

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON
 ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 11—A sedate presidential boomlet of Harold Stassen is recognized here as being under way.
 The 38-year-old navy commander is starting out upon the path which Willkie trod, appearing on the quiz program of all sages (Information Please), making speeches around the country to educational organizations, rug manufacturers, etc.
 Plainly he is heading to fill the Willkie vacuum in a manner, by establishing a republican leadership of the farming west and creating a spokesmanship for the internationalist-liberal uprising-of-a-sort out here.
 His speaking style is not crisp. His comments are rarely unexpected. Consequently he has attracted little publicity attention, yet young people like his clean-cut appearance and he is greatly extending his following.
 An able young reporter, who was closely associated with him for some weeks at the San Francisco conference, says Stassen there established an intimate respect from foreign delegates, particularly the Latins, who were not sympathetic to his purposes, but admired him.
 College students particularly, I have found, are enthusiastic for him. I have heard an eminent young republican express belief that he would be the next president "if" the republicans are "smart enough" to nominate him.

Angling For Senate Seat
 The man in the street out here suspects he is angling toward the senate seat of Henrik Shipstead, who is up for re-election this year, and not exceptionally popular. Their theory is a senate seat would prepare the way for him to assert some national leadership.
 His friends in Washington have doubted he would care to take the needless risk involved, and believe he could get further, working outside as Willkie did. I do not believe he will run.
 His movement will be an increasing challenge to the top position of Governor Dewey. The New Yorker must survive re-election this year to maintain his power, and if popular men like Farley or Forrester get into the race against him (Justice Jackson seems headed toward the chief justiceship rather than Albany at the moment) Dewey will have his troubles.
 He has made no move since the national election to establish a personal national leadership, except organizationally in his loose personal control of national headquarters.
 At any rate I do not find confirmed republicans talking either Stassen or Dewey, as much as Bricker. The Ohio ex-governor has a strong personal following in the party. In a three-way republican contest today, I believe he would win. A surge will come up for him if he wins the Ohio senatorship (Burton vacancy) in the fall.
 On the democratic side, or inside, the current word is that Mr. Truman will not run, because neither he nor Mrs. Truman like the job. They say Byrnes is the likely man, I doubt both suggestions.
 If Mr. Truman succeeds in staving off unpopularity through this crucial changeover period, he will like the job better. Few leave the White House willingly.

Byrnes Swerved Policy
 FURTHERMORE, Mr. Byrnes as yet has not established any degree of popularity in the handling of foreign policy to warrant long range presidential expectations. True enough, he swerved policy in December to what the left-wing was demanding (fulfillment of Russian purposes) and thereby caused the Roosevelt-New Deal-leftleaning group to cease its criticism of him—and the communists their picketing of his state department.
 But a lot of democratic water will flow over dams and into rivulets, before its side of the picture becomes clarified.
 Immediately ahead are the congressional elections and the administration got off to a bad start there. The Truman state-of-the-nation speech, blaming his own congress for all domestic ills, was of the same technique as similar Roosevelt attacks upon his own party—but it was far different in effect.
 With this same game, Mr. Roosevelt always repudiated but held the south; nearly always followed and approved the opposite group interests of CIO, leftwing labor and even communists (for the fourth term at any rate) in the north. It was quite a trick, requiring an unusual personality to manage the riding securely of two horses going in opposite directions.
 Mr. Truman does not seem to have the personality for it. Also the nation is in new circumstances. The class warfare policies, spending and give-away programs of the depression era are not proving popular in an inflationary postwar period which calls for opposite tactics.
 Even the democratic congressmen repudiated by the White House frequently rode on the Roosevelt coat tails, or wanted to. This year they may find they can do better with only a nominal bow to the Truman coat tails. They probably will run on their own. No mad clutching for White House tailing is visible yet.

WHAT—NO PAPER DRIVE?
 KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor): Well, the war is over; we know that it is true now as we called up various organizations in Klamath Falls asking when the next paper drive was going to be put on and we were told that there would not be any more as far as they knew.
 "Why?" I can't help but wonder "Why?" Last month our local newspaper came out and stated that owing to the increased cost of paper that The Herald and News would have to charge one dollar a month beginning January 1, 1946.
 It seems strange that all during the duration of the war we saved every scrap of paper and were told that we were helping the war economy by doing so. But now that the war is over, and the same amount of waste paper is being accumulated as in war time, that the price of bulk paper should go up and still no more waste paper picked up and used.
 We believe that there must be some of the old fashioned "horns-wagging" going on now the same as has taken place in past years and again the public citizen, John Doe, is paying for it. Sincerely,
 M. G. KING, business agent, I. W. A. Local 6-12 CIO.

SEEKS FURRY FRIEND
 KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—I am writing this letter in an effort to locate one of my best friends who served many months with me overseas. His name is Henry Gibson and the last address I have for him is 2317 S. 6th, Klamath Falls, Ore. He was discharged from the army just after I was, in October, and headed home with his wife, Jean, and their small baby girl.
 I know that his whole family always has and still lives at Klamath Falls. It is very important that I get in touch with him now. Several letters to the address I have never brought me an answer.

The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE AP World Traveler
 PARIS, Jan. 11—This is a confession of a shortcoming, and a promise to do better.
 It's this way, a comparatively few weeks ago, while food rationing still was in effect in the United States, your columnist was sighing in self-pity and adopting a rather pharisaical attitude because our very well provided dinner table was lacking in some of the things to which we had been accustomed.
 Looking back now, it's difficult to understand how a fellow could fall into such a frame of mind, especially after having witnessed the ravages of hunger in Europe during the first World War.
 Anyway, I have a mighty gully conscience now as I look about me here in France and see the thousands who haven't enough to eat. And of course there are many places in Europe which are much worse off than France, for this is a dangerously underfed continent.
Black Market
 Here in France only people who have sufficient means to deal in the black market can get sufficient food. As for the rest, they get potatoes, carrots, cabbage and bread, with perhaps a quarter of a pound of meat a week. Their ration coupons call for more than that, but the food isn't available to meet demands, a circumstance which is due partly to the fact that there was a heavy failure of crops at the last harvest.
 Despite this crop failure, conditions would be vastly better if it weren't for the black market operators who are living off the suffering of their countrymen. But outside nations can't adopt a holier-than-thou attitude towards that, because black markets have flourished in every country which fought in the war, including our own United States.
 However, the black market operators have a much greater hold on France than on most other countries. The reason is that this illicit trading was deliberately fostered by the Germans during their occupation, with the idea of breaking down French morale and giving the reich a stronger hold. The Hitlerites, who daily were taking mountainous reparations from the French government, encouraged the farmer to cater to their needs by paying him high prices with France's own money. Thus the end of the war found him unwilling to give up his big profits, and this fact contributed heavily to the black market evil.
 These days the racketeering is general throughout the country. As the unhappy housewife makes her way to take a place in the queue to purchase such food as her coupons allow, she encounters black market operators who stand in doorways with suitcases and offer their wares sotto voce. If the police arrive, these leeches detach themselves and flee.
CALAPOOIA ROUNDUP
 LEBANON, Jan. 11 (AP)—The 30th annual Calapoopia roundup will be held at Crawfordville July 3 and 4, the association announced today. Grandstands and bleachers will be enlarged.

Crowded Condition
 The human scalp has approximately 1000 hairs to the square inch. The average head contains 110,000 hairs. Women have a higher average than men, while redheads average only 90,000.

Party Heads Eye Election
 SALEM, Jan. 11 (AP)—National party heads turned their eyes on the Oregon fifth district's special election today for a clue as to the outcome of next November's nationwide congressional election.
 In the race for the unexpired term of the late U. S. Rep. James W. Mott of Salem are Walter Norblad, Astoria republican, and Bruce Spaulding, Salem democrat, but who is running as an independent.
 The vote is expected to be light, and results should be known a few hours after the polls close at 8 p. m. tonight.
 The 10 northwest Oregon counties comprising the district are strongly republican, but Spaulding was conceded a good chance because of the light vote and because he has a large republican following.
 However, the district, which was created in 1893, never has sent a democrat to congress.
