

McCullum Says Warning Drafted To Fleet Commanders Of Imminent Jap Attack Was Not Sent By Superiors

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (AP)—Navy Capt. A. H. McCullum said today that two or three days before Pearl Harbor he drafted a proposed warning to fleet commanders that hostilities with Japan were imminent, but his superiors decided against sending it.

At the time, McCullum was head of the far eastern section of the navy department's intelligence division.

He said his draft was based on his analysis of the situation and was not due to any Japanese "winds" code message indicating a break with the United States. To his knowledge, McCullum added, no such "winds" message was ever intercepted by the navy.

McCullum related to the senate-house committee investigating Japan's December 7, 1941, attack that he had not known about the navy's November 27 warning message to fleet commanders at the time he drafted his proposed dispatch.

"War Warning"

The November 27 message was signed by Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and opened by saying it was "war warning."

McCullum gave the committee this account of his proposed message:

He drew it up on Wednesday or Thursday before Japan's Sunday attack and took it to Admiral Theodore S. Wilkinson, director of naval intelligence and his immediate superior.

Wilkinson told him to take it to Admiral R. K. Turner, head of the war plans division.

Turner looked it over, struck out all parts except those relating to information, and then drew out a copy of the November 27 message and showed it to him.

"I said, good gosh, you put in the words war warning and I don't know what could be plainer than that," McCullum testified.

He said he still wanted his message sent, however, and Turner said that if it went it would have to go as he had edited it. Turner then told him to take it back to Wilkinson which he did, McCullum added.

"No dispatch of this character was ever sent?" Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) asked.

"No sir," McCullum said.

He was unable to give the committee a copy, because such a proposed draft, if not sent, "goes into the waste basket."

McCullum said that if any "winds" message had been intercepted it would have come to him.

Youths Admit Theft Of Car

Two Beatty youths were arrested Tuesday at Beatty and charged with the theft of a car owned by M. A. Workman, 1336 Lakeview, from that address Saturday night. The pair, Elwin Thomas Smith, 20, and Raymond Foster, 23, both Indians, were picked up by state police and Indian Officers Willis Pankey and Del Smith.

Police said Smith and Foster admitted the theft, saying they took the car because "they wanted to go home." The machine was found at Beatty. The car, officers reported, was in good condition with the exception of the battery, which was run down. Both Smith and Foster are in the county jail. Smith is a returned service man who re-enlisted in the U. S. army. He is due to report back February 15.

HIGH SCHOOL News Notes and Comment

By JOAN O'NEILL

The Pelican and Wildcat basketball squads are going to be honored sometime during this present basketball season with a banquet. The banquet is to be given by the Home Economics club which now boasts 74 paid members. This is quite an improvement over the past few years which were hit by a lull in Home Ec club participation.

Betty Westlin, Pat Myers, Jimmie Modisette, Donna Puckett and Alyce Vincent head the several committees appointed for the club banquet. At a recent meeting of the club a thank-you note was read from the public welfare bureau for the cookies donated by the girls of the home economics department. Cookies were made during class hours and donated for the Christmas stockings of needy children.

The art department has begun work again on a mural which is being painted in the room. This wall painting shows a panorama of the history of the west. The mural was started last year. One scene is completed and a second one is half finished. Fred Wisenbach, art instructor, is directing the painting. Mr. Wisenbach is out of town this week. Mr. Swansen, returned serviceman, is taking his classes.

Margaret Ireland, English teacher and El Rodeo-Krater advisor, left for Portland today to complete the company which is handling the El Rodeo printing. Pictures were taken by Wes Robinson at the recent all-county TAC dance and most of them turned out fairly well. Several of the pictures will appear in the Krater.

Pioneer Dies In Klamath

Joseph Oliver Hamaker, one of the county's oldest pioneers and for more than half a century a prominent citizen of Bonanza, died last night in Klamath Falls at the age of 89 years, 6 months.

Mr. Hamaker was ill only a few days before his death, but because of his failing health had moved into Klamath Falls from Bonanza a short time ago to be near his son and daughter here.

The pioneer served as justice of the peace of Lost River district at Bonanza for more than 40 years. He was an early-day land commissioner, surveyor, and lawyer. He operated a newspaper at Bonanza for eight years. For many years, he and Mrs. Hamaker operated a telephone and water utility business at Bonanza.

First Edition

Judge Hamaker platted the first edition to Bonanza in 1888. His specialty was land titles and surveying, his advertisements offering this service appeared frequently in early day newspaper files.

Mr. Hamaker was born at Marysville, Ia., in 1856. He came to Oregon in 1880, settling first at Poe valley but moving to Bonanza within a few years of his arrival. On August 3, 1885, at the Horton ranch in Poe valley, he was married to Anna M. Horton, who survives him.

The couple had nine children, eight of them still living. The surviving children are Mrs. George Boyd, Klamath Falls; H. E. Hamaker, Klamath Falls; Monte Hamaker, Redding; Mrs. Carol Griffith, Portland; Mrs. Reginald Griez, San Francisco; Mrs. George Anderson, Portland; Marjorie Hamaker, Portland, recently discharged from the army nurse corps, and Jack Hamaker, Lakeview. Fourteen grandchildren and six great-grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Hamaker was a charter member of the Odd Fellows

People Asked To Verify Seal Receipt

Although the Christmas Seal sale to support tuberculosis control work and a social hygiene program in Klamath county ended officially Christmas, some residents have not yet acknowledged receipt of their seals, Maud A. Hosley, county chairman said today.

"We are therefore preparing reminder cards for these residents, the first lot of cards to be mailed today," Mrs. Hosley said.

The Klamath County Public Health association wishes to thank the volunteers who have helped with the preparation of reminder cards, Mrs. Lloyd A. Young, Mrs. C. W. Hornbrook, Mrs. Jack Schulze, Mrs. Garrett Van Riper, Mrs. E. Laton Stepien and Mrs. Ross Stempley, Girl Scout members of troop 2, Betty Pinniger, Priscilla McDonald, Roberta Jones and Charlotte Heup spent Saturday morning gluing Christmas Seals on reminder cards. Mrs. James Pinniger is leader of Girl Scout troop No. 2, and Florence McConahey, executive secretary. Other members of the troop will help prepare reminder cards next Saturday, Mary Joan Hill, Molly Cashin, Frances Stevenson, Geraldine Gibson, Geraldine Johnson, Shirley Gaylord, Marilyn Wheeler and Anna Lou Backman.

A response from everyone in Klamath county who received Christmas Seals in the mail will enable the Klamath County Public Health association to carry on its full program of activities in 1946. A program has been planned to bring to light unknown cases of tuberculosis and to show the community how the spread of tuberculosis can be prevented.

Social Hygiene Day

Social Hygiene day, February 11, is a part of the county program. Roy E. Dickerson, executive secretary of the Cincinnati Social Hygiene society, and associate in education for the American Institute of Family Relations, will be the speaker at two sessions during the day. At the noon luncheon at the Willard hotel, his topic will be "Safeguarding the Home." At the 2 o'clock session, also at the Willard, he will discuss "The Student's Part in Sex Education." The complete program for the day will be announced in the near future.

Mrs. Thomas C. Parker, executive secretary for the Klamath County Public Health association, wishes to express her thanks to all volunteers who helped with the seal sale project, and to each and every citizen who has sent in a contribution to make possible a better public health program.
