Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

THE Klamath area is entering the greatest private construction program of its history. In spite of extremely high costs, materials shortages, and other problems, this building campaign has already been launched and has been proceeding steadily in midwinter.

It includes both new buildings and a major face-lifting that is scheduled to run through all parts of the business district.

At the outset, most of this work is being done on business property, but a beginning has been made on residential construction, and this promises to expand steadily if given half a chance in the materials and regulation situation.

It's Here

A LOCAL man who is affiliated with construction activity was in our office the other day. He said that he has $1,000,000 worth of work in his office—jobs that are either underway now, or "in the bag."

"It's here," he said. "It's the biggest thing in construction that has hit the Klamath country. New business buildings, outstanding remodeling jobs in the downtown area, and some amazing residence plans are in the making."

"Our country is going to build up to a level that heretofore we've just dreamed about."

Face Lifting

THE startling remodeling jobs that have been done or are planned by various women's wear stores—jobs that caused a visiting columnist to comment that these shops are a "bit of Fifth Avenue"—are just a beginning in the business district face-lifting program.

If all the work that is planned now is carried through, Klamath will have gone a long way, at least in the business district, in answering that other writing fellow who gave it the bird for "dilatation without antiquity."

As trade center for a huge area, Klamath needs to do just what it is doing to make its shopping facilities attractive, modern and convenient. Those with the foresight and the confidence to do this are deserving of full credit.

Use Of Form W-2 Explained In Income Tax Information

(Editor's Note: This is the third of several stories explaining who does what about his income tax return.)

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (AP)—Who can use form W-2, the withholding receipt, in filing his 1945 income tax return?

This story explains who can and can't. If you can't, you must use form 1040, as a short-form or long-form return, depending upon your individual case.

Form W-2—the receipt given a worker by his boss—shows how much tax regularly was withheld from his wages or salary in 1945.

You can use it: 1. If your income was less than $5000 and practically all of it was in wages or salary from which the tax regularly was withheld.

2. If—besides your wages or salary—you had income not over $100 from interest or dividends or other wages not subject to withholding, provided that the total income did not bring the total income to $5000.

Examples: Taxes Withheld 1. Your salary was $3000. Taxes regularly were withheld from it. You had no other income. You can use form W-2.

2. Your salary was $3000. Taxes regularly were withheld from it. You had income of $100 from interest or dividends or wages not subject to withholding. You can use form W-2. If that added income was over $100, you'd use the 1040 short-form.

3. Your salary was $3000. Taxes regularly were withheld from it. You had added income of only $50 from rents. You could not use form W-2, you'd use the 1040 short-form. You can't use form W-2 for reporting income from rents, professional fees, business, partnerships, estates, trusts or annuities.

Can husbands and wives make a combined return on form W-2? Yes, if that combined income was less than $5000 and fits the requirements listed above.

Examples: 1. Your salary was $3000. Your wife's salary was $1800. Total $4800. Tax regularly was withheld from both salaries. You—or your wife—additional—had $100 income from interests or dividends. You could use W-2 singly or jointly.

2. Your salary was $3000. Your wife did not work but had $101 income from interest or dividends. You could not make a combined return on form W-2 because her income from dividends or interest was more than $100.

In this case you could use form W-2. Your wife could use the 1040 short-form. Or the pair of you could make a joint return on the 1040 short-form since your total income was under $5000.

Suppose the combined salaries of yourself and wife—each subject to regular withholding in 1945—was $5000 or over but individually less than $5000. File Separately. You couldn't file jointly on form W-2. You could file separately on form W-2. Or you could file jointly on the 1040 long-form.
