Today's Roundup

FEW days ago comment was made here to the effect that Oregonians and many others are looking to Senator Wayne Morse for leadership in achieving a just solution to the nation's critical labor problems.

EPLEY

Here are the senator's comments, in part: "Labor situation has me very much perplexed because I feel that both labor and industry are damaging themselves as well as the country."

CONSIDERABLE local discussion has taken place in connection with the last contract on the Marine Barracks.

Some time ago, in the midst of the Victory Loan drive, a story appeared in our paper telling of the progress on the Barracks contract.

We have made some inquiries as to the reason for pressing this contract to a conclusion. We have been told that at the time the question of continuing work was raised, the construction program had progressed to the point where it would have been virtually as costly to the government to have the job finished as to cut it off and settle with the contractor for the work he had done and the commitments he had made.

Continuation of the work into the postwar period helped develop an impression here that government agencies must have in mind some definite plan for full use of the Barracks, either as a marine installation or for some other purpose.

Man Placed On Probation

William Daniel Richards, husky timber worker who has also used the name of Bill Murphy, was given three years' probation when brought before Judge David R. Vandenberg in circuit court today on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Richards has pleaded guilty to the district attorney's information that he gave a bad check to the Merrill Billiards for $50 on January 5. He waived indictment and was not represented by an attorney.

Richards told the judge he gave the check while drunk in Merrill and had no recollection of the transaction. He admitted being arrested and jailed for drunkenness and fighting a number of times in California but said that this was the first time he had been in trouble in Oregon.

Commenting that he was going to give him another chance, Judge Vandenberg stipulated in putting Richards on probation that he shall not drink any intoxicants, go in any place serving intoxicating drinks and work every day he is able to work for the three-year period, and to make good the check within 30 days.

violation of any of these orders will bring about a prison term of one to five years, he pointed out.

Trip Home—Dr. Allen Priest is home from Portland medical school to spend the weekend with his wife and children.

V-J Day. The fact that contract was stopped, and the Barracks job continued, was regarded as of special significance in connection with future use of the Barracks.

That may have been a logical conclusion, but we are inclined to be doubtful that it meant more than we have explained above.

However, the continuation of the Barracks construction does lend strength to the argument that this installation ought to be used for a worthy purpose, along the lines suggested in this column yesterday. Not only this last work, but the whole Barracks investment would seem to call for the most careful study of the possibilities of using this grand set-up by the veterans administration or some other public agency.

Some one said to us today that if that isn't done, "it's going to make Bolsheviks out of a lot of people around here."

The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press World Traveler
MADRID, Jan. 19.—There is an old Spanish proverb that says a woman should be kept in the house with the door locked and one leg broken.

That's the way the boys here thought about it only so far back as when I first came to Europe during World War One. But you ought to see the so-called "weaker sex" now! The girls have been cut loose from their duenna's apron strings and are competing with the men fairly well all along the line.

Before going further I should explain that this really is Mrs. Mack's story. I had noted that the darkeyed señoritas are easy to look at, for that's one of the things a professional observer would note. I hadn't thought much more about it—well, not very much more—but my distaff partner got interested in feminine activities and has rendered this report.

This is indeed a different world from what the mothers of the present generation knew. Stern custom kept the women and girls largely in their own homes. If an unmarried girl went out doors she was accompanied by her mother or her duenna (chaperone), an elderly but spry creature who was acquainted with the wild ways of wolves.

Marriage Arranged

MARRIAGES often were arranged by the parents of the couple as a matter of "convenience." If it was a love match, the courtship was conducted by remote control. The young man, having fallen in love with a beauty he saw walking in the park with her duenna, would follow at a respectful distance until she noticed him. This might happen a number of times until finally the suitor would venture to write a note declaring his passion and might be rewarded by having his beloved speak to him from the balcony of her home.

This long distance love making might run along for two or three years after which the young man would ask the girl's parents for her hand in marriage. If his social and financial standing was all right, he might get his girl.

But having won his woman, the young man proceeded to lock her up in her own home, safe from the outside world. So the cycle of courtship and marriage went on from generation to generation, with considerably more formality among the aristocracy.

No Chaperone Nowadays

NOT so today. The young hopeful takes his girl out to dinner and the theatre or a dance, even as you and I. And they don't need a chaperone any more. To be sure, the more conservative families still stick to some of the old forms. For instance the current newspapers carry notices announcing that the parents of such and such young men have asked the parents of such and such young women for their hands in marriage. This notice is known as a "petition for hand" and is a formality which probably means that the young couple themselves have decided to get married.

Along with this has come the entrance of women into business and public life. They tell you here that this change has been due in great measure to acquaintance with the freedom of American women.

That's not the only way in which the new world has influenced Spain, for Madrid follows many of our styles in women's clothing, especially those emphasized by Hollywood films. The Spanish señoritas' makeup also is Hollywood.
