KPCA Meet To Be Held At Barracks

The Marine Barracks at Klamath Falls will be host Saturday, January 19, 1946, to farmers and stockmen, members of the Klamath Production Credit association, and their wives, who will be assembling for their annual stockholders' meeting to elect two directors, hear financial reports on their cooperative credit system, and participate in discussing problems affecting post-war agriculture.

With William Kittredge of Klamath Falls, association president in charge, sessions will get under way at 11 a. m. at the Barracks. Present will be farmers and stockmen and their wives from Klamath and Lake counties in Oregon and from the northern portion of Modoc and Siskiyou counties in California.

Following reports of the president, William Kittredge, and Lee S. McMullen, secretary-treasurer, the stockholders will elect two directors. The terms of A. R. Campbell of Klamath Falls, and E. M. Hammond of Merrill, expire this year. Other directors are E. A. Geary and Lee Holliday.

Otto Allgaier, treasurer of the Production Credit corporation of Spokane will attend and discuss problems dealing with the cooperative credit system and the necessity of adjusting operations to meet post-war conditions.

A complimentary lunch will be served marine style at noon.

Ex-servicemen and women interested in agriculture are welcome.

Stainless Steel Reported Durable

Stainless steel is more durable in cooking utensils than aluminum but each metal has its advantages, according to Mrs. Winnifred K. Gillen, county home demonstration agent, calling attention to increased supplies of these on the market. Stainless steel does not darken in cooking alkaline foods as aluminum does but once darkened by overheating or scorching it cannot be brightened as aluminum can. Aluminum spreads heat more evenly, hence there is less chance of scorching. Heavy aluminum is a better buy than light for hard, everyday service, says Mrs. Gillen.

Subsidy Notice Given Cattlemen

Producers of beef cattle have been put on notice by the government that no definite commitment is being made or will be made as to what ceiling prices or subsidy arrangements will be after June 30, 1946, since under existing law authorization for both ceiling prices and subsidies expire June 30, 1946. This announcement was made to provide the six months' advance notice promised producers of any downward revision in the ceiling prices or in the maximum of the price support levels for beef cattle, except bulls.

SALEM, Jan. 17 (AP)—The state department of agriculture reported today that Oregon produced 10,445,000 pounds of butter in the first half of 1945, a drop of 20 per cent from the first half of 1944.

Cheese production totaled 13,885,000 pounds, which was about 20 per cent more than in the first half of 1944.

Canned evaporated milk was at a new high of 25,000,000 pounds.

He said the 1945-46 fiscal year will see the 1944-45 year record beaten by about 4000 cars.

Spud Shipments 14,000 To 16,000 Reefer Cars Short

Potato shipment reports for the 1946 crop to date indicate that we are around 14,000 to 16,000 cars short of the shipments that should have been moved. Therefore, January 1 stocks ought to be at least this much above normal. The old rule of thumb that "a thousand cars is a million bushels" would put stocks at around 117 to 119 million bushels. We guess 120 millions at least, but that's just a guess and we make no claim for its accuracy. We'll know in a couple of weeks.

Movement

The last week in December hit a new low for the season for potato shipments, only 3610 cars, an average of 602 per day. But Christmas week always is low and last week the total was 5002 cars, an average of 834 daily. That's much better, and is about where we ought to be for table consumption although it still isn't enough when seed is considered, and right now seed is the biggest item in the minds of southern growers. Shipments almost certainly would be larger if more cars were available. Major point of interest in the week's movement is that almost all areas are up, with Idaho gaining 342 cars, Maine 453, Red River Valley 165 and most other states up proportionately.

Demand and Prices

Markets over the country continue at high levels, although demand is generally only moderate to good with some areas reporting slow demand. Maine has had moderate demand recently changing to slow, market about steady, price a dime to 15 cents over ex-ceiling. Idaho shows fair demand, steady market, price for very few sales dime under ex-ceiling. North Dakota demand is slow, market about steady, price 28 cents under ex-ceiling, only two cents over floor.

Colorado has shifted from strong to fair demand, market steady, price $2.77 for washed stock, equivalent to about 27 cents over ex-ceiling. Wisconsin reports fair demand, market about steady, last price reported 3 cents under floor, very few sales recently. Michigan, demand is moderate, market steady, price at floor, 30 cents under ex-ceiling. Upstate New York demand is good, market firm, price 15 cents over ex-ceiling. Florida, demand has continued good, market about steady, price $3.12 per 50 pound sack, washed, compared with a ceiling of $3.95 per cwt.

In the terminal markets Chicago reports light supplies of both old and new stock, demand slow, market about steady. New York terminal reports a dull market, slightly weaker for both old and new stock. San Francisco reports a strong market, with l.c.l. wholesale price of Klamath District stock about $3.45 per cwt. for U. S. No. 1 size A.

Note that most of the foregoing prices are compared with ex-ceiling instead of floor, with many now above ceiling. Growers should watch this rise and understand it. We think it's only an approximation of a "weather market," which occurs when bad weather ties up shipments and runs prices to levels out of line with the real supply. In this case it has been cars that caused the slow-down in volume, but the effect is the same. These prices are set by demand related to the effective supply — not the real supply. Big chunks of the real supply will continue to over-hang. Watch for labor and some government agencies to squawk about high prices. We wouldn't be surprised to see reinstatement of price ceilings on potatoes although we are not forecasting it. Citrus should be an example, however, and a return of ceilings over potatoes is possible. Grower response will be that car shortage prevents marketing of entire crop, and that above-ceiling prices are necessary to avoid loss. Might be hard to make this argument stick because the crop is so large, but adroit maneuvering along "disaster adjustment" lines may be necessary eventually to protect growers' income from the remaining portion of the crops.

It is important to note, however, that the trade is not turning the situation into a runaway market. Buying proceeds cautiously, indicating lack of confidence and the anticipation of a reaction when and if shipments increase.

The reefer car situation is just plain bad, worse than at any-time during the war. Car replacements not keeping up with wrecks, fires and other retirements. Bad order cars are increasing and still moving out of shops too slowly. Simultaneously, total volume of perishable freight is greater than ever. The picture isn't good.

Bad weather and a concentration of motive power to get soldiers home Christmas week has been followed by a substantial backlog of empties this past week. Hence, the increase in shipments. We doubt if last week's rate of movement can be sustained. ICC-ODT orders regarding free time, demurrage, and minimum loadings tend to increase car use, and have helped some, but they cannot create cars, nor assure fair distribution as among roads, areas, and commodities.

Exports and Price Support

With markets above floors, exports are bound to disappear because these deals were made on floor basis. Canada might pay more but already has received over 3000 cars and probably can worry along without many more. We would expect the French deal to lapse while the market remains strong, except perhaps to complete partially loaded boats.

Alcohol plants remain inactive, largely because bulk-loaded box cars are difficult to unload when frozen. Takes too long and damages equipment. Also, pit storages are frozen in; growers probably can't get at them again until the weather moderates. Maine starch diversion continues upon a reduced basis as relatively light shipments, plus a bullish attitude on 2's and B's, has reduced deliveries. Some plants are reported closed because of the high cost of intermittent or reduced scale operations. Some Idaho plants have commenced diversion operations, but their volume of diversion grades is very small because of market price levels. It now appears that the Spring clean-up will require almost superhuman wisdom and effort. Government is potent factor, but the job will receive combined efforts of growers, shippers, and distributors as well.

Crop Insurance Changes Wanted

Extension of federal all-risk crop insurance to other crops as soon as possible was advocated by the state conference of AAA committeemen. Other changes in the program recommended by the conference include protection against spot losses caused by hail and fire, and adjustment of individual farm insured yields to conform with actual production records.

Control Eyed For Fruit Fly

SALEM, Jan. 17 (AP)—The state department of agriculture announced today it is drafting orders to establish a cherry fruit control area on Linn, Marion, Polk and Yamhill counties, and a similar area on Hood River and Wasco counties.

The department said it didn't receive a single objection at hearings held in Hood River, The Dalles, Albany, Salem, Dallas and McMinnville.

The hearings were held at the request of cherry industry representatives who asked protection against the cherry fruit fly, which inflicted much damage on cherry crops last year.

Under the control order, all cherry trees throughout the areas must be sprayed or dusted at specified times.
