Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY DON'T confine your reaction to the recent Marine Barracks developments to "that would be a fine thing for Klamath Falls."

EPLEY

The Marine Barracks project has all the aspects of a "natural." The Barracks plant is virtually a ready-made campus, which can be turned quickly and easily to the new tasks proposed.

Adequate

IN the mountain cove above Klamath Falls is a big plant of 65 major buildings, all utilities in and operating, a huge housing project already built, superb physical education facilities, many buildings easily convertible for classrooms and laboratories, and ideal conditions for low-cost living for veterans as well as work opportunities for students.

It's a breath-taking opportunity for Oregon to do a veteran education job unexcelled in the country.

A Picture Missed

INCIDENTALLY, on the day the state delegation was here—one week ago yesterday—to look over the plant, one of the worst storms in years was beating all of Oregon, including the Klamath country.

The weather conditions prevented the visitors from getting a general view of the superb facilities they came to inspect. Their inspections were confined to the rooms in which they were standing at any given time.

On the very next day, the storm had cleared and this writer had occasion to visit the Marine Barracks. The big lay-out in bright, warm sunshine, its many-windowed, gray-white-green buildings among the pines presenting a handsome, impressive picture.

The visitors reported favorably on what they had seen on the stormy day; their impressions, we are sure, would have been even more enthusiastic had they seen this remarkable plant just one day earlier or later.

Here is an interesting comment made by one of the official visitors: "The government has put into the Marine Barracks, in dollars and cents, more money than is actually invested in the University of Oregon campus."

The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE Associated Press World Traveler THE HAGUE, Feb. 14 — Prime Minister Schermerhorn has paid this column the compliment of asking it to perform a friendly mission for Holland by emphasizing to America his assurances that not only his government but the people of the Netherlands as a whole are anxious to see Indonesia gain self government and within a fixed period freedom of choice for its own status.

This is by way of being a historic request, for it is indeed a striking recognition of the great politico-social tide which is sweeping our world.

Here it may be useful to interpolate that Dr. Schermerhorn has a wide reputation for being a humanitarian. He abandoned a college professorship to enter politics. During the war he led a free Dutch underground movement and the Germans had him in a concentration camp for a couple of years. Recently he joined the socialistic labor party. Still in his sunny years, he is a man of strong personality and direct speech. More than incidentally, he has a big and captivating smile, which must be a great asset to him in making friends.

Indonesian Situation

THE prime minister's request came at the end of an interview on the general welfare of Holland. He was saying goodbye to Mrs. Mack and me in his private office when he reverted to the Indonesian situation, which naturally had been among the subjects of our discussion, since it is one of the hotly debated topics of the day in many countries.

"If you want to perform a goodwill mission for Holland," he said, "you can do so by making her position regarding Indonesia clear to America. I am afraid there is a misunderstanding in your country, and the good opinion of our friends in the United States means much to us. I should like to get across the message that not only has the Netherlands government pledged itself to the final independence of Indonesia but that the majority of the people of Holland are behind the government in this action."

SIDE GLANCES

"Did you forget that program you had on yesterday at 2 o'clock, ma'am—the one where the wife had just decided her husband was in love with a nurse?"

STREET COMPLAINT

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (To the Editor)—Klamath Falls is a nice little city, but it is a shame to say that it has the most neglected roads of any city I have ever lived in, and I have been in several states, including Illinois, Indiana, and the neighbor state, Washington.

In Washington our taxes were less than we pay here but both city and county roads were kept in good condition. In Klamath Falls (hang our heads in shame) inside the city limits there are some streets so impassable with mud that taxi drivers refuse to drive passengers there.

If the road commissioner does not believe this, I dare him to drive by our house and try to use Mt. Whitney street. He will probably get stuck in mud so deep that it will take two wreckers to remove the car.

MRS. HELEN DAVIS, 425 Mt. Whitney.

FUNERAL

PETER REINERO Funeral services for the late Peter Reiner who passed away in this city on Wednesday, February 13, 1946, will be held in the chapel of Ward's Klamath Funeral Home, 925 High on Saturday, February 16, 1946, at 10:30 a. m. with Rev. David F. Barnett of the Presbyterian church officiating. Concluding services and interment will follow at 3 p. m. at the family plot in Mt. Shasta, Calif. Friends are respectfully invited to attend.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF SALE Klamath Irrigation District will receive bids for purchase of Lot 4, Block 1, First Addition to Altamont Acres, subject to unpaid water taxes from July 1, 1945, and interest thereon. Sam Hackney has a trade mark

Before Sam Hackney got successful, his wife used to make his bow ties for him. They came out an inch longer than average—and Sam came in for a lot of ribbing. But he only smiled and took it.

Of course, Sam doesn't need to economize now; he's one of the best real estate men in the country. But he still wears those long bow ties. Prospective customers may not remember his name or his face, but the minute they see Sam, they say, "That's the feller!"
