patient dies, usually two or three weeks after the exposure.

He concluded his testimony with these grim words: "War now can destroy not merely cities but WHOLE NATIONS."

THE menace of the atom bomb can't be laughed off. If, in our preoccupation with the pleasant task of getting back to what we regard as a NORMAL world, we FORGET it momentarily, we will be brought up sooner or later with a rude JOLT.

With the advent of the atom bomb, we walked through a door into a NEW world. If we have the good sense, the tolerance and the forbearance to use atomic energy CONSTRUCTIVELY it will be a brave and wonderful new world.

If we are so dumb and senseless and so HIDEOUSLY INTOLERANT as to fail to take the steps that will insure the exclusive use of atomic energy for PEACE instead of WAR, the consequence can be terrible beyond the present power of the human imagination to grasp.

IT is no wonder that the foreign ministers of the three nations that hold the fate of the world in their hands are meeting AGAIN in an effort (perhaps) to undo the harm done at their former meeting.

Farmer Given $1 Judgment

W. O. (Bill) Smith, Malin farmer who was suing the Horsey Irrigation district for $7213.65 damages to his spud crop for last year, received a one dollar judgment in circuit court yesterday.

The jury evaluated Smith's loss due to the district's failure to supply water for irrigation at $1, and the Malin man will have to pay the costs of the five-day suit.

Smith, through his attorney, R. D. Maxwell, had charged that the irrigation company had failed to provide water for his land, although he had repeatedly requested the service, until his potato crop was ruined.

He farms 21 acres lying between Bonanza and Dairy which he leased from Frank Toffel. Donald Philpott and William Bell, directors of the Horsey Irrigation company, maintained that the irrigation company was not at fault in the crop failure and put Gus J. Hilyard and George Stevenson on the stand to testify as expert witnesses that the land in question is not good and is not adaptable to irrigation.

Smith's suit was for $2213.65 special damages, the amount he claimed was the cost of cultivating the land and putting in the crop, and $5000 general damages.

crease. It is estimated that 15,000 pine employes are now working under such arrangements.

The PIRC reiterated its offer of a 12 1/2 cents increase across the board, ($1.00 sawmill minimum), and claimed this would make a 60 per cent increase in straight time minimum hourly rates since January 1, 1941, a period in which it quoted government figures as showing cost of living increases at 33 per cent.

Honest Effort
A union press release pointed out that the union had made an honest effort to reach a satisfactory agreement.

A union press release pointed out that the union from the beginning had argued for elimination of the pine-fire wage differential but now was willing to recommend a compromise proposal of 15 cents straight which would leave the differential undisturbed.

The employers refused this proposal and their only offer was one which would widen the differential," said the union statement.

The union claimed that some individual employers have "not only indicated a willingness to accept the counter proposals of the union but several have agreed to make a settlement on such a basis and are making plans for resumption of operations."

The union statement expressed regret at the "adamant position" taken by the PIRC negotiators, declaring the union had made an honest effort to settle the 11-week-old strike.

"Due to the attitude taken by the employers committee the union has no alternative but to continue its strike and apply all pressure possible," said the statement handed the press by Hugh Haddock, union agent. He said the membership will continue to receive financial assistance through the international office.

Haddock added that the union committee had withdrawn its compromise offer but stands ready to meet with any employer individually or collectively and make an earnest effort to reach a satisfactory agreement.

A PIRC statement emphasized the competitive situation facing operators in this area, where CIO mills and some others are operating on a 12 1/2 cents wage increase. It pointed out that fir operators work under higher price ceilings than pine, and that fir lumber can be sold rough and green while pine must be seasoned and refined at high cost. It also asserted that forcing employers to work at "uneconomic labor costs" would hamper remanufacturing development in the area.

GRANTS PASS, Dec. 8 (AP)—Crews at the Colfax lumber mill at Kerby will go back to work Monday, following acceptance by the AFL of the mill offer of a 15 cent raise, Manager R. D. Schaffer said here today. The mill has been closed since September 24 when the workers went out on strike.

Clear Weekend Promised Here

A clear, crisp weekend was promised for the Klamath basin area and it will probably be excellent weather for the hundreds of families who will go into the forests for their Christmas trees and greens.

A minimum temperature of 26 degrees was reported this morning and pavements were coated with a thin sheet of snow and ice.

Travelers were warned to drive cautiously in the mountain areas as packed snow and ice on highways made travel hazardous. Eight inches of new snow at the Santiam Junction, packed snow and six inches from last night's fall at Odell lake, along with additional snow elsewhere on the Willamette highway, were reported by the state highway department. Sanding was in progress on all icy roads.
