a brief illness. She was a native of Richmond, Calif., and at the time of her death was aged 31 years 4 months and 23 days. Surviving are her husband, Albert C. Karger of Portland, Oregon; four children, Betty Lou and Barbara Lea of this city, Jack and Janice Karger of Portland, Ore.; her father, Harry Young of Klamath Falls, Ore.; one sister, Cora Lamar Young of Portland, Ore.; and two brothers, Charles Harold Young of Klamath Falls, Ore., and Edward Lee Young, USMC, San Diego, Calif. The remains will arrive in Klamath Falls, Ore., on Friday morning from Portland, Ore., and will rest in the Gold room at the Earl Whitlock funeral home, 615 1/2 S. 8th. Notice of funeral to be announced Friday.

Car Lack Hurts Spud Shipments

Klamath county potato shipments are again imperiled by the shortage of refrigerator cars in this area.

It is imperative that 500 cars of certified seed, plus a large volume of military orders, and some commercial shipments be taken care of during December, according to Charles Stark, manager of the Klamath County chamber of commerce. Stark said that unless shipments of certified potatoes to California are moved this month, they will be too late for the planting season which is just starting there.

Stark advised that the present daily car supply falls far short of meeting the demand.

He has suggested to the interstate commerce commission that California bound cars be diverted via Klamath Falls at Ferryville over Southern Pacific, and at Bieber over Great Northern. He added that this move would not detract from the California supply.

4 Cage Players Cut Off Squad

For breaking training rules on the eve of the season's opening basketball game, four KUHS athletes were cut off the high school cage team this morning. The suspension is for an indefinite period, high school authorities said today.

The four are Clarence Bussman, Jim Palmer, Bob Thompson and Bob Redkey. All were to have been on Coach Dutch French's first string against Weed tonight.

After a practice session at the high school gym last night, school officials said, all four of the boys went out to the Marine Barracks to the Bob Crosby dance, staying out until 1:30 or later in the morning.

That was in direct violation of strict training rules which require basketball players to go to bed at 10:30, particularly the night before a game. Rules about getting plenty of rest are laid down by athletic officials to protect the health of the athletes themselves.

Redkey, Palmer and Bussman were all lettermen on the Pelican cage team. Redkey and Bussman are guards, Palmer is a forward and Thompson plays center.

Motorist Held In Car Crash; 2 In Hospital

 lided with a 1939 GMC pickup driven by Hargrove.

Terrific Impact
 The impact hurled the pickup completely around and back against the curb, throwing the two occupants out the left door and onto the pavement. Stiff's car traveled on down Eberlein, up and over a curb and into a vacant lot.

A police officer arriving at the scene a moment later found the Hargroves on the pavement and started giving first aid to them. He called into a nearby house for someone to summon an ambulance.

As he was working on the two injured persons the other car started up, backed out of the lot and started off slowly down Eberlein.

The officer gave chase afoot, then commanded a passing car and caught Stiff's car as it turned into Nimitz in the federal housing area. He arrested the driver and brought him back to the scene of the accident, arriving there just as the ambulance was leaving for the hospital.

Stiff was taken to the police station, and questioned by police officers and military police. He admitted that he had had two beers in a Main street tavern about three hours before the accident, but declared he was not drunk.

He left the scene of the accident, he said, to go home and tell his wife, Margaret, about it. He resides at 2631 Turnage. When arrested he did not have an operator's license.

Both cars were badly smashed by the impact, although police believe both were travelling at legal speed rates. There was no evidence that either driver applied brakes just before the crash. Stiff told police that he looked both ways at the intersection but did not see the other car.

Man Arrested For Traffic Violation

Samuel H. Malsberry, Klamath Falls, was cited by police to appear in court this afternoon on a charge of making an improper left turn and failure to procure an operator's license.

Three drunks appeared in court this morning and two others bailed out.

Holiday Mail Shows Gain

Out-going Christmas mail is picking up at the Klamath Falls post office this week, Postmaster Burt E. Hawkins said. There is no rush yet.

Two veterans have been added to the staff to help with the extra work, and more will be added as needed. They are Donald L. Robin who will serve as carrier, and Rodney D. Boris, clerk.

Rural patrons are requested to keep the snow cleared from around their mailboxes in order to receive mail and speed up deliveries. Carriers are not required to alight from their vehicles. High snowdrifts prevent their driving close enough to insert mail from vehicles. Parking on the highway is a violation of traffic laws besides incurring risks to drivers who would align to make deliveries.

Rural patrons desiring to purchase stamps, money orders and post cards, are required to transact business directly with postal carriers and are warned not to leave money and notes to accomplish their purposes. Money order forms should be filled out in advance and drivers delayed no longer than actually necessary to consummate business.

Stamps should be affixed to letters before they are put in the box and flags should be up when there is mail for pickup. If name of patron is clearly painted on the box there will be no chance of his mail being deposited in the wrong one.

Free Admission

In observance of Pearl Harbor Day, December 7, all Klamath Falls theatres will give free admission to $25 bond buyers if the bond is purchased at the theatre box office on that day. Admission will also be by regular admission prices.

INCLUDED in the settlement is a pledge by the governments of Britain and the United States to work together in an effort to achieve worldwide expansion of trade and employment by reducing tariffs, cartels and other trade barriers.

That sounds idealistic and impractical, but is MUCH LESS SO than it sounds. After all, we can raise our standards of living ONLY by MORE PRODUCTION and MORE TRADE. Tariffs, cartels and all similar barriers tend to reduce trade, and as trade and consumption are reduced PRODUCTION is inevitably reduced.

It is only by producing more that we can have more to consume. The sooner we can learn that fundamental lesson, the more we and our children and our grandchildren can have.

You can't consume (or divide) what ISN'T produced.

New Wind Storm Hits Northwest

SEATTLE, Dec. 6 (AP)—A new windstorm moved in on the Pacific northwest early today on the heels of the gale which took four lives yesterday and left two fishermen missing.

The weather bureau here said wind velocity reached 35 miles an hour late last night and predicted 45-mile winds before dawn. The gale was not expected to match its predecessor, which whooped through Oregon and Washington more than 50 miles an hour.

Lodgepole Timber Stands May Provide Telephone Poles

CORVALLIS, Dec. 6 (AP)—Lodgepole pine timber stands, generally ignored by commercial lumbermen, may prove a valuable source of telephone and telegraph poles.

John G. Grantham, Oregon State college forest research specialist, said the lodgepole pines have greater strength than western red cedar and less weight than Douglas fir. All three have about the same weight-strength ratio.

Grantham said production of poles, cross ties and lumber from the same lodgepole pine stand could prove profitable.

 discovered the tragedy yesterday afternoon when he returned from eating lunch at a mess hall.

Authorities found a hammer in the apartment with blood on it. Fudetani had been doing cabinet work, and several hammers were there.

It was believed the smaller child, under care in the base hospital at the camp, would recover. She evidently was struck only once. The older girl was dead when she was found by the father.

Mrs. Fudetani was in a state of collapse at that time.

The Fudetanis are department of immigration detainees at the Tulelake project. They were among evacuees who renounced their citizenship, and it is considered possible the mother had been brooding over that situation prior to the tragedy.

Lederer had made no announcement concerning his investigation late this afternoon.
