Solon Demands Congress Act On Atomic Control; A-Bomb Plotting Denied

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) Congress, uneasy about the implications of the Canadian-Soviet espionage row, heard a new demand today that it hurry up and do something about framing the nation's future program for atomic energy.

Senator Hickenlooper (R-Ia.) told reporters it is "imperative" that atomic legislation be enacted "without delay."

This served a pointed reminder on both senate and house which for several months have had measures pending to provide for the future study, development and harnessing of atomic energy.

Hickenlooper did not refer to Moscow's acknowledgment that Soviet representatives had secured "insignificant" secret data in Canada relating to atomic energy.

No Spying

His statement, however, came after Secretary of State Byrnes assured the senate atomic energy committee yesterday that the state department was not aware of any American officials implicated in the Canadian investigations, and that it had "suppressed" no prosecutions connected with a-bomb spying in this country.

Hickenlooper is a member of the atomic energy committee which is studying several bills to set up a control commission.

"I don't want to rush in and enact just any kind of bill," he said, "but I think we should act without delay to draw up considered and effective legislation."

The senate atomic committee apparently finished up with its hearings yesterday, after questioning Secretary Byrnes and two top experts qualified to discuss espionage problems. All testified behind closed doors, with even the official stenographer excluded.

Witnesses

The other witnesses were Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, head of the a-bomb project, and James McInerney, chief of the espionage section of the justice department's criminal division. Neither would comment on his testimony.

It was understood, however, that both Groves and McInerney told the committee of past attempts which had been made to steal bomb secrets and of their views on necessary legislation to tighten up espionage laws. Such a tightening is held necessary because, although espionage on the atomic bomb was controlled during the war under the second war powers act, there are not sufficient safeguards under the espionage act which constitutes peacetime anti-spy legislation.

The committee is expected to continue its closed-door sessions for several weeks but Chairman McMahon (D-Conn.) said it is not presently expected that any additional witnesses will be called.

Klamath Sailor On Leave Here

Billie Joe Phelps S 2/c who enlisted in the U. S. navy December 5, 1945, is home on leave visiting his mother Mrs. Lois Ford at 2425 Hope from the training center in San Diego.

Phelps has completed the initial 10 weeks' training course in eight weeks and when he returns February 24 he will be assigned to sea duty and hereafter receive a 30-day leave with pay each year.

He qualified as marksman in the rifle range his first time out and plans now to make the navy his career, trying for a rating of boatswain's mate.

News Notes and Comment

At the basketball banquet which was held recently for the Pelican and Wildcat basketball squads almost exclusively, several members of the KUHS student body who boast talent performed before the group.

Joan O'Neill

Alyce Wells sang "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" and "Temptation." Shirley Dalton, Katharine Newman, Betty Cleig, Lynden King, Marilyn Bruce and Anna Johnson took part in portraying how a pep assembly held in the year 1910 might have looked. Bob Mahoney rendered "Shop for Joy" on the piano and Ted Reeves, in full dress, apeared as a waiter on roller skates. The teams even entered into some original games such as a cracker race, and a clothes relay race.

Classroom Movies Prevalent

Most of the kids up at school spread the word quickly when it is heard that the history or social ec or some other class period will be devoted to a movie. The movies shown in the classroom are definitely not on the entertaining side, but they seemed to be welcomed anyway.

For the past several years this method of visual education has been used in the classes of KUHS when the movies fit the class material. This seems to be an effective way of putting across points which otherwise might be missed in ordinary classroom discussion.

Most of the movie shorts last about 20 minutes in length. Health, Spanish, science and history classes have been the most frequent users of this method of teaching, but other classes have profited by this form of visual instruction now and then. These short movies are sometimes similar to the regular movie short "The March of Time" and sometimes much like travelogues. This method of education through the use of two senses seems an improvement over the continual use of the listening method only in such classes where an occasional instructive movie is practical.
