Guest Editorials

From The Dalles Chronicle
TEXT of the secret agreement reached at Yalta, under which Russia was promised half of Sakhalin island...

There is more than a suspicion that this "top secret" still would have remained secret, had it not been for the fact that it was "smoked out" by the state department...

Admittedly it was necessary to concentrate tremendous authority in the hands of the president, in order to achieve efficient prosecution of the war...

Still The "Staff Of Life"

taining a balanced diet. It's a matter of keeping men, women and children alive, and for that bread is still the "staff of life"...

The stocks of wheat in the United States on January 1, 1946, according to the department of agriculture, were lower by 32 per cent than on January 1, 1945...

These production statistics have led some observers to assume, fallaciously, that it is going to be easy to fill Europe's wheat needs without experiencing any difficulty at home...

Three factors account primarily for the low stocks of wheat on hand despite the high production—1. Large exports to meet foreign needs...

The general agricultural price situation and the corn situation have made it more profitable for many farmers to feed their grain than to sell it. The large consumption of grain per capita in the armed forces is also an element in depleting the stocks.

The World Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press World Traveler
AMSTERDAM, Feb. 16—Holland has taken a terrible beating from the huns, but finally has a solid footing on the craggy path to recovery...

Cheerful Courage

WELL, I guess she's right. The Dutch have been hurt so badly that it doesn't take much easement to make them happy. It's a good sign, too, for cheerful courage is needed to pull them through...

Morale is tops in Holland, and it is getting better with the approach of spring. It's the nesting time in Haarlem and we've seen the growers working diligently and lovingly over their bulbs...

So far as material things go, the best indication is that there no longer is actual hunger in the country. That doesn't mean that there is anything like enough food, for there is a great scarcity of most things and rations are terribly tight...

Vocational Study Held

TULELAKE, Feb. 16—A vocational guidance study is now in progress at Tulelake high school to assist students in choosing life work...

By learning early the qualifications necessary for a particular industry and the cost of training it is hoped students will be guided in selecting the subjects most helpful toward a definite goal...

Students are asked to name the three subjects in which they are most interested, and polls taken so far indicate the four most popular with the Tulelake group are agriculture, engineering, forestry and nursing...

School heads are arranging to have authoritative men from these trades and professions speak on these subjects to the assembly at the meetings held every Wednesday...

C. A. Henderson, Klamath county agent, will speak on agriculture. Other speakers and dates they will be announced later.

Malin

MALIN, Feb. 16—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vacantz had as their dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. John Herringshaw and S 1/c and Mrs. Charles Spolek at Sari's, February 3...

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Kirkpatrick have purchased a new home in Malin. They hope to be moved in within a month...

Friends of Mrs. Henry Krupka, formerly of Malin, will be interested to know that she is in Klamath Falls, at the Winema hotel, recuperating from minor surgery...

Sample Showing To Be Held Here

A factory sample showing of Ben Hur home and farm freezer and storage units will be held Tuesday and Wednesday at Sampson Implement Company, 2424 S. 6th. This is the first postwar showing of the most advanced models in this area...

Admiral Noyes Denies Seeing 'Winds Note'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP) Rear Adm. Leigh Noyes testified today that he never saw "an authentic winds message" tipping off Japanese intentions before the Pearl Harbor attack...

Noyes was chief of naval communications at the time. He had directed a subordinate to try to intercept a Japanese weather broadcast which Tokyo had arranged to signal a break in international relations...

The admiral's testimony before the senate-house committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster contradicted that of Naval Capt. L. F. Safford...

Safford has said that Noyes was handed a genuine broadcast message which told Washington three days before the December 7, 1941, attack that war was at hand...

A number of winds messages were brought to him on the day before Pearl Harbor, Noyes said. Then he added strongly: "Not Authentic"

Naval Capt. Joseph Rochefort testified that Pearl Harbor operators never intercepted a "winds code" message from the Japanese in 1941...

Rochefort, who was a radio intelligence expert at the Hawaiian station when the Japanese attacked, told a senate-house investigating committee that he did not think such a message, signaling a break in relations with the United States, Britain or Russia, would have been "extremely important"...

"It would have given us a little additional advance or earlier information on Japanese intentions to break off negotiations," he commented.
