

State Aid For Timber Urged

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 14 (AP) State aid to protect second-growth timber—but for different reasons—was proposed by two speakers before the annual session of the Western Forestry and Conservation association now underway here.

Locally administered state controls would help limit operations and keep the stand productive, Charles L. Tebbe, assistant regional forester, told the opening meeting yesterday. He suggested that states, with federal aid, hire foresters to consult with small timber owners, "who have not been getting the attention they deserve."

Emanuel Fritz of the University of California said the state should compensate owners who, pressed for sales, keep their properties intact. His impression of small operators was that many, ignoring the future, want only a "quick clean-up." Small owners may flock to California in an attempt to buy cheaper tracts, because strong operating companies are consolidating second-growth stands in Oregon and Washington, Fritz declared.

Former Lakeview Dentist Died In Jap Prison Camp

MAJ. Michael C. Sult, former Lakeview dentist, died in a Jap prison camp last February from malnutrition, his wife, Mrs. Michael C. Sult of Eugene, has been informed by the war department.

The major was captured on Bataan. He had served as an army dentist in both World Wars and practiced dentistry in Lakeview from 1923 until he was called back to active duty in June, 1941.

Returned officers who were with Major Sult said that he was on two ships which were sunk on the way to Japan from the Philippines, but escaped injury both times. He was ill on arrival in Japan and was hospitalized until his death. It is thought he is buried in a cemetery near Fukuoka prison camp.

'Smoke Jumpers' May Become Extinct

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 14 (AP) "Smoke jumpers," those daring men who parachute to fight forest fires, may be extinct within a few years.

P. A. Thompson, Washington D. C., chief of the forest service division of fire control, said helicopters, which he has tested for forest fire use, may substitute.

"A fairly safe prediction is that we will use helicopters in the woods in two years, probably extensively by 1950," Thompson told the Society of American Foresters meeting last night.

"The helicopter can land on a flat rock with men and supplies," he said, obviating much of the need for parachuters.

The Day's News

international trade. The Labor party, recently swept into power, is showing signs of loss of faith in these traditional trade pressures.

CHURCHILL (a Conservative, and the party's LEADER) also opposes Bretton Woods and the lend-lease-loan settlement. With this usual and always rather charming frankness, he tips us off today as to one of the reasons for his opposition.

He says in the course of the debate in parliament: "I certainly am of the opinion that WE CONSERVATIVES could have got better terms."

If you are merely a fair-minded citizen who wants to get at the underlying facts, you must understand that in this country a not inconsiderable part of the opposition to this British lend-lease-loan settlement (which is tied in at least in principle with the Bretton Woods international money stabilization agreement) arises out of the politically understandable desire of hard-boiled Republicans and ultra-conservative Democrats to discredit the Truman administration, which is carrying on as the HEIR of the Roosevelt New Deal.

BUT there is a DEEPER significance. These PRESSURES (preferential tariffs, "sterling areas," international cartels, etc.) are a part of the system of EXTREME NATIONALISM, under which every nation has sought, in pursuit of the mirage of national SECURITY, to build itself up to the point where it will be impregnable in war.

Spurred on by the menace of the atom bomb, a great many people are beginning to reflect that in practice the net result of all these nationalistic pressures has been to GENERATE WARS. They are therefore turning over in their minds the possibilities of a BETTER system.

It is beginning to seem to these people that international co-operation within reasonable realistic limits offers greater opportunities than the old system of extreme and selfish nationalism.

They are beginning to say to themselves that if we are going to live at all in this new world that is opening up before our eyes we may have to learn to LIVE AND LET LIVE.

DON'T let yourself be stamped-ed by this "Uncle Sap" clamor. Big new issues are tak-

Raiders Beat Up Custodian

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP)—A group of masked men, reported to have said they were determined to "stamp out this Hitler cult," last night raided the Kingdom House, headquarters of the Legion of Christian Reformers, and beat up the custodian.

Some of the raiders were in naval uniforms, according to Arthur Schneider, who took the beating.

Schneider was seized, bound and gagged after he opened the back door to investigate noises, and later was driven in a motor car for three miles into Pentworth, Sussex, and dumped.

The legion, whose spokesmen have said they consider that Hitler was a divine instrument, first came to public attention two weeks ago at the auction of furniture, Nazi symbols and busts of Hitler at the former German embassy.

Capt. St. Barbe Baker, leader of the legion, arrived at Kingdom House shortly after the raid. He told reporters he would do nothing about it.

"I have forgiven them," he said. "I can see how they were misled."
