

Added Funds Asked By Recreation Department

A request from the recreation department for an over-the-budget appropriation was greeted with wide discussion and varied opinion among the city council members at their first meeting of the new year held last night.

E. E. Hambrick, recreation director, presented his case explaining that more money is needed to maintain the Victory Basketball league.

"Last year we had eight teams," Hambrick said, "but this year we have 18." Funds allotted for basketball this year were based on expenditures of last season. The recreation needs a minimum of $360 more to continue its basketball activities, Hambrick stressed. Only $275 was budgeted for this purpose.

In answer to a question by Councilman Paul J. Hambrick said the main expense is in the salaries of officials, who receive $2.50 per game against the standard $7.50 paid in school games.

The total cost of maintaining the league will be $634.80, Hambrick estimated.

Greeted With Sighs
Hambrick's request was greeted with sighs of resignation from the council as it decided to confer with the budget committee to find out where the money could come from with a report scheduled next Monday.

There is money in the recreation fund but the question concerns the budget. In the meantime, Hambrick was instructed to go ahead with his basketball plans.

City Engineer E. A. Thomas told the council that he has contacted the state highway department concerning the repair of the asphalt pavement on Main from 7th to 9th. The highway department has agreed to undertake the job not with a new concrete strip as Thomas suggested, but with asphalt replacement. The council accepted the decision.

In a recent letter to the Klamath heating plant, the council advised that something be done about the escapement of steam from the company's pipes on Klamath and Main and on Klamath and Walnut. The heating plant replied that the work is being done now.

Structure Condemned
A letter from the county health officer, Dr. Peter Rozendal, condemning a structure at 837 Klamath, was read before the council. Pictures of the building were shown. Dr. Rozendal stated the condition of the shack both inside and out as extremely unsanitary and that it should be removed. The council asked the chief of police and the fire chief to investigate the affair and present a written report at the next meeting.

When Fire Chief Ambrose suggested they sign Dr. Rozendal's letter, the council asked that each of the chiefs write his own report.

The involved matter of the site for the city-county jail and the claim to a strip of property by the Modoc Lumber company brought about a state of confusion in the minds of the council. It was finally postponed indefinitely with the city attorney looking into the affair.

The state highway department project of widening S. 8th was left suspended in mid-air while councilmen grappled with the complexities of moving poles, meter valves, and water mains to enable the project to get underway. The general feeling was that it will be some time before the triangular affair twist the state will be worked out.

Veteran Appeals
David O. Flynn, a newly returned veteran, appeared before the council with an appeal that the city allow him to live in a small, old house located on his property at 2323 Garden, until a new home on the same lot can be completed.

Flynn's mother is living there now, and his wife and child will come to Klamath Falls soon. Because of the difficulty of finding a place to rent while building a house, Flynn asked that he and his family be allowed to live there until a new home is available. The council granted his request with a time limit of one year. At the end of that time the older structure must be demolished. It had been previously condemned, they advised.

January 15 was the deadline set by the council for applications for all kinds of city licenses.

Twenty-nine restaurant licenses were granted for the new year, along with seven meat dealers' licenses, eight barber and beauty shop licenses, one billiard and poolhall license, one card license, and one bowling alley license.

The council elected Paul O. Landry as president for the new year.

Morse Wants Colleges To Run All Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP)—Colleges would operate the year around and "much longer hours each day" under a proposal advanced today by Senator Morse (R-Ore.)

He offered it as one way to meet the problem of overcrowding by veterans, whose Uncle Sam is footing their tuition bill.

Morse made the suggestion in an interview in which he said the administration's handling of veterans housing at colleges "is a disgraceful record constituting bad faith."

The Oregon senator is a former faculty member of the Universities of Wisconsin and Minnesota and served a term as dean of the University of Oregon's law school.

Not Alarmed
But another ex-college professor, Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D-Utah) of the senate military committee, saw nothing to get alarmed about in the horde of college-bound veterans. "They'll adjust to it," Thomas told a reporter, referring both to the colleges' efforts to make room, and to the would-be students' plans to map out a course they can handle.

Thomas, once a political science professor at the University of Utah and a visiting professor at the University of California, said:

"Some students will find they have attempted too much and will drop out. Some colleges which have had small enrollments have never tried very hard to handle more—they'll find they can."

VALE, Ore., Jan. 8 (AP)—Floyd Martin Pousson, 17, today faced a life term in the Oregon penitentiary after pleading guilty to a charge of second degree murder of Natsuki Kurisu, 61, a Japanese-American resident of near Ontario.

Pousson, who was arrested in Dalhart, Tex., Oct. 12 in possession of the car belonging to the aged Nisei, was sentenced here yesterday by Judge M. A. Biggs.

The Lake Charles, La., youth was charged with slaying the Japanese-American in Malheur county Oct. 6, 1945 at a point in the westlands several miles north of Ontario. Kurisu had given Pousson a "lift" from La-Grande toward Ontario.

The Japanese-American's body was found Oct. 16 after an extensive hunt by sheriff's officers and relatives.

HIGH SCHOOL News Notes and Comment

By JOAN O'NEILL

Since this week's activities are non-existent because of final semester exams, the high school column is going to feature some of the things that make KUHS the school that it is.

Secret Garden
KUHS has a secret garden hidden among its halls. Not many of the students at school have noticed it or even heard of it for it is located off one of the side halls. The only way it can be glimpsed by most of the kids is by looking up from a little hall by the cafeteria.

One may actually enter the little plot of ground by gaining access to the dramatic storage room, plowing through a good deal of props, opening a door, and descending a small flight of stairs.

At one time the garden was a beauty spot in the KUHS halls, but now it only amounts to a minute pool and a few dried weeds. The garden was originally built by Otto Kruger, a former KUHS janitor.

KUHS Graveyard?
One of the other things that is a source of at least a little bit of interest on the KUHS grounds is the rock that slightly resembles a tombstone. This stone is placed on the side lawn near the side door leading to the library.

Despite its slight resemblance to a tombstone it is really a monument to a tree. The Daughters of the American Revolution planted a tree near this monument which is a descendant of the original Washington elm. This tree, which is supposed to be a grandchild of the original, was planted on Arbor Day 14 years ago.

Home from Guam—Hugh E. Barnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Barnett, 4804 Bisbee, arrived home from Guam on December 23. He recently received his discharge from the navy. Hugh, his wife, and relatives spent the weekend in Klamath Falls visiting his parents and friends. He is making his home in Berkeley, Calif.

Malin Building Changes Hands

MALIN—Jim Loe, long-time business man of Malin and Merrill, today announced sale of the large brick building on Main street formerly occupied by the Malin bank. New owner of the structure is John Reber, Klamath county commissioner and Malin resident.

Part of the building is now occupied by the Malin post office, the J. W. Sanders real estate office and the remainder as living quarters.

Loe will rent the Main street room, now being remodeled, as a pool hall. He operated such a business in the building when it was first built a number of years ago. Reber, manager of the Malin Cheese company, did not announce the purchase price of the building. It is understood to be a private venture.

2 Motorists Escape Injury In Collision
TULELAKE—Raymond Pollard, 61, Santa Barbara, Calif., and Chester Scott, 26, Merrill, drivers of two cars, escaped injury Saturday night in a head-on collision one and one-half miles south of the state line on the Alturas highway.

Scott's car, traveling north, went out of control into the southbound traffic lane and collided with the Pollard machine. Pollard was returning south from Klamath Falls.

Gold Identification Bracelet Found Here

A gold identification bracelet engraved with the name J. C. Smallwood and "From Mother" was picked up at 7th and Main by a city patrolman and the bracelet left at the police station. It is thought to be the property of a serviceman and police said the bracelet would be given to the owner on identification.

No New Clues In Tule Case

TULELAKE—Chief of Police Frank Rhodes said today that no new developments had appeared in the investigating of injuries received January 2 by Mrs. Earl Bessonette found at her home here. Mrs. Bessonette received a broken arm and other hurts and police continued to search for a possible assailant of the woman.

Mrs. Bessonette is in Hillside hospital, Klamath Falls, receiving treatment. Her condition was said improved today.
